LONDON NAVAL SHOWDOWN IS DUE TOMORROW

MacDonald, Tardieu to 'Have It Out.'

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 14.—The success of the naval conference, so far as a ten power pact is concerned, probably depends on the efforts of Prime Minister MacDonald's cook at his country home at Chequers, Sunday. It was announced today that André Tardieu, French premier, will arrive here tomorrow night for a showdown, which will take place at Chequers Sunday. Mr. MacDonald has invited Premier Tardieu to lunch to spend the day with him. Over the luncheon table they will hold the conversation which probably will decide the fate of the conference.

There was an air of restrained optimism in conference circles today. It is felt that while the parley is at its most severe crisis, a turn for better is almost sure to come. This may be due to Mr. MacDonald's handling of the situation.

He Does Some Plain Talking.

Immediately after the outburst of Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, which seemed to spell doom for the conference, the British prime minister took hold personally and proceeded to do some of the straightest talking ever known at such meetings. First, he told Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, that the time had come for Italy to say something more than a reiteration of its demand for mathematical parity with France. He told the Italian foreign minister plainly that, in view of France's great colonial empire and far flung responsibilities, mathematical parity would mean superiority for Italy, and neither Great Britain nor America would support Italy's demand for parity. He asked Sig. Grandi to name the figures of Italy's real needs, and at the same time told him that the British view was that Italy's figure should be somewhere in the neighborhood of 400,000 tons.

Grandi Taken Aback.

Sig. Grandi was taken aback and would only reply that he was acting under the strictest orders from Premier Mussolini and that he had no power to vary them. Mr. MacDonald told him he had better get in touch with his boss right away and get new instructions.

Mr. MacDonald's next interview was with M. Briand, to whom the British prime minister communicated what he had said to Sig. Grandi. He also told the wily old Frenchman that the British and American support of a denial of parity with Italy was conditional on France's receding from its claim of 724,000 tons of warships. France's claim, Mr. MacDonald told M. Briand, should be about 600,000 tons.

This would allow Great Britain to maintain its claim to a two power standard in European fleets and would mean a proportion of 6-3-2 for Great Britain, France, and Italy, with 5 for America and about 4 1-5 for Japan.

Grandi Makes Veiled Threat.

Today Sig. Grandi tried to open conversations with M. Briand for a political treaty covering the points at issue between France and Italy in Tripoli, Tunis, and other parts of northern Africa, holding out the hope that he might be able to make concessions in return for such an agreement. M. Briand told him shortly that London was not the place for such negotiations and if he meant business he should take the matter up with Paris and Rome through regular diplomatic channels.

Sig. Grandi is said to have even mentioned that if these matters were not settled Italy would be compelled to look elsewhere for friends. He did not say where, but it is understood there has been a good deal of friendly conversation between Italy, Germany, Russia, and Turkey.

JAPAN WINS DEMANDS

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 14.—The American delegation reached a complete agreement today with the Japanese delegation on the ratio of the Japanese to the American naval strength for the next five years.

During this period, which will cover the life of the treaty under negotiation, Japan gets all it has demanded and then some. The British government has given its blessing to the agreement, which was cabled tonight to Tokio for the approval of the Japanese government before an official announcement is made here.

The agreement represents the basis

$70,000,000 IN ROAD PROJECTS AID PROSPERITY

1930 Plans Listed in Chicago Area.

BY HAL FOUST.

With the coming of spring, which arrives officially next Friday, a $70,000,000 street and highway program will be started for the metropolitan area, consisting of Chicago and its environs within fifty miles. Until the building season ends next fall there will be sufficient money available for an average monthly expenditure of nearly $10,000,000 on improvements for traffic.

The following table shows the estimated costs of the various projects and classes of projects. Some of the estimates, notably those of the city and park systems, are not based upon accurate engineering figures, but officials state they believe they are well within the final costs:

Chicago	$24,000,000
North outer drive	3,000,000
Outer drive bridge	5,000,000
West parks	1,000,000
South parks	750,000
Lincoln park repairs	500,000
State roads	12,000,000
Cook county	7,250,000
Other counties	6,000,000
Towns and villages	7,000,000
Railroad crossings	1,000,000
North Indiana	2,000,000
South Wisconsin	500,000
Total	$70,000,000

These projects will mean employment for 33,000 men. About 14,000 will be engaged where shovels are moving dirt, trucks are dumping loads of material, hammers are driving spikes, and rivets are linking steel beams. The others will be in gravel pits, in cement plants, puddling in the South Chicago mills, driving trucks loaded with crushed stone, preparing tools, and materials for the front line workers.

City and State Projects.

The Chicago board of local improvements estimates that paving by special assessments during 1930 will equal the city's average of $20,000,000 a year. The city will also spend $4,000,000 from the vehicle tax fund for street repairs. This work is already under way. Twenty-eight gangs, employing about 450 men, were patching the city's broken pavements last week.

The state highway department, using the gasoline tax and motor registration fees, will put $12,000,000 worth of improvements in the fifty mile area this spring and summer, $9,000,000 of the work within a radius of thirty-five miles of Chicago. Engineers, surveyors and draftsmen are finishing the preliminaries and contracts will be awarded so that concrete can be poured as soon as weather permits.

Cook county with its 1 cent from the gasoline tax and its county highway tax, is prepared to use $7,250,000 this year on pavements and bridges. About half of the money is to be spent on through routes within the city.

Other Near By Improvements.

Other county and township road work this year in the fifteen Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin counties of Chicago's metropolitan area will cost approximately $6,000,000, according to the Chicago Regional Planning association. The association reported that $7,000,000 will be spent on city and village streets outside of Chicago.

The Lincoln park board next week will advertise for bids for its half of the $10,000,000 outer link bridge job. Sheldon Clark, president of the board, said contracts will be let promptly for the depression of the Grand avenue car tracks under Lake Shore drive and for the foundation of the bridge.

Lincoln park also will spend $3,000,000 on the extension of the outer drive north of Montrose avenue. Mr. Clark has ordered a survey of other needed improvements, including the reconditioning of the storm torn drive north of North avenue.

South Park Paving.

George Donoughue, superintendent of south parks, said that the bumpy stretch on the outer drive south will be paved as soon as the frost is out of the clay subsoil, within a few weeks. Engineers are completing specifications for the south approach to the outer link bridge.

Commissioner Cullen of the west park board said his fellow commissioners were working on a program for the repair of the west side boulevard system and the Augusta boulevard extension.

The railroads will contribute another million to the 1930 program for grade separations.

The Indiana highway department has a $3,000,000 program for the main routes in Lake, Porter and La Porte counties.

Wisconsin will spend approximately $500,000 on roads in Kenosha, Racine and Walworth counties.

U.S. May Pay Boy Crippled by Dry's Shot

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 14.—[Special.]—Seven years after he was made a hopeless cripple for life by a prohibition agent's bullet George Charles Walther, a farm youth of Underwood, Wash., received today the first glimmer of hope that the government which shot him down would make some provision for his future support.

A bill providing that Walther, now 25 years of age, should be paid $150 monthly for the rest of his life by the government was approved without a dissenting vote today by the house claims committee.

Approval of the Walther relief bill marked the first time in the memory of claims committee members that any move has been made by congress to aid a victim of hair trigger dry law enforcement.

Others May Seek Relief.

Favorable action on the Walther relief bill, now being pushed by Representative John Schafer [Rep., Wis.], may open the way for congressional approval of other measures introduced for the indemnification of victims of prohibition bullets, but pigeonholed by dry majorities. One of the unusual things about today's action is that a majority of the claims committee is dry.

Walther received the news of the favorable action on his plea for relief while lying on a bed in the Good Samaritan hospital in Portland, Ore. His expenses at this hospital were paid by the government until 1928. On Aug. 21, that year, the prohibition bureau notified the boy it was through. Since then Walther has been a charity patient.

Perusal of the huge pile of documents, affidavits, editorials and recommendations placed before the claims committee while it handled the Walther case disclosed that the youth was but 18 years old when he was shot down. The agent who shot him called it an accident, although subsequently he had the boy indicted on a charge of dry law violation. Walther was never tried. Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt in a report to the committee a year ago said that the case had been thrown out because of Walther's condition and insufficient evidence.

Shot "Without" Warning.

According to Walther's affidavit, he was walking in the woods near Underwood on Sept. 1, 1923, when without warning he was suddenly shot in the back.

"As I fell," Walther stated, "I heard a man shout halt. Later I saw two men cross a log some distance away and walk toward me. One of the men ran up and said he was sorry. He said he had a new gun and that the shooting was an accident."

Later John Montgomery, the dry agent, testified that he had started to run after the youth and had stumbled over a log, accidentally discharging the gun and hitting the boy. Montgomery asserted at the time that Walther had been operating a still for an ex-convict named Fred Wise. Walther denied the accusation. Wise later was convicted.

Expenses Paid at First.

Walther was taken to a hospital by the prohibition agents and all his expenses paid until Aug. 1, 1923. A physician's affidavit, submitted to the claims committee, states that Walther is completely paralyzed below the waist and cannot walk. It is necessary, the physician stated, to lift him in and out of his chair.

The prohibition bureau disapproved favorable action on the Walther claim, but Mrs. Willebrandt told the claims committee that, in view of the fact that the youth had been shot by a government agent, she thought some provision for his future support should be made.

RUM PARALYSIS CASES IN DIXIE MOUNT TO 202

Jackson, Miss., March 14.—(AP)—Discovery today of fourteen new cases of a paralytic malady so far undiagnosed brought to 202 the number of cases in Mississippi, Tennessee, and Georgia. Both Georgia and Mississippi health authorities have ordered analyses of samples of Jamaica ginger which a large number of victims of the ailment were reported to have used as a beverage before being stricken.

Lake Forest Population Gains 65 Pct. in Ten Years

The population of Lake Forest has increased more than 65 per cent in the last ten years, according to the figures of a new school census, announced yesterday by James King, village clerk. The new census gives the suburb a total population of 6,629. The 1920 school and federal census put the total at less than 4,000.

Drop in Food Prices Is Boon to Consumers

BY PAUL POTTER.

Housewives and others who hold the family purse strings are much gayer of late. The loss that has been taken by those participating in the world-wide overproduction of foodstuffs the last two seasons is becoming the gain of those who fill the food basket, a survey of local markets yesterday indicated.

Declining prices of grain, dairy, and poultry products, coffee, sugar, and other important farm commodities in the last few weeks have been reflected in retail prices in most of the Chicago area. Many retailers, however, continue to charge prices that prevailed when these foods were materially higher from the wholesaler.

Bakeries Fail to Act.

Bakeries foresee cheaper breadstuffs and pastries in the near future, since wholesale flour prices have descended to pre-war levels in a fortnight of demoralized wheat markets. No bakery has yet reported increasing the size of its loaves or decreasing present retail prices, however.

Wholesale prices of butter have been reduced sharply since December, with retail prices 10 and 15 cents per pound less than a year ago. Members of the National Poultry, Butter and Egg association report overproduction of butter, poultry, and eggs.

Eggs Take Big Drop.

Eggs were selling at from 22 to 28 cents per dozen wholesale yesterday, with retailers charging from 31 to 60 cents a dozen. One retailer charging prices for his eggs and butter the same as a year ago maintained that he was charging for service and credit along with the cost of the eggs. Three prominent local wholesalers contend that retailers and the producers of butter and eggs would both gain from lowering prices to promote increased consumption.

Wholesale coffee prices are virtually half what they were a year ago, while retail prices have dropped but one-fourth to one-third, and in some cases but a few cents per pound. An unprecedented amount of coffee, due chiefly to attempts of the Brazilian government to avert a calamity from overproduction of the beans, has forced present unroasted prices down to 13 cents per pound and less.

Lamb Prices Drop.

Meat prices, so far as wholesalers report, are not much lower than a year ago, or even a few months back. The exception is in lamb prices, they say, due to immense flocks coming to market from western ranges.

Yet a caucus of representative meat markets in the loop and outlying sections indicated retail lamb prices in most cases very little less than a year ago.

Restaurant owners admit little change has been made in prices on their menus, but insist that plate meals and table d'hote servings have been increased in size and variety.

Free Monday, Capone Steers Straight Home

Philadelphia, Pa., March 14.—[Special.]—Al Capone, the gang boss, said today that he is going back to Chicago, when he is turned out of Eastern penitentiary here Monday morning after a year's imprisonment on the charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

"I've never run away from anything yet," Capone explained, mildly. "That's where my home is and that's where I have most of my business interests."

Not Barred in Chicago.

There was not even a suspicion of a smile on his broad face as he said blandly: "And there's no reason why I should not go back there."

Apparently, Capone meant what he said, for although his wife and his 10 year old son are at his big Star Island home at Miami, he has made reservations on a Chicago bound train leaving here late Monday afternoon.

One decision Capone has made is to avoid publicity as much as possible hereafter.

FACES TROUBLE HERE

Whether he chooses Chicago or Miami as his permanent abode upon his discharge from prison next Monday, Alphonse Capone faces trouble, it was indicated here last night.

United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson said that if Capone comes here he will be made to answer a contempt citation issued last spring when Capone, answering a summons to appear before the federal grand jury, feigned illness in Miami and thus gained a delay.

Miami Prepares Jail.

From Florida came word that Sheriff Lehman plans to jail Capone if he appears there. Newspapers in Miami have been charging Capone interests control the gambling racket in Dade county.

"Capone rates just as any other hoodlum with the Chicago police department," said Deputy Commissioner Stege. "If he comes here toting a pistol he's to be tossed in jail."

THRONGS FILE AS INCOME TAX DEADLINE NEARS

The final rush for the filing of income tax returns began at the federal building and THE TRIBUNE Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, yesterday, at the deadline, 12 o'clock tonight, drew nearer.

More than 300 persons an hour were cared for at THE TRIBUNE bureau, making more than 16,000 who have been aided with this service, while collection clerks at the office of the internal revenue department were kept busy with late filers, particularly at noon and after 5 o'clock.

Under orders of Myrtle Tanner Blackledge, collector of internal revenue, the offices remained open until 9 o'clock last night and the clerks will work until midnight tonight, when all returns must be filed or in the mails.

Total collections at the last computation, announced yesterday, were $13,290,279.18, as compared to the total of $13,669,951.73 from Jan. 1 to March 13 last year. A total of 108,000 persons had filed returns, as against 89,400 for the same period last year.

High School Teacher's Son Is Shot at Target Practice

Two boys were accidentally shot and wounded yesterday. Ralph Stahl, 17 years old, 1723 Granville avenue, son of an instructor at Lane Technical High school, shot himself in the right heel while at target practice in the clay pit along the drainage canal at Oakton street, Evanston. Pasquale Calio, 11 years old, 1130 Lytle street, was shot in the left leg by a playmate, Henry Caritto, 13 years old, 2040 Ogden avenue, with an old revolver owned by the father of the wounded boy.

LIQUOR EXPORT BILL CHEERED BY PARLIAMENT

Premier Warns of 'War Danger.'

BY GEORGE SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Picture on back page.)

OTTAWA, Ont., March 14. — The specter of an Anglo-American war raging along the Canadian-American frontier and the "international immorality" of Canada virtually aiding border rum running gangs to violate United States dry laws have caused the Canadian government to move for the prohibition of further liquor clearances to the United States.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada in the house of commons today gave these two reasons as the major considerations for the introduction of his liquor export bill which, if enacted into Canadian law, will cut off Canada's annual $30,000,000 liquor trade with the United States and cost Canada $15,000,000 in revenue.

The bill went to second reading when the Conservatives announced they would support it. Leaders said this indicated its final passage was certain.

Sees Possibility of War.

Before crowded house galleries and a full attendance of house membership the Canadian prime minister emphasized the perils which he believed attended continued countenancing of the Canadian-American booze traffic. He let it be known for the first time that at the 1923 imperial conference in London the late Lord Curzon, then foreign secretary, in acquiescing in the American demand for high seas search of British ships suspected of carrying liquor, had held war between Great Britain and the United States to be a real possibility in the tangle of rum running difficulties. Premier King added:

"I think the danger that Lord Curzon foresaw, the danger of possible delicate situations arising between Great Britain and the United States over rum running, is as nothing compared with the delicate situation that might arise on our international frontier. So perilous do I believe the situation to be that I would not longer assume the responsibility in the matter of external affairs in relation to this matter if I were not sure I had the support of this parliament in the policy I believe to be necessary to prevent a condition which I believe may prove perilous at any day, or failing the support of this parliament, the support of the people of Canada."

May Call Election.

This last phrase of the premier's remarks was a direct notice to the Conservative opposition party that if the measure were blocked in the house he would appeal for indorsement of his liquor export ban policy to the Canadian people in a dominion election.

The Canadian premier referred the last session's refusal of his government seriously to consider a liquor export prohibition law because it was then felt the American authorities were not seriously trying to enforce the Volstead act. Events since then, notably the proposal by the United States to locate a strong border control, he said, had reversed his government's opinion in that respect.

Says Officials Aid Gangs.

"So far as this government is concerned, we believe that the United States is trying to enforce its own laws in this respect, that it is going to great lengths and that it is genuinely in earnest in regard to that enforcement, and we are ready to take further steps," he said. "We intended to do this last summer, had we the authority to do so under an order in council [direct action of the government without reference to parliament], but upon reference of this to the department of justice we found we did not have that authority."

With great warmth the premier declared that, under the present system of liquor clearances to the United States, Canadian government officials innocently enough were "direct links between the breweries and distilleries who wished to export liquor and the rum running and criminal gangs that make their profits out of the business. This is a condition which I believe the citizens of this country, when they understand it, would not wish to countenance."

Denies U. S. Dictated Bill.

The premier was at great pains to explain to the house that his bill was not being presented to parliament at "the dictation of the United States." It was rather, he said, at the dictation of the Canadian parliament itself, which in 1920 had approved a royal commission report recommending action to ban liquor exports to the United States. And in no sense, he said, was it a prohibitory law involving the rights and liberties of Canadian citizens.

Correctly anticipating the line of attack of the Conservative opposition, Premier King said his government could not be criticized as tardy for not bringing up the measure sooner. Only the lapse of time, he said, could have shown that the system of getting information to American preventive officers and banning clearances to "Mexico" of five ton liquor laden vessels, was inadequate to stop the border booze smuggling business. And in addition, the government had not felt the American authorities had sufficiently demonstrated their earnestness in the dry cause.

Opposition Supports Bill.

At almost his first utterance, Richard B. Bennett, Conservative chieftain, who followed the premier in the debate on the second reading of the bill, let parliament know that his party will vote unitedly for the measure, thus insuring its passage through the house of commons. Mr. Bennett took the precise line expected of him by the premier, when he satirized upon the lateness of the government in moving to ban liquor exports to the United States. The premier's moralizing utterance, he said, was a source of amazement to him.

While he was now donning the mantle of righteousness, he said, why had his government not moved four years ago to stem the southward liquor flow? For four years the Conservative party had been waiting for an opportunity to vote for just such a measure, he said. Liberal members howled in unbelieving laughter as Mr. Bennett made this last declaration.

May Win by Unanimous Vote.

With the Liberals applauding the premier for his vigorous support of the liquor export ban principle, Conservatives pounding their desks in approval of their leader's attitude, regretting the delay in the introduction of the bill, and Progressives applauding both, it seems tonight, with the debate barely under way, that there will not be a single opposing vote cast against the measure, and, indeed, that it may carry without even a division of the members. There may be the unprecedented spectacle of a unanimously approving vote of a major government measure.

COMPLETE JURY TO TRY 3 FOR THILO SLAYING

CRIMINAL COURT.

Ollie Turley, robbery, sentenced to life in the penitentiary by Judge Harry B. Miller.

Gilbert Wagner and Irving Boone, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life each in Pontiac reformatory by Judge D. J. Normoyle.

Jack Davis and Nick Volita, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Otto Kerner.

The jury to try the three alleged slayers of Dr. George W. Thilo was completed yesterday afternoon in Judge John J. Sullivan's Criminal court. The jurors were pledged by Assistant State's Attorneys Harry Ditchburne and Nat Ruvell to inflict the death penalty if the evidence warrants it.

The defendants are Lawrence Ogden, Raymond Scott, and Allan Goldstein. It is charged that they kicked Dr. Thilo, causing a fatal injury, during an attempt to rob him. Mrs. Thilo, the widow, will be the chief prosecution witness. It was her watchfulness that brought about the discovery months ago that the men had never been indicted for the death of her husband, but had been sent to Pontiac reformatory after conviction on the robbery charge.

The trial was continued until Monday morning when taking of testimony will be started.

PETITION SHOWS LANGGUTH BANK IS INSOLVENT

Circuit Judge William V. Brothers yesterday granted a petition for the dissolution of the People's State Bank of Maywood and appointed Anthony J. Busscher, president of the Proviso State bank of Maywood, receiver. The motion was made by State Auditor Oscar Nelson, who revealed the financial condition of the defunct bank.

On the date the auditor was called in, Feb. 7, the bank showed assets of $410,282.43 and liabilities of $527,187.51. Defalcations of Elmer P. Langguth, the bank's president, and Laverne Lindgren, cashier, both under indictment, amount to $100,000. In addition $40,000 worth of deposits do not appear on the books and there are worthless securities of $56,781. The capital stock, surplus, and undivided profits will leave the net difference at approximately $75,000, the petition states.

Lender Acts to Foreclose on Property of Feron

Further legal troubles arose yesterday to confront Police Magistrate James M. Feron of Oak Park, recently arrested and arraigned on a charge of embezzling approximately $15,000 in village funds. Miles C. Gunderson, realty dealer at 120 South La Salle street, filed in Circuit court a bill to foreclose on a store and apartment at Kostner avenue and Monroe streets, owned by Feron, and scheduled as security for a $10,000 loan obtained from Gunderson by Feron.

Got Your 1930 Auto Tags? If Not, It's Just Too Bad

A drive on all motorists who do not display 1930 state licenses and city vehicle tax tags will be started this morning by the police and investigators for the city license bureau, according to an announcement yesterday. One of the objects of the drive is to bring in the license and tax tag fees in order that state road projects can be carried out and repairs made to city pavements.

TRY PROHIBITION 10 YEARS MORE, ROBINS PLEADS

Warns Modification Will Bring Back Saloon.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 14.—[Special.]—Ending their fifth day of testimony, the organized drys today still were faced with the difficulty of matching with witnesses of equal prominence and standing those produced by the wets at the prohibition hearings before the house judiciary committee.

Today's principal dry witness was Raymond Robins, former Chicago social welfare leader, with four superintendents of city rescue mission homes and a dry organization secretary also testifying. The drys will have two more days, next Wednesday and Thursday, giving them the same time allotted to the anti-prohibitionists. Thereafter the wets will return for rebuttal.

Some Drys Disappointed.

Even some of the most partisan congressional drys, at the close of the week's hearings, were heard to express disappointment over the dry presentation, while the wets were openly jubilant. Although extremely militant and at time able, it has been apparent that the testimony of the prohibitionists has not, as yet, carried the weight of authority represented by the leading wet witnesses.

Stars on the dry side to date have been Patrick H. Callahan, Louisville manufacturer; Attorney C. P. Connolly, East Orange, N. J.; Coach A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago, and Mr. Robins. Among the wet speakers have been Pierre S. du Pont, head of the du Pont interests; W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad; Col. Grayson Murphy, manufacturer; Henry B. Joy, Detroit millionaire; former Police Chief Morgan A. Collins of Chicago; Channing Pollock, playwright; Owen Johnson, author; Benedict Crowell, former assistant secretary of war, and Breckinridge Long, former assistant secretary of state.

Line Up Church Leaders.

Against such feminine witnesses as Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, former Republican national committeewoman of New York, and Mrs. Robert W. Lovett of Boston, the drys lined up a score of church and civic organization leaders, headed by Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of Boston, and Mrs. John F. Sippel, president of the General Federation of Women's clubs.

To offset the wets' witnesses from the business world, the drys solicited Henry Ford and Thomas A. Edison. They sent telegrams, but did not appear. A statement from Prof. Irving Fisher, Yale economist, was excluded because he did not come in person.

Over the week-end, it was stated by Mrs. Lenna Yost of the W. C. T. U. and Dr. F. Scott McBride, Anti-Saloon league superintendent, the dry leaders will assemble to prepare their program for the last two days.

Although they withheld the names of any witnesses contemplated, it is believed that a strong effort will be made to produce several outstanding individuals, better known than those who have testified during the last fortnight.

Robins Makes Eloquent Plea.

Mr. Robins, whose statement occupied nearly all of the half day session this morning, made an eloquent plea for congress to support President Hoover's enforcement program and "never surrender to nullifiers, lawbreakers, and bootleg criminals." Both congress and the country are "dry in sentiment and getting drier in fact," he said, adding that the wet bills being considered by the committee do not have a "Chinaman's chance" of passage.

"Even the wets," he said, "piously declare they do not want the saloon, but a rose by any other name is still a rose. The saloon is a place where men drink liquor, and modification would bring us the saloon again, even if we painted it white, sold lilies at the door, and had Uncle Sam for a bartender."

Mr. Robins, as he taxed his vocabulary contrasting conditions in the old 17th ward of Chicago before and after prohibition, frequently pressed his brow with a handkerchief and paused for breath.

"The rise of the people in that district has been blessed since prohibition," he said. "Before they had liquor. Now they have more property, more shoes, more books. I plead, for the sake of the children, that this law be given a fair, honest test."

Calls 20 Per Cent Noisy Wets.

Questioned by Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.] as to what he meant by a "fair, honest test," Mr. Robins said he thought ten more years would be sufficient time with "the garden variety of enforcement." The "wet metropolitan newspapers," he said, are most responsible for spreading and agitating opposition to the law."

"Isn't it a fact that a big majority of all newspapers, city and otherwise, are for modification?" La Guardia asked. The witness admitted that this was true. He qualified, however, by saying that in his opinion 80 per cent of the people obey the prohibition law while a "noisy 20 per cent" make the trouble.

Mr. Robins dwelt at length upon the political aspects of prohibition, explaining that he once was a candidate for United States senator from Illinois and emphasizing his frendship with Theodore Roosevelt and the Progressive party with the remark that "I was on the Progressive ship when she sailed, on her when she sank, and would be on her today if she was afloat."

Says Both Parties Are Dry.

Robins reminded the committee that both parties, by virtue of their platforms, are dry and "dare not be otherwise." Former Gov. Al Smith he characterized as the "foremost official nullificationist under the flag," declaring that Smith was defeated primarily on the wet issue.

Only a few minutes each was allotted to the other five witnesses who were John Callahan, New York; John R. McIntyre, Germantown, Pa.; John W. Humboldt, Camden, N. J.; Frank Dippell, Philadelphia, and R. H. White, executive secretary of the fact finding committee for law enforcement of Connecticut. Each of the first four named are in charge of tenement gospel missions in their home cities.

Mission Leaders Testify.

The burden of the testimony from the mission leaders was that since prohibition the problem of drunken derelicts has diminished. Representative La Guardia asked each of them one question: "But your mission still is needed?" Obtaining affirmative answers, he closed with a brief "That's all."

Mr. White presented statistics showing a sudden drop in various types of crime and disease in Connecticut with the advent of the dry era. In each case, however, the statistics showed a gradual rise after 1921. Despite the rise, he contended, conditions are far better now than in pre-prohibition days.

U. OF C. CO-EDS ASK MORE VEGETABLES, LESS STOMACH ACHE

An appeal to the University of Chicago authorities to take the "stomach ache" out of meals served in the women's dormitories will be made by the council of university women, as a result of a survey completed yesterday.

Miss Rosa Hall Baldwin, 6062 Stony Island avenue, and Miss Maxine Creviston of South Bend, a resident of Beecher hall, interviewed 122 of the 199 women students who live in the dormitories. Of the 122 who were questioned, 31 said they had had attacks of indigestion after eating in the dormitory dining halls. Only 24 said they thought the meals served were satisfactory.

The women's council will ask the dormitory matrons and Miss Nellie Pope, manager of the commons, to serve starchy foods, more fresh vegetables, lighter luncheons, and milk for dinner.

JUDGE IMPOUNDS 2 DEATH GUNS OF BORDER OFFICERS

Court Seeks to Prevent "Further Murder."

Fort Pierce, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—Impounding two guns used by Fred Brownlee and two border patrol inspectors when they killed Perle S. Thomas near here three years ago while searching for smuggled aliens, Judge Jefferson B. Browne today said he believed his action would "tend to prevent further commission of murder or murderous assaults."

In entering an order refusing to deliver the guns back to the United States government, Judge Browne said he was taking "judicial cognizance of the many murderous assaults that have been committeed by federal officials and others and the necessity of preventing the same."

Return Motion Denied.

The judge denied a motion by Federal Attorney W. P. Hughes for return of the weapons, and in his order further set forth that he "has no assurance that if these two guns, which were used to murder an innocent citizen, be returned, the war department will not wrongfully entrust them to other murderously inclined persons."

Thomas Slain on Highway.

Thomas was killed on the highway when he failed to halt when challenged. Brownlee is serving a life sentence in state prison, following upon his conviction for first degree murder, and Farrell and Gurley, convicted of second degree murder, were paroled by the state pardon board.

SNOW HIGH UP AND RAIN BELOW IN LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., March 14.—[Special.]—Snowflakes fell on the top floors of the twenty-four story city hall, Los Angeles' highest building, today, but on the street levels nothing fell except rain, but that in such a downpour that streets both downtown and in outlying sections ran curb high from gutter to gutter during the afternoon storm.

Hail, thunder, and lightning marked the sudden, sharp storm which caused small craft to scurry for breakwater protection in the harbor and sent miniature landslides scooting down the terraces in hillside sections to block some streets. Water collected in low lying streets so rapidly and deeply that it stalled autos and male pedestrians had to carry women from them to dry doorways.

CHANNEL TUNNEL, 300 FEET UNDER SEA, WINS O. K.

$150,000,000 Plan May Employ Thousands.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 14.—As forecast by THE TRIBUNE, the channel tunnel committee, by a majority of four to one, favors construction of a tunnel from England to France in a report issued tonight.

"We believe that although some interests will be adversely affected, the construction of the channel tunnel, by creating new traffic and thus increasing trade, will be an economic advantage to the country," declares the majority report under the signatures of E. R. Peacock, chairman of the committee; Sir Clement Hindley, Sir Frederick Lewis, and Sir Henry Strakosch. The dissentient, Lord Ebbisham, opposes the scheme on economic grounds.

Would Aid Unemployment.

The majority report concludes by stating that the tunnel would cost about $150,000,000, provide employment each of the first five years to 1,000 British workmen and to 5,650 in each of the following three years. During the first year of operation it would carry 2,357,00 passengers.

The majority report states its belief the tunnel could be built at a cost which would permit traffic at rates not higher than those now in force on the shortest of the cross channel routes. This is the highest rate in force, the longer crossings costing less. The report recommends that the work should be carried out by private enterprise without government assistance.

Test Tunnel to Be Bored.

The majority report believes it probable that the geological and engineering difficulties likely to be encountered could be successfully overcome, adding, however, that "there must remain the element of doubt regarding the practicability of the scheme until the proposed pilot tunnel, estimated to cost $28,000,000, is completed."

If the pilot tunnel is successful, the subsequent constructing of two independent traffic tunnels will be regarded as practicable.

Requires French Assent.

With the presentation of the report, it is now expected that the committee of imperial defense will consider and report upon the scheme to the cabinet, who will decide on approval or not. As a channel tunnel must be a joint Anglo-French affair, the full consent of the French government would have to be expressed before any practical move could be made.

50,000 Shamrocks Arrive to Gladden Irish Hearts

A shipment of 50,000 shamrocks was received in Chicago from Ireland yesterday by the United Celtic-American Societies of Chicago for the thirteenth annual St. Patrick's day ball. The shamrocks were taken to the offices of Charles V. Barrett, member of the board of review, where they are to be held until Monday.

CLEANERS GIVEN 1928 PAY SCALE; END LONG FIGHT

Arbiter's Findings Presage Raise in Prices.

Reestablishment of harmonious relations between the Chicago master cleaners and their union employés on a collective bargaining basis is expected under a wage award handed down last night by Dr. B. M. Squires, arbiter. The award is believed to presage an early increase in the price of cleaning and dyeing.

Dr. Squires reestablishes a wage scale for union pressers and cleaners which existed in 1928, when the master cleaners refused to deal with Ben Abrams, the employés' labor agent. At that time the standard price for cleaning and pressing a man's suit was $1.75 and the fee for women's dresses was at $2.25.

But with the break between the cleaners and the union wages of some classes were lowered and this was followed by a reduction in prices.

High Wage Is $60.

Dr. Squires, a University of Chicago professor selected by both sides in the controversy, fixes the wage rate at $60 per week for fancy goods spotters. The scale then ranges down to $16 per week for women beginners.

The master cleaners last January forced a lockout of their 2,700 employés when Abrams began to install machinery in his $1,000,000 Super Method Cleaners, Inc., plant at Tripp and Diversey avenues. Failing to negotiate an agreement with the master cleaners, Abrams announced he intended entering into competition with them. The cleaners announced they would close their plants until the union rid itself of Abrams. The deadlock followed.

May Buy Union Plant.

While the master cleaners were reticent to talk about the Super Method plant it was learned they intend to purchase it as they did the first one started by Abrams a few years ago.

Five points were taken into consideration by Dr. Squires. They are wage scale, piece work, guarantee of full employment between April 1 and Oct. 31, unemployment insurance and probationary period for new employés.

Dr. Squires discusses prices as follows:

"The consumer is interested in the price he has to pay for cleaning, dyeing and pressing. It is not the intention of the impartial chairman to fix prices at this time. He does, however, intend to make public from time to time the various items of cost with their significance to the industry and to the consumer."

"To this end public accountants have been making a survey of representative cleaning and dyeing establishments. The survey so far reveals that with substantially the same cost burden in 1929 as in 1928 the firms took a loss in 1929, whereas most of them showed a profit in 1928."

'SATYRICON' ACQUITTED ON OBSCENE CHARGE; BOOKSELLER IS FREED

Judge Freeman D. Fairbank yesterday acquitted the book "Satyricon," penned in ancient Rome in the second century by Petronius Arbiter, of the designation obscene. He characterized it, instead, as boresome but inocuous, and dismissed charges against Jerrold Nedwick, a bookseller of 346 North Clark street, who sold the volume to Policeman John J. Kratsmeyer of the East Chicago avenue station.

Judge Fairbank's opinion confirmed that of Prof. Baker Brownell of Northwestern university, of Prof. T. V. Smith of the University of Chicago, and of T. R. Smith, representing Horace Liveright, New York publisher.

"Satyricon" deals with the life of the Romans of those ancient days. Nedwick told the court and newspaper men that the policeman had purchased the book at the direction of Capt. Luke Garrick, who acted on orders from the state's attorney's office. He said officials there refused to give him any information about the instigator, but that he was convinced it was a woman named Joan Comerford, who had visited his bookstore and had criticized him severely for having the volume on his shelves. He declared she told him the book was mentioned in the Loeb and Leopold murder trial, and that he ought to be prosecuted.

State and Defense Both Win in Bomb Case Ruling

The prosecution and defense split even, it was considered by court attachés, in the ruling of Judge Otto Kerner yesterday in the Criminal court on the question of what evidence the prosecution would be allowed to introduce against Joseph Cerra and Carlo Oliviero, charged with possession of bombs. The judge ruled that the state can introduce the confessions made by the defendants, but that the pipe and fuse found in Oliviero's store could not be introduced as evidence.

REVEAL GERMAN FASCIST PLOT TO UPSET REPUBLIC

Three Officers Jailed; Documents Seized.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 14.—The existence of "Fascist cells" in the reichswehr and details of a far-reaching plot to overturn the German republic were revealed today when two young reichswehr lieutenants were arrested at Ulm for criminal participation in a Fascist plot to revolutionize the reichswehr.

Their arrest follows that of a former reichswehr captain, Wendt, in Cassel, who resigned to organize Fascist "storm troops." A search of his home revealed documents compromising the Ulm officers.

Seek Support of Revolution.

The mission of the "Fascist cells" in the reichswehr is to win its support for a national Socialist, Hitlerite, or Fascist uprising, or at least to obtain oaths that the soldiers will stand by with grounded arms while the Fascist revolution is going forward, and then accept it as an accomplished fact.

Further arrests of reichswehr officers are expected hourly at Munich. The reichswehr authorities have issued a statement that they are in full control of the situation and that the recent arrests have provided them with the information needed to end the movement.

"Nearly Ready to Strike."

The real organizer of the Fascisti in Germany is Gregor Atrasser, a Bavarian deputy in the reichstag, who edits the Fascist newspaper and directs the actions of the Hitlerites. He is trying to win over the Nationalists, under Alfred Hugenburg, to the Fascist cause. He claims that the number of his secret supporters has increased like an avalanche since the acceptance of the Young plan.

"We are not quite ready to strike yet, but we soon shall be," he said.

ROAR IN HOUSE AS U. S. STEEL IS GIVEN 33 MILLION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 14.—[Special.]—Approval by the treasury of a huge tax refund to the United States Steel corporation brought a protest today from Representative John Garner [Dem., Tex.], on the floor of the house. Mr. Garner, who is ranking minority member of the house ways and means committee and also a member of the joint committee on internal revenue taxation, to which refunds are reported by the treasury, charged that the refund was railroaded through the joint committee without an opportunity for proper investigation.

The amount awarded to the steel corporation totals about $33,500,000, of which 12 million represents accumulated interest. It represents disputed excess profits taxes during the war period from 1918 to 1920. It brings total tax refunds to the steel corporation, including interest, during the last four years, up to $97,717,848.12. The grand total of refunds and credits has amounted to $75,530,511.71, while interest has amounted to $22,187,336.41.

Favors Settlement by Courts.

Of the refund just approved, a considerable part is to be credited to the steel corporation in lieu of taxes due tomorrow on 1929 earnings, the balance being paid to the corporation in cash. Representative Garner asserted that the government would have been saved if the entire controversy had been settled in the courts instead of by negotiation. He accused Secretary of the Treasury Mellon of favoritism in tax refund cases.

"I say go into the courts and let them settle it," Mr. Garner declared, "and I, for one, am willing to vote a $10,000 fee for a special attorney to settle once and for all the issues that are involved in the matter of the largest taxpayer in the United States.

"The present method of settling is one of the things that is not understandable, of which the members of congress are suspicious. We cannot get into the treasury to find out what they are doing."

Sees Some "Influence."

Mr. Garner said that the amortization allowance on war properties for the Steel corporation was fixed originally at 55 million dollars, but after criticisms by the Couzens senatorial committee in 1924 and 1925 it was reduced to 19 million. It was raised, he said, to 22 million in 1928 and to 32 million later the same year.

"The testimony is that practically the same engineers worked on this," said Mr. Garner. "Something must influence them besides their own judgment. If the treasury department had settled with the Steel corporation at the time of the Couzens report, we would not have refunded a nickel, but they did not do it. They postponed and postponed and now we pay 33 million dollars plus."

Mr. Garner said that there are more refunds to corporations and individuals in the state of Pennsylvania than anywhere else.

"One of three things must undoubtedly have occurred in the state of Pennsylvania," he said. "Either they are the most generous taxpayers of any state in the Union, rendering more taxes to the government than they owe it, or else they are the most ignorant people and do not know how to make out their tax returns, or they are the most favored people in making our tax refunds. I guess you know which one of these I think."

Mr. Garner said that "if the Democrats ever get control we are going to look into Uncle Andy's book."

Believes Mellon Is Making Haste.

"Just remember that," added Mr. Garner. "He knows it, too, and he is preparing for it. He is settling these cases while the settling time is good. He is settling these cases with these gentlemen from Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. These corporations in which we know the secretary of the treasury has a large interest and which are controlled by his family are making these compromises with the treasury department. Secretary Mellon makes a compromise with President Mellon of some company."

In referring to a meeting of the joint congressional committee at which the steel corporation refund was considered Mr. Garner said that three Democrats were outvoted by the one Republican present—Representative W. G. Hawley [Rep.], Ore.], the chairman, who held five proxies. Mr. Garner said Mr. Hawley put the motion to himself and then put it through with his proxies.

FEDERAL BOARD REVIEWS NAVY RESERVE FORCE

The annual inspection of the 5th battalion of the 4th naval reserve area, 9th naval district, was made by members of the federal inspection board last night in the naval reserve armory at the foot of Randolph street. Five divisions of naval reserves and one company of marine corps reserves, under the command Capt. Edward A. Ayers, were reviewed.

The navy members of the inspection board are Capt. C. A. Blakely, Commanders C. C. Slayton and R. A. White, all of Washington, D. C., and Capt. D. W. Bagley, assistant commandant of the Great Lake naval training station. Other officers who aided in the inspection were Lieutenant Commander E. L. Carlson of the 5th battalion, and Col. W. E. Swanson, U. S. army.

Mechanic Dies Spinning Propeller for Aviator

Roosevelt Field, L. I., March 14.—[Special.]—Spinning the propeller on an airplane by hand claimed another life today at Roosevelt field No. 2, when a mechanic, H. Kohl, volunteered to "turn her over" for Roger W. Williams, trans-Atlantic flyer, preparing for a test flight in an amphibian monoplane. Kohl was in the employ of Charles A. Levine. The blades of the propeller mangled him so badly that he died before reaching the hospital at Mineola.

SACRIFICES $800,000 FOR LOVE

MRS. LEE W. CARROLL.

Son Gets Estate

New York, March 14.—[Special.]—Mrs. Audrey Loder Coward, widow of the late head of the Coward Shoe company, sacrificed $800,000 today to wed the second man of her choice, Lee W. Carroll, a young New York broker.

The will of Mrs. Coward's first husband, J. Mortimer Coward, provided a $1,300,000 trust fund for her with the stipulation that it should be reduced to $500,000 if she married again. Coward died in March, 1928. Under the will the remainder of the residuary third of the estate will go to the manufacturer's son.

The wedding today took place in the chapel of St. Bartholomew's church with the Rev. George P. Dougherty officiating. A reception at the Park Lane hotel followed the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. Michael F. Bauer of Glen Ridge, N. J. Only a few relatives and friends were in attendance.

Announcement of the engagement was made early in February.

DENEEN WORKER IS HELD WITHOUT BAIL IN SLAYING

Contempt Threat in Stormy Hearing.

John Pampinella, a Deneen worker in the 42d ward, yesterday was held without bail by Municipal Judge John Sbarbaro in Felony court on a charge of slaying William H. Slaughter, Negro worker for the Thompson forces, last Tuesday, registration day. The court session was stormy, ending with a threat by the judge of contempt proceedings against Richard J. Prendergast, Deneen leader of the 42d ward, after Prendergast had utterd a tirade against the police department.

Meanwhile, Lieut. George De Mar of the Chicago avenue police announced that he had obtained additional evidence substantiating the charge against Pampinella. He said he had found several witnesses who declare they saw Pampinella and Slaughter enter a house together less than a half hour before Slaughter was found dying of bullet wounds in an alley near his polling place at 603 Division street.

Prendergast Assails Police.

Prendergast, who in 1928 was defeated for alderman of the ward by Dorsey Crowe, has appeared throughout the case as counsel for Pampinella and it was Judge Sbarbaro's decision to deny Pampinella bail that brought from Prendergast his attack on the police.

Instantly Judge Sbarbaro stopped the court proceedings and instructed that a contempt citation be drawn against Prendergast. The attorney, reddening, offered his apologies, and an hour later, after further apologies, the judge dismissed the contempt action.

Bundesen Continues Inquest.

Coroner Bundesen continued the inquest into Slaughter's death to March 25 to admit of further inquiry by the police. Lieut. De Mar said the statements of his new witnesses tend to corroborate that of William Fuller, colored, 1321 Vine street, who said he saw Pampinella enter the alley with Slaughter. Fuller later retracted his identification of Pampinella. De Mar said he will keep his new witnesses under surveillance to prevent them from being intimidated.

Slaughter was killed within a stone's throw of Milton and Hobbie streets, known for more than a generation as the "death corner" of the north side Sicilian quarter, the scene of many unsolved assassinations.

LAWYERS' CLASH ADDS HUMOR TO PRIMARY BATTLE

Everybody closely in touch with politics got a laugh yesterday from a conflict of opinion between Attorney General Carlstrom and Charles Center Case, attorney for the Chicago election board.

The clash was not a head-on affair, since, according to the record, apparently neither official adviser knew that the other had been called upon for a formal opinoin on th subject in question. Their findings bear different dates. On March 8 Attorney Case ruled that persons who voted in the 1928 primary of one party cannot shift to another party this year. And on March 10 Attorney General Carlstrom ruled the opposite.

But the laugh came in because Attorney Case said in his opinion that the contention advanced two days later by the attorney general was "senseless."

While there has been no official decision to that effect, it is expected that the Chicago election commissioners will follow the advice of their own counsel, Mr. Case, and that all polling place officials will be instructed to rule upon challenges in accordance with it.

Chairman Maguire and his associates declined to discuss Deneen faction attacks on the selection of judges and clerks for the primary. They denied that Miss Harriet Vittum had been "turned down" by the board and said that her commission as an election official was issued on Thursday.

CAFE ROBBERS KILL WAITRESS.

Pearl Jennings, 30 years old and colored, a waitress in a Negro restaurant at 3651 Vernon avenue, was shot in the abdomen and fatally wounded yesterday by one of three Negro robbers, who snatched $12 from the cash drawer and escaped. The woman died in the Wilson hospital.

YOUTH DIES, 2 HURT AS TRAIN CRUSHES AUTO

William Bates, 26 years old, 1223 Greenfield avenue, Waukegan, was fatally injured yesterday when the automobile in which he was riding was struck by a Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee train at a grade crossing on 15th street in North Chicago. His two companions, Isadore Tillis, 25 years old, 673 Kennard avenue, Waukegan, driver of the car, and William Woods, 32 years old, 1420 Elizabeth street, North Chicago, were seriously injured.

Three deaths yesterday raised the 1920 Cook county motor toll to 182. The victims:

Howard Amberg, 16 years old, 7613 Calumet avenue. Died in the Auburn Park hospital of injuries received when the motorcycle he was riding struck an automobile at 77th street and Indiana avenue Thursday.

Paul L. Herman, 58 years old, 1217 Wellington avenue. Died in the Swedish American hospital of injuries received Thursday when he was struck by an automobile at Kedzie and Eastwood avenues.

John McInteer, 48 years old, 4200 Vincennes avenue. Fatally injured when he was struck at State and 16th street by an automobile driven by Joseph Nienajadlo, 968 West Chicago avenue.

Admiral Gregory Placed on 1933 Fair Executive Group

The appointment of Rear Admiral L. E. Gregory, civil engineer corps, U. S. N., retired, to the staff of the 1933 Century of Progress exposition was announced yesterday by the executive committee. Until last December Admiral Gregory was chief of the bureau of yards and docks of the navy department, and recently was appointed by President Hoover as a member of a commission to study the problem of building a bridge across San Francisco bay.

CHICAGO CHEATS TEACHING FUND, FIGURES REVEAL

Behind Other Cities of Over 500,000.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The National Educational association in its latest bulletin shows that Chicago spends a smaller percentage of its disbursements for instruction than any other of 10 American cities of more than 500,000 inhabitants. At the same time, Chicago is shown to spend a larger percentage for cleaning, heatin, and lighting of schoolhouses than any of these other cities.

On the basis of the average percentage for these 10 cities, Chicago spent $3,490,130 too much last year for the operation of its schoolhouses and $3,569,000 too little for the instruction of the children. The National Education association indicates that Mayor Thompson's school board took approximately $3,500,000 away from the teachers and used it to create jobs in the operation of the schoolhouses.

How Money Was Spent.

The percentage of disbursements for current expenses, for instruction and operation of plant in the 10 cities in the school year of 1928-'29, is shown in the following tabulation:

City—	Instruction.	Operation of plant.
Chicago	69.63	14.51
St. Louis	74.37	9.86
Cleveland	72.95	10.45
Pittsburgh	75.53	11.51
Philadelphia	77.76	7.62
Detroit	78.18	11.66
Los Angeles	78.51	8.92
San Francisco	79.84	8.69
New York	80.25	6.21
Baltimore	80.31	10.00
Average [10 cities]	77.26	8.99

If Chicago's school board had spent only 8.99 per cent of its disbursements for operation of the schoolhouses—the average of the 10 cities—instead of 14.51 per cent, as it did, the plant operation would have cost only $4,004,662, instead of the amount it actually cost, $7,494,792. This $3,490,000 waste is due to politics, according to the four building managers employed by the board to investigate the subject. The building managers' report is printed in the official records of the board. It was printed in the proceedings before the board made its 1929 and 1930 budgets, yet the amount appropriated for operation of plant this year is approximately the amount spent during the last school year, according to the National Education association, which says it obtained its figures from the Chicago board of education.

Use New York as Model.

In their appeal to the state legislature at the last session for more money President Caldwell of the board and the school lawyers referred to New York as a model for school expenditures. New York spent 80.25 per cent of its income for instruction, as compared with 69.63 per cent in Chicago. On that basis, taking into consideration the fact that $53,263,232 was spent for current expenses of the Chicago schools, it is indicated that $5,656,555 was denied for the instruction of children here.

On schoolhouse operation New York spent 6.21 per cent of its income, as contrasted with 14.51 per cent in Chicago. According to these figures, $4,410,548 too much was spent on the schoolhouse cleaning, heating, and lighting. If New York is taken as a model, Chicago should have spent only $3,084,244 last year instead of the $7,494,792 it actually expended.

The National Education association also compiled data on school expenditures in 47 cities of 100,000 to 500,000 population. Of these only one city, Reading, Pa., spent less of its income for instruction last year than Chicago, and not one of these cities spent as large a percentage of its income for operation of the plant as did Chicago.

LAKE FOREST FOLKS DECIDE THEY WANT HIGH SCHOOL OF OWN

A movement to establish an independent school district in Lake Forest, with its own high school, was started yesterday with the circulation of petitions asking the county superintendent of schools, T. A. Simpson, to create the district. Lake Forest children now attend the Deerfield-Shields district high school at Deerfield, five miles from Lake Forest.

Lake Forest citizens claim that they are now being assessed approximately $1,100 a year for each pupil attending the district high school and are paying one-half of the cost of operating it. Approximately 200 of the 1,400 students enrolled live in Lake Forest. R. L. Sandwick, superintendent of the high school, pointed out that the tax burden on the town is not as disproportionate as it seems, because so many Lake Forest residents send their children to private schools and do not take advantage of the district institution.

TAXPAYERS WILL GET THEIR BILLS FOR 1928 IN JULY

Barrett Sets Time at Hearing.

Taxpayers in Chicago and throughout Cook county will get their first tax bills in two years—those for 1928—about July 1 next. Charles V. Barrett of the board of review made this prediction yesterday in a hearing before the revenue legislation investigation committee, of which State Senator Arthur Huebsch of Brookfield is chairman.

The hearing opened at 10:30 a. m. in the Hotel La Salle and continued until 3:30 p. m. Besides Mr. Barrett, Harry S. Cutmore, director of the reassessment, and James W. Wolfe, secretary of the Chicago Fireproof building association, were the only witnesses.

Mr. Cutmore said 1928 tax books will be out of the assessors' hands by about June 1. Mr. Barrett said the reviewers will complete their work about July 1. Mr. Cutmore said the 1929 books will be out of the assessors' hands about Nov. 1, and Mr. Barrett said the board of review will complete their work in time to permit the bills to be sent out Jan. 1, 1931. The taxpayers will get their 1930 tax bills about June 1, 1931, it was predicted.

City Taxes to Be Cut.

The tax experts told the committee that city taxes will be slightly reduced, while those for the country towns will be slightly higher than heretofore. They said the taxpayers in the south and west towns especially will get lower bills, while those in north town and the Calumet section probably will have to pay higher taxes.

Mr. Wolfe advocated that a state income tax be put into effect and the real estate tax be wiped out. He predicted that many owners of apartment buildings and apartment hotels will be unable to meet three years' bills in one year.

Start on 1929 Assessment.

The assessment books for the towns of Rogers Park and Lake View having been returned to the assessors by the board of review, work on the 1929 assessment was started yesterday by Mr. Cutmore.

The grievance committee of the Chicago Bar association was asked by Attorney Otto R. Barnett, a resident of Glencoe, to rule on the ethics of the law firm of Urion, Drucker, Reichman & Boutell in its relation with the North Shore Citizens' association, an organization of property owners seeking a reduction of assessments in New Trier. Attorney Barnett said the firm has solicited filing of complaints on a contingent basis to secure reductions without going into the justice of individual complaints. The firm, of which County Commissioner Boutell, a candidate for assessor, is a member, denied the charge.

Months of Search Fail to Find Plane.

Reno, Nev., March 14.—(AP)—The Nevada State Journal tomorrow will say that the missing Western Air Express mail plane, which disappeared Jan. 10, carried $75,000 in currency and securities amounting to nearly a quarter of a million dollars.

The Journal also will say that the country over which Pilot Maurice Graham was flying has been thoroughly searched and that searching parties believe Graham's plane never landed in the storm swept territory.

Members of the searching parties, the Journal says in the article, expressed the belief that if the plane landed it was destroyed and the body of the pilot buried by those who robbed the wreck.

VANISHED IN SNOWSTORM.

Pilot Graham vanished the night of Jan. 10 during a terrific snowstorm. He took off at 10 o'clock at night from Las Vegas, Nev., for Salt Lake City, with 640 pounds of mail. A search was started by plane, supplemented by foot parties, that extended over four states and lasted for weeks. At various times there were rumors that his plane had been found, but these proved false.

Trio Rob Man and Wife in Auto; Get Gems and $500

Joseph P. Bergl, 2211 Austin boulevard, Cicero, and his wife were robbed of $500 in cash and jewelry valued at $2,100 last night by three bandits who held them up in front of 2449 South Ridgeway avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Bergl were just starting to drive away from the house, where they had been visiting, when the bandits drove up beside their car. While one of them covered Mr. and Mrs. Bergl, the other two took the money and a $900 stickpin from Bergl and a $1,200 diamond ring from Mrs. Bergl.

SANITARY TRIALS POSTPONED TILL PRIMARY IS OVER

Carey Case Also Delayed; Swanson Silent.

The two most important pending criminal prosecutions with political aspects—those against Timothy J. Crowe, former president of the sanitary district and Democratic leader, and Bishop Archibald Carey, Thompson political leader in the south side colored district and a member of the civil service commission—will not be tried until after the April primary. This was learned yesterday at the office of State's Attorney Swanson, who obtained the indictments against Crowe and twelve other sanitary district officials nearly a year ago and against Carey more than four months ago.

Crowe and his co-defendants were indicted on May 3, 1929, on conspiracy charges of squandering the taxpayers' money in whoopee parties and by padding pay rolls and paying excessive sums for district work.

Await New Indictments.

The sanitary district case will not be taken before a jury until new indictments are returned, perhaps this month or perhaps after the primary, it was announced. No trials are regarded as probable until late spring or early summer.

A reporter yesterday sought information as to when the sanitary cases would be tried. A vain effort was made to interview Prosecutor Swanson on the subject. He emerged from his office with his hat and coat on and started at such a rapid rate for the building exit that his bodyguard and chauffeur trotted to keep up with him. He was asked about the sanitary district prosecutions. He refused to give any information.

"Ask Northup; he knows all about that," said Mr. Swanson as he continued in his rapid stride out the door and down to his waiting automobile. He did not explain the reason for his haste.

Northup Is Interviewed.

Northup was interviewed on the subject. He has been working for weeks behind locked doors without making a public announcement of his plans.

"When will new indictments be returned?" he was asked.

"I hope to get them through this month; maybe it will be next month," he replied.

"When will any of the sanitary district cases be tried?" was the next question.

"I hope to get one of them started before the court vacation period," Mr. Northup said. "Of course, I cannot say anything definite. I am only telling what I hope to do."

Decision on Trials Later.

The reason given at the state's attorney's office for the failure to bring the nearly year old sanitary indictments to trial has been that new indictments are to be asked on reported evidence of contract juggling and perhaps bribery. It is said that Northup's plan is to name the trustees individually in indictments and then to decide which ones he wants to take before a jury.

It has never been publicly stated at the prosecutor's office that Mr. Swanson is dissatisfied with the indictments obtained on the evidence produced through the investigations of Frank J. Loesch, but it has been said that new indictments are to be obtained. Swanson assumed charge of the sanitary district cases immediately after taking office in December, 1929, but did not turn them over to Northup until after the indictments had been returned.

The trustees named in the pending indictments, besides Crowe, are James M. Whalen and John J. Touhy, Democrats; John K. Lawler and August W. Miller, Thompson-Crowe Republicans, and Frank J. Link, Deneen Republican.

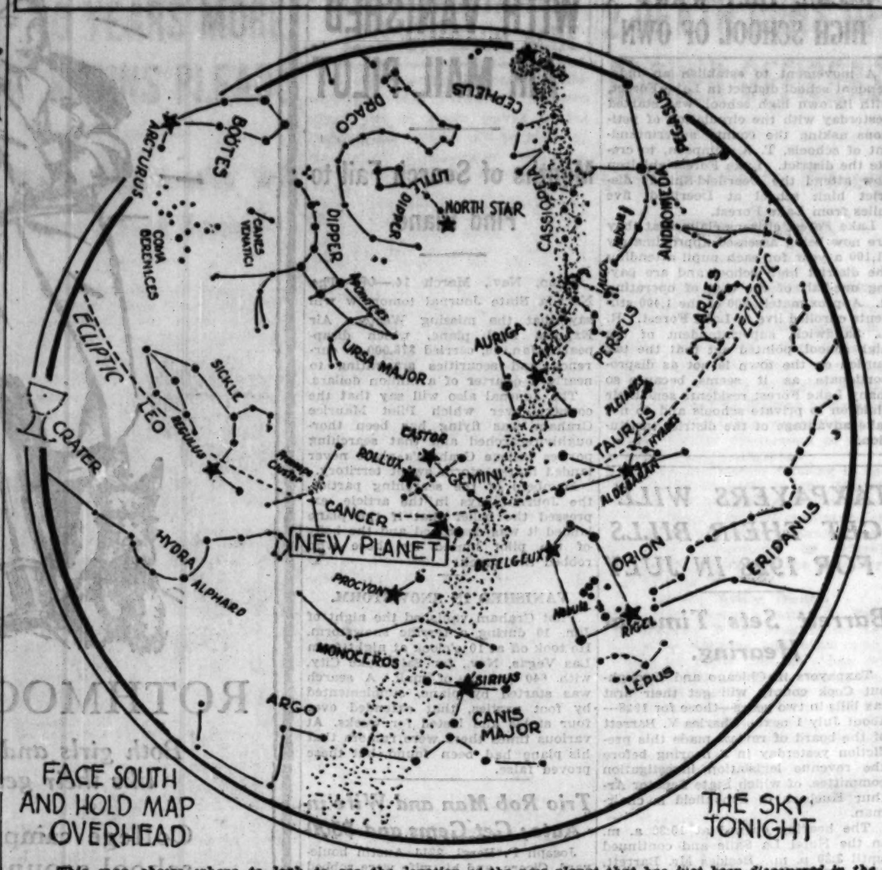
Carey Indicted in November.

The indictment against Bishop Carey was returned on Nov. 1, 1929. He is named in two charges of conspiracy and bribery in connection with alleged payments of money for civil service jobs. Although indicted last year, Carey has been in court only once, that being on Jan. 30, when the case was set for trial for March 24 before Judge Otto Kerner.

Attachés of Judge Kerner's court said they had been informed that the state had agreed to allow Carey another 30 day continuance. This would permit the trial to be held after primary day, April 8. There were reports that Attorney Leonard Reid of the law firm of Litsinger, Healy & Reid, which is headed by Edward R. Litsinger, had interceded in behalf of the further postponement of Carey's trial. Reid does not appear of record as Carey's attorney.

State's Attorney Swanson's hasty departure yesterday prevented the asking of questions about the Carey case.

WHERE TO FIND THE NEW PLANET



This map shows where to look to see the location of the new planet that has just been discovered in the solar system. The new world itself is not visible to the naked eye, due to its enormous distance from the earth, but at present it lies almost in front and a little to the west of the bright star Delta Geminorum. Delta Geminorum is the fourth brightest star in the constellation of Gemini, and is plainly visible to the naked eye. Other bright stars in the vicinity are Castor, Pollux, and Procyon. The constellation of Gemini lies directly south at 8 o'clock tonight, and rather high up, and with the aid of the above chart it should not be hard to locate.

PERSHING AND HURLEY INVITED TO RESERVE OFFICERS' CONVENTION

Gen. John J. Pershing and Secretary of War Patrick Hurley were invited yesterday to speak at the convention of the Reserve Officers' association to be held March 28 and 29 at the North Shore hotel in Evanston. Troops from Fort Sheridan, sailors from the Great Lakes station, and National Guard units will take part in military maneuvers on the lake front on the second day of the convention.

Assert New Planet Sustains Newton and Refutes Einstein

New York, March 14.—[Special.]—Discovery of the new trans-Neptunian planet was described by astronomers today as a triumph for Newtonian mathematics and a serious setback for Einstein's theory, a dimensional curvature in space-time. Meanwhile speculation was rife in scientific circles as to what the new world, now officially nameless, would be finally christened.

Several suggestions have been made by other astronomers such as the name Atlas, and also Prometheus.

Mrs. Percival Lowell, widow of the late Prof. Lowell, suggested from her home in Cambridge, Mass., that the newly discovered sphere be named "Percival," in honor of her husband, whose work led to its ultimate discovery.

Meanwhile, Prof. John Q. Stewart of the Princeton astronomical department, drew a gloomy picture of the probable atmospheric conditions on the new plant.

"Since the new planet is about forty-five times as far from the sun as the earth," he said, "it is receiving 2,000 times less heat. An elementary calculation shows that its temperature on the sunlit side does not exceed 350 degrees below zero Fahrenheit."

"Triumph for Newton."

But it was the mathematical implications in the discovery that seemed to excite the astronomers most, especially as they bear on the Newton-Einstein controversy.

"It is a triumph for the classical Newtonian mechanics and Newton's formulation of gravitation, which Einstein pretended to discard," said Charles Lane Poor, professor of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and fellow of the Royal Astronomical society.

"It is a very great triumph for Newton's basic theory of gravitation," he adds, "as distinguishing from Einstein's attempt to substitute what he calls a four dimensional curvature of space-time."

The same view was taken by Dr. Clyde Fisher, curator of astronomy at the American Museum of Natural History. Dr. Fisher said: "The discovery of this new planet at a time when so much has been said about Einstein as the only modern guide to the universe will serve as a demonstration of the enduring sufficiency of Newton's concepts."

CHICAGO MAY SEE PHOTOS.

So that the Chicagoans may see the visual record of the existence of the new planet beyond Neptune, Prof. Philip Fox, director of the Adler planetarium, yesterday sena a request to the Lowell observatory, Flagstaff, Ariz., asking for copies of all photographs made of the new body with the observatory's instruments.

"We've no doubt that they will comply with our request when they can find the time," Prof. Fox said, "but now they are, of course, tremendously active checking their important discovery."

Observers at the Yerkes observatory of the University of Chicago at Williams Bay, Wis., plan to search the heavens for a sight of the new planet tonight.

11 TAYLOR COLTS SEIZED IN DRIVE TO CURB GANGS

Police War on Hoodlums in Stockyards Area.

As part of Deputy Commissioner Stege's campaign to clean up the Stockyards district and prevent an outbreak of gang warfare there as a result of the recent murder of John [Dingbat] Oberta, two detective bureau squads last night seized 11 men in a raid on the clubhouse of the Taylor Colts, successors to the notorious Ragan's Colts, at 5509 South Halsted street.

Detective squads patrolled the district throughout the night with orders to arrest all known hoodlums and to close their haunts.

The men arrested at the club house are Hayden Stedman, 5227 South Green street; Ralph Cassidy, 5306 Emerald avenue; Emmett Burke, 5627 South Peoria street; Thomas Dore, 1121 Garfield boulevard; Joseph Durkin, 5717 South Green street; John Prendergast, 6542 South Peoria street; Joseph O'Brien, 5412 South Union avenue; William O'Connor, 5210 Emerald avenue; William O'Malley, 739 West 54th place; John McDonald, 1348 West 77th street, and John Cunneen, 7559 South Union avenue.

None of the men was armed, but the police took all of them to the bureau of identification for investigation.

10,000 Seized in Drive.

Since starting the general campaign against hoodlums five weeks ago the police have rounded up more than 10,000 prisoners, approximately 4,000 of whom had police records. Included in the number were many known as "big shots" in gangdom, 12 of whom are among the 29 indicted for gun toting, since the police crusade started.

Of the 12, nine are Capone gangsters, according to Stege, who pointed to the cases against them as evidence that Capone's henchmen have not received immunity from the police. The nine are Frankie Diamond, Jack McGurn, Tony Accardo, Danny Stanton, Sam Lambino, Albert Ruggio, Louis Clemente, Nick Muscato, and James Belcastro.

Because of the illness of their attorney, Everett Jennings, Judge Miller yesterday continued the cases of William (Three Fingered Jack) White and George Barker, ex-convict, business agents of the Teamsters' union, and Bernard O'Donnell, brother of Myles O'Donnell, gangster, who are accused of gun carrying. The trial date was set for March 24.

Arrests Sentenced Pair.

Aaron Moshelk and Morris Bogoslowski, both at liberty under $10,000 bonds pending an appeal from a sentence for forgery, were arrested yesterday at Wrightwood avenue and Clark street by Sergts. Roy Van Herik and William Drury. They will be sent to the bureau of identification to determine whether they are wanted for any recent crimes.

Five youth were arrested at Halsted and Lake streets when a pistol was found in their automobile. They are Anthony Digirolano, 18 years old, 832 South Hermitage avenue; Nunzio Truffa, 18 years old, 726 South Hermitage avenue; Pasquale Ziffiro, 19 years old, 900 Garibaldi place; Alex Pope, 21 years old, 1932 Harrison street, and Anthony Scheillo, 21 year olds, 1308 Oregon street.

HANGS HIMSELF IN MORGUE.

Thomas Jerrik, 73 years old, an inmate of the Bohemian Old People's home, 5061 North Crawford avenue, hanged himself yesterday in the morgue of the home. He had been an inmate of the institution for 15 years and had been ill for three years.

ALDERMEN TO HEAR BANKERS TODAY ON CAR FINANCE PLAN

Frank O. Wetmore of the First National bank and Harry L. Stuart of Halsey, Stuart & Co. of the bankers' committee are scheduled to discuss controversial points on a transit franchise with the council local transportation committee this morning. Mr. Stuart comes from New York especially for this meeting. Arthur Reynolds of the Continental Illinois bank, third member of the bankers' committee, is in California.

If an agreement is reached, the bankers' committee has promised to complete its plan for consolidating the present elevated and surface lines. The chief points, which are blank spaces in the tentative draft of the franchise, relate to the return to be allowed the company, the amount of compensation to be paid the city, the cost of street paving and cleaning, and the construction of subways. Of these the most serious appears to be whether the aldermen will insist that the car riders pay for street cleaning and paving or whether those expenses shall be paid by the taxpayers generally.

The council committee has announced that it will make formal reply to the bankers' suggestions after hearing what Messrs. Stuart and Wetmore have to say.

ESCAPES CELL OF PRISON, NOT ITS SHACKLES

Judge's Strict Rules to Bind Man 5 Years.

A probation that will have many of the aspects of prison life was imposed yesterday on Albert Hoffman, 26 year old bond salesman of Davenport, Ia., by Federal Judge Woodward.

Hoffman had been sentenced to two years at Leavenworth penitentiary and fined $1,000, after his conviction with John W. Loftus, former police lieutenant, of violating the Dyer act against trafficking in stolen automobiles.

Judge Lays Down Terms.

The youth, tall, slender, and with no bearing of one unaccustomed to manual labor, appealed to Judge Woodward for probation and another chance. During his five years of probation, Hoffman must observe these restrictions on his freedom, as imposed by the court:

Pay the $1,000 fine within ten days.

Remain in gainful occupation.

Refrain from owning or operating an automobile, except to drive one in direct connection with his employment, and that within a daily radius of 50 miles.

Refrain from joy rides in automobiles or airplanes.

Visit his mother in Chicago once each month, for not more than five days, and the trips to and from Chicago must be made over the shortest route.

Abstain from intoxicating liquors and all places where gambling is carried on or intoxicating liquors are sold.

Report to the probation officer, Deputy United States Marshal Peter J. Eriewein, after each visit to his mother, telling of the theaters he has visited and of his other forms of amusement. The reports must be in the form of affidavits.

Likes Expensive Cars.

Hoffman admitted a propensity for expensive automobiles and said he bought one with money gained at gambling. He and Loftus were convicted of being connected with an auto theft ring, headed by Ted and Lee Baldwin, which stole more than 200 cars in 1927 and 1928. Loftus was sentenced to four years' imprisonment and fined $5,000.

DOZEN SMALLPOX CASES FOUND IN 2 NORTH SUBURBS

With twelve cases of small pox now under observation in Evanston and Northfield, north shore physicians must guard against an epidemic. This warning was given yesterday by Health Commissioner John W. H. Pollard of Evanston at a meeting of the Evanston branch of the Chicago Medical society.

Dr. Pollard said that the five small pox cases in Evanston were the first occuring there in two years. Eight hundred persons, mainly school pupils who were exposed to the disease, have been vaccinated and 7,000 others will be examined for symptoms within the next week, Dr. Pollard said.

The remaining seven cases are confined to one family at Northfield, Dr. Pollard was informed, and this family contracted the disease from a son who is presumed to have caught it in an Evanston school.

ROBBED OF $150 BY THREE BANDITS.

James Sharras was robbed of $150 yesterday by three gunmen who entered his shoe shining parlor at 5837 Division street.

Jackie Patterson, 5 years old, who spent a night in the County hospital after swallowing contents of bottle he found in the alley back of his home at 1533 Mohawk street, with his brother, Eddie, 3 years old.

FAHERTY GAVELS DOWN PROTESTS ON PAVING JOB

The protests of a number of property owners were overridden yesterday when Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, wielded the gavel in a public hearing on 34 street paving and sewer improvement projects. The board approved projects which will cost approximately $2,400,000.

Led by Attorney Bailey Samelow, nearly 200 property owners vocally objected to the resurfacing of Charles street between 95th and 103d streets at a cost of $49,500. Attorney Samelow, who said he represented more than 80 per cent of the property owners, demanded that the matter go over until it could be finished by private contract.

"I have no interest in private contracts," said Faherty. "If you don't like the order you can stop it by a court petition."

The largest project calls for the paving of 103d street between Cottage Grove and Torrence avenues at a cost of $655,000. Another section of this street between Western and California avenues was ordered paved at a cost of $101,000.

Court Rebukes Wearer of Derby; Finds It's a Co-ed

"Take off your hat in court," he barked.

"I'm sorry, sir," answered the derby wearer in a soprano voice. Peering over the bench, the magistrate saw Miss Jane Ripley, 19 yers old, Northwestern university student, who had been arrested for speeding. She was attired in a riding habit.

The magistrate apologized and permitted her to keep the derby on her head while he fined her $5.

Only a Stomach Ache

Five year old Jackie Patterson, 1533 Mohawk street, was back at home with his parents yesterday after a night with a severe stomach ache in the County hospital. On Thursday afternoon Jackie found a pill bottle in the alley behind his home. He had eaten most of the pills and was wailing with pain when a neighbor, Mrs. M. J. Fasano, a former nurse, found him. Physicians at the county hospital pumped out his stomach and kept some of the pills for chemical analysis.

OFFICER KILLED BY FLEEING GANG OF BANK BANDITS

3 Others Are Wounded in Fierce Gun Fights.

Cheyenne Wells, Colo., March 14.—(AP)—One Colorado officer was killed and three others wounded in gunfire with the trio of desperadoes who robbed the Manter, Kas., State bank of $4,000 today. The bandits turned back into Kansas tonight after commandeering automobiles at pistol points.

Deputy Sheriff Charles Hickman of Eads was shot to death in a pitched battle when officers sought to halt the robbers two miles east of Eads. Deputy Sheriff Bill Mosher was shot in the leg.

Race Through Vigilantes.

Five miles west of here one of the several hurriedly organized posses in eastern Colorado clashed with the bandits. Sheriff William Coe was wounded in the left leg and Deputy Sheriff George Hollingshead suffered an arm wound.

Racing through other vigilantes, the trio took the automobile of Fred Hadley, a deputized citizen, and fled eastward into Kansas.

Near the Colorado line they overtook two youths and abandoned their car for the one in which the boys were riding. At Kanorado they compelled a filling station attendant to fill their gasoline tank and near Ruleton, about nine miles east of U. S. highway No. 40, they passed a sheriff from Goodland, Kas., who was on the lookout for the car they had abandoned.

Throw Pursuers Off Trail.

The trail led on past Colby, Kas., where several cars were in hot pursuit. The bandits eluded the pursuers, however, by doubling back to Colby and changing their course. It was believed they either continued eastward or headed south from Colby.

The bandit search was centered in the same country that was combed for days almost two years ago for the gang that robbed the First National bank of Lamar, Colo., May 23, 1928, and killed four men during and after the holdup.

MINNEAPOLIS CHICAGO ST. PAUL

MR. HUSTON DOES UNTO LOBBY FOES AS THEY TO HIM

He Barks Back at Snarls of Senator Blaine.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 14.—[Special.]—Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee, nagged at for three days by a group of hostile senate lobby investigators, turned suddenly on his tormentors today and read them a lesson in courtesy.

Denied the right by Senator J. J. Blaine [Rep., Wis.] to file a statement explaining his Muscle Shoals lobby activities, Mr. Huston, who usually is mild mannered, angrily told the coalition-controlled committee if it cannot extend ordinary courtesy it need expect none from him.

Questioning to Be Resumed.

The immediate result was an order, directing Huston to reappear next Thursday for another ordeal of questioning concerning the Tennessee River Improvement association which he headed for several years before becoming Republican committee chairman last August.

Huston already had been excused by the committee and as he prepared to leave the stand, he casually recalled that he had offered to obtain for the committee such records of receipts and disbursements of the Tennessee River association as are now in the possession of J. W. Worthington, its executive secretary. He added that he wished to file a personal statement when he submitted Worthington's records.

Command Brings Defiance.

"We haven't asked you to do it," shouted Blaine. "It is your duty to produce those records."

"Well, I won't do it, then," asserted Huston, dropping the armful of papers he was carrying. "You may think it's my duty, but I don't."

"I volunteered to do work which you can't make me do," continued Huston, red with anger and pounding the table with his open hand. "I don't think it is fair to have to go out to Detroit, where Worthington is, and then not be permitted to explain it.

"I volunteered to go as a courtesy to the committee, but if the committee will not extend any courtesies to me, it can get the records itself."

Senator Arthur Robinson [Rep., Ind.], the one regular Republican on the committee, broke in to remind his colleagues that other witnesses have been permitted to file long statements and he assured Huston that the full committee would be compelled to vote before the latter's statement was rejected.

Robinson pointed out that reliable information in the hands of the committee indicates that Worthington is seriously ill in a Detroit hospital.

Sarcasm Provokes Clash.

Led on by Senator Hugo Black [Dem., Ala.], who is not a member of the committee, Huston previously had asserted his belief that the government will never be able to operate Muscle Shoals or any other electrochemical plant efficiently or economically.

"If," he added, "the government should scrap the $1,000,000 worth of obsolete equipment which must be discarded before the plant can be operated there would be a congressional investigation."

"Ah, but, Mr. Huston," put in Blaine, with a sarcastic smile on his face, "an honest man would not fear a congressional investigation."

"The reputation of any honest man is endangered when he goes before an investigating committee," retorted Huston.

"And that man is not an honest man, of course," said Huston.

Huston's chance remark yesterday that he and President Hoover have disagreed on a solution of the Muscle Shoals probe prompted Senator Black to ask today where they differed and brought from Huston the assertion that the President has never "felt the right offer was made for the shoals" and is not committed to any plan for its future operation.

Investigator Sent to New York.

Huston aroused the committee's interest by his admission that $36,100 which he collected from the Union Carbide company, affiliated with the Cyanamid company, for the Tennessee River association had been deposited with his New York brokers and paid over to the association in small amounts.

When he appears Tuesday Huston probably will be asked to tell whether any portion of the $36,100 was used by the brokers in financing his stock market transactions. It is reported that one of the committee's investigators left for New York immediately after today's hearing to make a transcript of the brokers' records of the fund.

Huston insisted today that he retained the Carbide company's contribution in New York in order to control its expenditure by Worthington and other association officials and that the brokerage firm had been chosen as the depositary because of the greater flexibility of its methods of handling funds.

MAGAZINE ATTACHES GANNA WALSKA BANK ACCOUNT FOR $1,453

New York, March 14.—[Special.]—A writ of attachment on the bank account of Mme. Ganna Walska, opera singer and wife of Harold F. McCormick of Chicago, for $1,453, plus interest at 6 per cent, alleged to be due to the Musical Courier for advertising the singer's concert tours, was served today on the New York Trust company's branch at 5 East 57th street, according to the attorneys for the musical publication.

Alvin L. Schmoeger, general manager of the Musical Courier, said four advertisements had appeared during the period from November, 1927, to May, 1929.

The writ was signed by Supreme Court Justice Alfred H. Townley on Thursday and served on the bank by the sheriff's office today, according to Louis Schneider of November & Jaffe, attorneys for the publication. The writ was sought because of Mme. Walska's nonresident status as set forth in a recent customs court decision that her legal residence is in France.

LOBBYIST, LIKE TOUT, RUNS SURE THING RACKET

And Big Business Men Are Suckers Who Pay.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 14.—[Special.]—The further I inquire into the life and habits of the professional lobbyist operating in the capital of the United States, the more definite becomes my impression that big business men of this country are not quite bright, after all. I always had an idea that the American business magnate was exceedingly smart and quick to detect deception, but, judging by what I have been hearing of the congressional agents who operate here under the names of various manufacturers' associations and protective leagues, I should say that the ordinary week day customers at a race track are much more sophisticated.

There are lobbyists around the horse tracks and in the prize fight profession, too, but it is customary to refer to them as touts. A tout is a party who claims to have private information as to the winner of a horse race or influence with the New York prize fight commissioners, as the case may happen to be.

Looks for Loose Money.

At the track, it is his procedure to single out some citizen who appears to have some loose money and advise him to bet on a certain steed, the proposition being that if the steed wins, the client is to pay the tout an amount based on the winnings.

If the horse happens to win the race, the tout looks up his client or sucker, exclaiming, "Well, I had him, didn't I?" and collects his royalty, but, of course, if the charger happens to take the fence or run too long in one spot, there is really no occasion to pursue the matter any further.

In the prize fight industry, particularly around New York, where the European heavyweights are unloaded from time to time, the details of the operations are different, although the principles are the same as those employed by the horse track touts of Belmont or Saratoga and the legislative touts of Washington, D. C.

Blow to His Illusions.

It has been a blow to my illusions regarding the sinister power of the legislative tout in Washington and the shrewd sagacity of the American manufacturer to learn that the profession of lobbying is merely a paraphrase of the touting profession because smart people in the sport business have not patronized touts for some years.

But, with certain small, but important refinements which I shall explain, the legislative tout who infests Washington, D. C., in large numbers today, enjoying large income from various associations of manufacturers of mouse traps, shoe horns, corkscrews, and all such principal products of American industry, is quite similar to the types to which the sport industry has so long been hep.

The difference, as I understand it, is that the legislative tout, whose activities have been providing such vindictive enjoyment to Senator Walsh in the senatorial investigation of touting, has devised an arrangement which makes his or her racket a sure thing in all cases, quite eliminating the element of chance.

Lady Legislative Touts.

The lady legislative touts seem to be quite as smart and enterprising as the gentleman touts, and inasmuch as all the clients are supposed to be very smart there is very little squawking on their part. There was one big business combination which paid a Washington tout a large sum of money a few years ago to see that a case pending before the courts was decided in a favorable way only to discover afterward that the case was decided their way strictly on its merits without any assistance from the tout. In that case there was a squawk and the tout was jailed up for a term in Atlanta, but, as a rule, the big business man is too proud to squawk.

The senate committee on lobbying is a political committee, to be sure, and its objects, naturally, are political and not altruistic, but nevertheless some of the testimony and incidental revelations which have been elicited at the hearings have been such as to destroy my faith in the old picturesque conception of a lobbyist as one who slipped thousand dollar bills under the doors of United States senators at night.

Methods in Older Days.

Once when I was quite young in the newspaper business I met a lobbyist on a train coming out of Jefferson City, Mo., and for several hours he entertained me with sinister stories of having purchased the votes of country statesmen in state capitals all over the middle west with five dollar bills, new whiffletrees for their buggies, which stood at the statehouse hitching rails, and even, in some cases, with such trivial bribes as three dollar shirts for Sunday wear back in their native county seats. That was my conception of the method of the lobbyist until I began to learn here in Washington that the high price class legislative tout of the national capital rarely stoops to corruption but almost invariably confines himself or herself to mild and humorous deceptions of no indictable character.

Solicits Client by Letter.

The Washington tout nowadays establishes an office with a staff of lady clerks, of whom there seem to be an inexhaustible supply, and not bad looking either, and begins to solicit clients by means of letters or personal visits to groups of business firms which are interested in pending legislation.

The customers pay retainers and monthly salaries and the tout or lobbyist keeps in touch with them by letters reading, "I saw Senator Watson today and he seemed very favorable," or "I gather from the President's attitude toward me that he is now becoming impressed with the justice of our proposals."

One tout examined by the lobby committee turned out to be the representative of five or six large organizations of business men with diverse, even conflicting, interests to be advanced before congress, and his correspondence, which had been seized without legal warrant much the same as prohibition agents seize the jewelry off a dressing table in raiding a hotel room, showed that he had been misleading all of them in the most deplorable way, reporting that he had seen his friend Senator Watson or Senator Moses today when, for a fact, he had merely seen him in some hotel wash room and remarked, "Good morning, Mr. Senator; nice day."

One factor which has assisted the Washington legislative touts is the incurable affability of the politician who will shake hands with any one or kiss anybody's baby at any time. The tout receives a call from a delegation of his clients and takes them right down to the United States senate, where he stops some senator in the hall and says, "Mr. Senator, I would like to present some gentlemen who are much interested in the tariff on hedgehog shaving brushes." And the senator, being a politician, naturally states that he is pleased to meet them and is ever mindful of the welfare of the great American hedgehog shaving brush industry, which, of course, reassures the delegation and convinces them that their tout is constantly on the job and just like that with all the big men in Washington.

So it seems that the Washington lobbyist, far from corrupting statesmen, is merely a tout, after all, like the shabby tout of the horse tracks who claims to have definite information from the man who trains the favorite that they aren't shooting with the horse today, but are planning to send their money in on a neglected sleeper stabled in a three horse barn, way down at the end of the lot. I am surprised and depressed by all this.

WASHINGTON NOTES

Washington, D. C., March 14.—(AP)—Approval by Secretary Hurley of an allotment of $300,000 for rivers and harbors work on the Missouri river from Kansas City to its mouth was announced today by the war department.

Proposal by Representative Huddleston [Dem., Ala.] to replace the Parker bill to provide federal regulation of interstate bus lines with his own measure, which would require only that the bus operators carry bonds for the protection of the public, was rejected by the house.

CERMAK GETS 100 ON REPORT CARD FOR ATTENDANCE

By a unanimous vote of his fellow county commissioners President A. J. Cermak yesterday was given a perfect attendance record for county board and committee meetings. President Cermak produced a doctor's certificate to explain his poor grade in attendance report cards compiled by J. L. Jacobs, county efficiency expert.

"I was stricken with illness at a committee meeting in January, 1928," President Cermak said. "I was too ill to be removed from my room in a loop hotel, but I performed my duties as president from my sick bed. I was taken to a hospital and later to Florida to recuperate. At all times I maintained contact with the board. I did not recover until May, after visiting doctors in Washington and Rochester, Minn. The records show that I did not miss a single meeting after my recovery."

The commissioners confirmed Cermak's statements by saying that no important action was taken by the board in his absence.

JUDGE STUTTLE QUITS BENCH TO PRACTICE LAW

Judge Harry C. Stuttle of Litchfield, Ill., yesterday retired to private practice in Montgomery county after having served for four years in the Superior court of Cook county. During his twelve years on the bench the judge was drafted to sit in forty-four of the state's counties. He sat almost continuously in the Superior court from 1925. The judge was not a candidate at the last election in Montgomery county, as he had announced his intention of returning to private practice.

As an affectionate farewell a mock trial was staged by lawyers and judges in the court of Superior Judge Priehs. Judge Stuttle was tried on the "criminal" charge of being a quitter. A jury of lawyers returned the verdict of, "We, the jury, find Judge Harry C. Stuttle guilty of being a good fellow and sentence him to a long life and a prosperous and successful practice before the bar. Not guilty of being a quitter."

INDICT O'BRIEN, LEGISLATOR, AS U. S. TAX DODGER

Charge He Owes $102,368 on His Income.

United States Attorney Johnson's drive against public officials, gangsters, and contractors who renege on their income tax payments was crystallized in another indictment yesterday which named State Representative Lawrence C. O'Brien [Dem., 17th] with attempting to evade paying a total of $102,368.68 in tax and penalties, accumulated during the years 1926, 1927, and 1928.

The legislator joins a coterie of others similarly charged, which includes Ralph Capone, Terry Druggan, Frankie Lake, County Assessor Gene Oliver, and Electrical Contractors George L. Chamberlain and Fred W. Rhoades of the U. S. A. company. Intimations have been given that the government's drive is only well started.

Named on Six Counts.

O'Brien was named in an indictment containing six counts which was returned by the federal grand jury before Judge Woodward. Two business men, Seth Seiders, head of an efficiency concern at 155 East Superior street, and Harry J. Felz of the Felz Motor sales, 1132 Diversey parkway, were also named in tax true bills of a less startling nature.

O'Brien's income from trucking contracts he supposedly executed for the city of Chicago, the Lincoln park board and the sanitary district amounted to $63,795 in 1926, $149,870 in 1927, and $130,898 in 1928, according to the computations of Assistant United States Attorney Dwight H. Green, who drew the indictment. On this total of $344,563, he paid no tax at all, Green said, nor did he file an income schedule.

List of O'Brien's Income.

Sanitary district	5,526	39,855	116,250
Lincoln park		59,467	11,527

In 1927 O'Brien also received $5,080 for a contract executed for J. Spahn & Co., a concern headed by one of O'Brien's relatives, Converse said.

The contract figures do not represent O'Brien's total income, Mr. Green said, and gave these figures as his total receipts for the years in question:

1927	194,189
1928	137,332

Nothing is said in the indictment of the source of this revenue.

	Tax.	Penalty.
1926	$19,592.19	$ 4,898.05
1927	39,576.24	9,894.06
1928	22,726.73	5,681.41
Totals	$81,895.16	$20,473.52

Returned as it was on March 14, the indictment comes just the day before the expiration of the statute of limitations for the 1926 alleged violations. Today, March 15, the filing period for 1929 ends, and it also marks the expiration of the three year period allowed by law for the return of an indictment charging a violation of federal laws.

The penalty upon conviction for the charges made against O'Brien is a maximum of one year in prison and a $10,000 fine for failure to file a schedule, and a maximum of five years in prison and $10,000 fine for the counts covering attempts to defeat and evade the revenue law. The grand jury fixed bond for him at $15,000.

ONCE PROMINENT PHYSICIAN FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL

Dr. Hugh Miller, 52 years old, formerly a well known physician of South Bend, was found dead late last night in a room at the Fort Dearborn hotel, 125 West Van Buren street, under circumstances which caused the police and coroner's office to start an investigation to determine whether he had taken his own life. A powdery substance found near the body was to be examined by chemists this morning.

Papers among Dr. Miller's possessions gave the address of Dr. Arthur L. Knapp of South Bend, and he was notified of the death. He said that Dr. Miller had lived at the Knapp home for about a year until three weeks ago, when he became a patient at the Keeley institute in Dwight.

Dr. Miller was noted as a diagnostician in South Bend and was one of the founders of a clinic there. He served his interneship at the Mercy hospital in Chicago, according to Dr. Knapp. He and his wife, Mrs. Florence Raff Miller, a member of a well known South Bend family, were divorced some time ago. Mrs. Miller and her son, George, are now in California.

Mr. Ketcham's body was found on the sidewalk beneath the open window by Frank Jare, 2835 North Racine avenue, a taxicab driver. Funeral services will be held at 2:45 p. m. today at the Rosehill cemetery chapel. Mr. Ketcham was a graduate of Williams college. Recesses for Crucial Contest Today.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 14.—[Special.]—Two proposals, both sponsored by Senator R. B. Howell [Rep., Neb.], to modify the Oddie amendment taking hides, leather, and shoes from the free list, were rejected by the senate tonight.

Following the defeat by a vote of 25 to 42 of his first amendment to impose a duty of five cents a pound on green hides and 9 cents a pound on dried hides, Howell offered another, which would have reduced the rates on sole, belting, or harness leather in the Oddie amendment from six cents per pound and 10 per cent ad valorem to six cents per pound and 5.4 cents ad valorem.

This was downed by a vote of 32 to 34 and the senate recessed until tomorrow morning after Senator Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah], chairman of the finance committee, failed to secure an unanimous consent agreement to limit debate on the amendment offered by Senator T. L. Oddie [Rep., Nev.], to ten minutes for each senator.

Fierce Fight Tomorrow.

The fight tomorrow will be the last stand of those favoring the imposition of duties on hides, leather and shoes which are not dutiable under the present law. While the house bill imposed duties on these commodities, the senate, in committee of the whole, restored them to the free list.

In his amendment, fixing rates of four cents a pound on green hides and 8 cents a pound on dried hides, Senator Oddie, while chiefly interested in hides, also included duties on leather and shoes. He proposed a duty of 6 cents per pound and 10 per cent on sole, belting or harness leather, 3.5 cents per square foot and 10 per cent on leather made from calf or kip skins, 6 cents per pound and 10 per cent on leather welting, 5.2 cents per square foot and 10 per cent on side upper leather, and 4.6 cents per square foot and 20 per cent on upholstery leather.

Shoes Also Affected.

The amendment provided a duty of 14 cents per pair and 10 per cent on shoes of leather, not specially provided for, and 6 cents per pair and 35 per cent on shoes the uppers of which are made chiefly from wool, cotton, rayon or similar materials.

Agricultural organizations have been anxious to obtain duty on hides, but have taken the position that hides should be left on the free list rather than accept the schedule of rates in the house bill, which provided a duty of 10 per cent on hides, from 12½ to 15 per cent on leather, and 20 per cent on shoes.

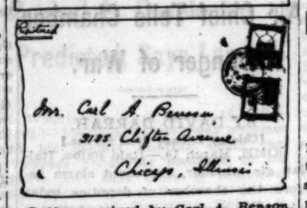
From Akka, Palestine



Letter received by Carl A. Benson, 3638 Herndon street, Chicago.

Akka or Acre is an ancient city and seaport of Palestine, located on a promontory at the foot of Mount Carmel. It was taken by the Crusaders in 1104, retaken by the Saracens in 1187, and recaptured by Richard Cœur de Lion four years later. It was defended by the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem for 100 years, but was occupied by the Saracens again in 1291.

Napoleon attempted its capture during his Egyptian-Syrian campaign in 1799, but was repulsed by the Turks, aided by Sir W. Sidney Smith and a force of British sailors. Napoleon, commenting on this repulse, said: "If Acre had fallen I would have changed the face of the world. My fortune was arrested by a grain of sand."

JUANITA HANSEN IS TOO PRETTY; COSTS HER $167,000

New York, March 14.—[Special.]—The jury's "sympathy for a comely woman" was responsible for the largest accident damage verdict ever given a woman in Westchester, Supreme Court Justice Taylor ruled in White Plains today.

He set aside the $167,000 award made to blonde Juanita Hansen, former moving picture actress, on her testimony that when she opened a "cold" shower faucet at the Hotel Lincoln here she was caught under a rush of scalding water and burned so badly that she had been permanently disfigured.

Justice Taylor said: "The amount of the verdict is grossly excessive and undoubtedly reflects the jury's sympathy for the injured plaintiff, a comely woman, rather than the jury's unbiased judgment of facts."

U.S. CHIEF IN HAITI REFUTES CHARGE OF DICTATORSHIP

Brig. Gen. Russell Tells of Good He Has Done.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, March 14.—(AP)—Brig. Gen. John R. Russell today filed with the Hoover commission a lengthy refutation of all charges made against him in the hearings last week on conditions in Haiti.

The American high commissioner was bound by his diplomatic status from giving a statement himself, and the commission announced it was considering the report before releasing it, but it is believed to deny all charges that a dictatorship exists and to cite many accomplishments of the American high commissioner.

Meanwhile, all sides tonight awaited clarification of the muddled political situation. Clarification is expected in a statement promised by the Hoover commission tomorrow.

Rumors of all sorts were current here today. One said President Borno had appealed to the league of nations. That was characterized as absurd.

In answer to the opposition fear that Borno is trying "to defeat the plan of the commission" by interpreting the constitution to mean that an election by popular vote cannot be held until 1932, the commission unofficially but strongly hinted that Borno would be unable to bind his successor, the proposed temporary president, to such an interpretation, and that this successor would be the choice of the opposition.

This hint also indicated that Borno soon might be forced to sign a written agreement he would accept the man chosen by the opposition as also agreeable to him.

Reds Battle Among Selves; 1 Dying and 5 Under Arrest

New York, March 14.—[Special.]—Communists fighting among themselves—stabbing at each other's hearts with knives and tailors' shears, clawing at each other's faces with their bare fingernails, and biting, kicking, and gouging—upset the whole neighborhood of 7th avenue and 28th street today, caused the injury of 15 persons, one of whom is dying in the French hospital, resulted in the arrest of five persons, and gave 45 policemen all the work they wanted for the better part of an hour.

Benjamin Axel has a furrier's business on the tenth floor of the loft, in the heart of the cloak and suit district. Most of his workers are communists, of one stripe or another—and there seems to be as much difference among communists as among cats.

Part of his stitchers and sewers were right wing reds and part were left wing reds. Between the two factions there was nothing but sneering hate and nasty language. Finally Axel discharged the more radical of his workers. Picket lines were established by the malcontents and numerous clashes developed into today's free for all.

Expect to Overthrow Government.

Meanwhile in another part of the city Grover Whalen, New York's police commissioner, was accused of having been a coward in his handling of last Thursday's Red demonstration in Union Square, and the prediction was made that the unemployed workers of America eventually will overthrow the United States government and establish a soviet union.

The speakers were William Z. Foster, leader of the communists, and Robert Minor, editor of the Daily Worker, who attended a meeting on unemployment of the board of estimates while free on bail, followed their arrest as a result of the communist riot in Union Square on March 6.

Declares Whalen Trembled.

When Foster denounced the police, who prevented his committee from coming to the city hall, Aldermanic President Joseph V. McKee interjected:

"He must not have been very anxious to come last Thursday because I understand he did not march with the others."

This had reference to the report that Foster was not with the marchers who precipitated a riot when they tried to crash the police lines at Union Square, and the speaker replied violently:

"That is a lie circulated by your police chief, Grover Whalen. If there was a coward at last Thursday's demonstration it was Whalen himself. Why, he even shook like an aspen leaf when our committee called upon him."

Talks Back to Mayor.

Mayor Walker cut him short, however, saying that the board was not interested in an exposition of the communist philosophy and if Foster was prepared to make any suggestions he could do so at the next hearing.

"I shall probably be in jail by then, the way you are railroading my case," replied Foster, adding by way of comment to the mayor's smile that, "if all Tammany politicians got their deserts the jails would be crowded."

"Yes, but the difference between you and them is that they do not try to break into jail," retorted the mayor.

The crowd howled with delight.

Norman Thomas, prominent socialist, told the board that unemployment "is probably worse than at any time since the winter of 1914-'15." He urged the establishment by the city, in cooperation with the state, of a chain of free employment agencies.

8th Ward G. O. P. Indorses Ruth McCormick Candidacy

GODLESS LEAGUE AND REDS MASS FOR EASTER WAR

Start 2 Months' Drive on Christians and Jews.

MOSCOW, March 14.—(AP)—The Jewish Telegraphic agency reports that the anti-Passover and anti-Easter campaign in Russia will officially open tomorrow, under the joint direction of the soviet trade unions and the Atheist League of the Godless. It will last a full two months.

The executive of the Federation of Soviet Labor unions today sent instructions to every union member to participate actively in the campaign.

Aim to Increase Godless.

Every union is obliged to see that its members join the League of the Godless and to increase the league's membership by 100,000 during the campaign, according to the instructions. From tomorrow until May 15 anti-religious lectures, meetings and theater performances have been scheduled in every cooperative house, club, and school.

Women will be taken on excursions to various places in order to show them how they can live better without religion. Moscow will have a tremendous anti-religious street demonstration on April 19 as well as a carnival.

Paper Counsels Moderation.

Such acts as closing churches without consent of a majority of the population, tearing down church bells, use of force, violence or harsh administrative measures in converting individual farms into collective farms and illegal confiscation of the peasants' property must forthwith cease says an editorial in today's Izvestia which reflects the views of the government.

ITALY SHOUTS ON FOR 'PARITY' AND REFUSES TO MOVE

Rebuffs Pressure from U. S., Britain, France.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 14.—The United States and Great Britain are applying extreme pressure on Italy to submit the figures of her requirements as a sea power, in a desperate effort to save the conference.

Foreign Minister Briand of France announced tonight, following a conversation with Dino Grandi, that no progress had been made. The Fascist delegate persisted in refusing to translate Rome's demands into anything beyond the blanket demand of parity with France.

M. Briand quoted the covenant of the league of nations, which specifies that the powers shall justify their armaments according to their national requirements, geographical situations and other premises. To this Sig. Grandi replied that Italy is practically an island.

Suggests League Investigate.

"The league had better send a committee to investigate and see whether an earthquake or a tidal wave has transformed the peninsula," M. Briand replied jokingly.

The French representative said that neither Prime Minister MacDonald nor Secretary of State Stimson had encountered any better luck in trying to elicit Premier Mussolini's needs in tons or in categories. To all questions, Sig. Grandi always makes the identical answer, that "the Washington treaty established parity between France and Italy, and the Fascist government will not abandon that."

Referring to the Washington conference tonight, M. Briand became reminiscent.

"I accepted 175,000 tons of capital ships and a ratio of 1.75 to 5-5-3. A tremendous outcry arose in France, but that was eight years ago, and we have not constructed a single ton of the amount allocated to us," he mused.

Rumor of "Anti-War Pact."

There are insistent whisperings tonight that America will eventually agree to some sort of ambiguous declaration against war, in a final attempt to satisfy France, rather than see the conference sunk. A member of the French delegation said that President Hoover and Mr. Stimson had a long telephone conversation this afternoon, and that the French envoy at Washington had conferred with the White House over the situation.

In general, the British are putting the dilemma squarely up to the United States, asserting that they are willing to give M. Briand a wooden pact if America joins.

HOOVER CONFIDENT NAVY PARLEY WILL STILL BE A SUCCESS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 14.—President Hoover has not given up hope that some kind of a naval reduction or stabilization treaty will be worked out and adopted at the London conference.

Following receipt of dispatches from the American delegation, it was made known at the White House that President Hoover feels that some progress toward agreement has been made in the last few days. In the President's opinion, the delegates are now beginning to make some headway against the obstacles that for the last few weeks have daily threatened to break up the parley.

It is learned that the administration considers that the critical days of the conference have arrived. Administration officials have felt during the last few days that conditions had reached a point where there would have to be a break one way or the other in the very near future. Information reaching Washington is that the time has come when the delegation heads will lay their final cards on the table.

ASK GUARD FOR RAIL CROSSING WHERE TWO DIED

A coroner's jury investigating the deaths of Mrs. Agnes Astruskas, 2211 North 74th avenue, Elmwood Park, and her infant grandchild, Richard Smith, who were struck by a Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific train Thursday night, returned a verdict of accidental death yesterday. The jury recommended that a watchman be placed at the crossing. Mrs. Astruskas sacrificed her own life in an effort to save the baby, when one wheel of the buggy caught on a plank of the crossing as the train bore down on them.

Martin Nelson, 45 years old, of Arlington Heights, was killed yesterday when he was struck by a Chicago and North Western railroad train in Arlington Heights near the Northwest highway. His companion, Thomas Kenney, 21 years old, of Arlington Heights, who was crossing the track with him, was also struck, but escaped with a slight injury to one hand.

Wins $1 in $50,000 Suit Against Ex-Chief Hughes

A sealed verdict of $1 and costs was returned by a jury in Circuit Judge George Fred Rush's courtroom yesterday in favor of James McQueeney, a private investigator, who was suing Michael Hughes, former chief of police, for $50,000 on charges of false arrest and malicious prosecution. A motion for a new trial was overruled. McQueeney charged that he had been twice arrested by the former chief in 1920 while he was making an investigation of short weights in city coal contracts.

of a three power treaty between America, Great Britain, and Japan, which now appears certain to result from the London conference if a four or five power treaty fails to materialize.

Still Seek Five Power Pact.

While heroic efforts will be made by Prime Minister MacDonald and Secretary of State Stimson in the next few days to bring France and Italy into a five power treaty, they will have a three power agreement to fall back on if worst comes to worst.

In this connection, not the least interesting disclosure of the day is that some form of security pact, which France has been demanding as the price for a reduction of its tonnage demands, is still in the picture, or is in back of the picture, despite Mr. Stimson's declaration that America will not agree to a consultative pact or any other understanding implying a promise to support another nation in time of war.

A member of the American delegation admitted tonight that an effort is being made to devise a formula acceptable to France, Great Britain and America.

Bring Pressure on Hoover.

Indications are not wanting that American internationalists are bringing pressure to bear on the Hoover administration to consent to some form of declaration that America will not aid a violator of the Kellogg war renunciation pact. This would prevent America from remaining neutral in time of war and put an end to freedom of the seas, for it would amount to America recognizing a blockade against a nation declared by the league of nations to be an aggressor.

If the London conference produces nothing more than a three power treaty, it will be necessary to attach to it a reservation by which any of the signatories, America, Great Britain or Japan, may be absolved from the restrictions imposed thereby if it should deem itself menaced by another power. Thus, if Great Britain came to the conclusion that France was building too many cruisers or submarines for its peace of mind, it could, by formal notice, exceed the limitations on cruisers and destroyers named in the treaty.

Stimson Makes Concessions.

The basis of the three power agreement was reached by successive concessions, reluctantly made by the American delegation, Mr. Stimson was so eager to get an agreement that he fell an easy victim to the Japanese, who, with nothing to lose and everything to gain, were here to get every ounce of compensation possible for their signature to a naval limitation treaty.

The Japanese came to London demanding 70 per cent of the American big cruiser tonnage and 70 per cent of the total tonnage of all auxiliary classes of ships. Mr. Stimson and Senator David A. Reed began by offering 60 per cent of America's big cruiser strength and 66 2-3 per cent of the submarine tonnage. Nippon said, "No, thanks." Mr. Stimson and Senator Reed raised the ante on submarines. The Japanese talked about the weather.

Tokio Gets All It Asks.

Finally, Mr. Stimson and Senator Reed became desperate. They had to have some kind of a treaty to take home to President Hoover, who is said to be slipping politically. They came up, and up, and up on their offers to Japan until it became a case of giving all Tokio demanded, but doing it by a formula designed to take the curse off of their surrender.

So, while conceding Japan only 60 per cent of the tonnage of eight inch gun cruisers America is to have the right to build, the American delegation agrees to complete not more than 15 during the life of the treaty, which will give Nippon 72 per cent of the tonnage in this category. Japan should worry about what happens after this treaty expires. There will be another conference to deal with that contingency.

The American delegation also concedes Japan an approximate parity in submarines. Altogether, Japan is to have about 80 per cent of America's total auxiliary tonnage during the life of the treaty.

MUST HAVE MORE PLANES; FRANCE IS MENACE—ITALY

Air Chief Tells Chamber Danger of War.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, March 14.—Italo Balbo, Italian air minister, expressed alarm before the chamber of deputies today at Italy's exposure to an air invasion in the next way. He stressed the inadequacy of the Italian air force as compared with the air force of France.

Ten or more army divisions are worth less for defense than plenty of airplanes, he declared, and besides, aviation must be counted on to compensate for Italy's inferiority in naval forces. He made a lengthy appeal for more money to bring this department of the government up to scratch.

Compares Budget with France.

Italy's air budget is $35,000,000, or about 15 per cent of the $250,000,000 she spends annually for military affairs. France, on the other hand, spends 22 per cent of her military budget for aviation, Sig. Balbo asserted.

"Aviation is the terrible unknown factor in the next way," he declared. "More progress has been made in aviation in the last ten years than in all of its preceding history. The air activities of the last war may be considered as prehistoric as compared with the purposes to which aviation will be put in future wars, and aviation is the center of all future war problems."

900 Planes Not Enough.

The air minister stated that Italy had 900 good planes for war purposes, which are not enough. But the consolation in this is that she has plenty of good pilots, he said. In fact, there are three for each plane, and Italy has almost become autonomous in airplane production, being independent of the experts of other countries.

ITALY AND FRANCE CLASH; BOTH CLAIM AFRICAN TERRITORY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, March 14.—A clash between Italian and French territorial claims in central Africa was recorded today in a report of the minister of colonies to the chamber of deputies.

The Italian government asserts the right to a large block of territory lying south of the present delimited southern frontier of Libya. The boundary, which runs roughly from the town of Ghat to the northwest corner of the Sudan, has been agreed on between England and France, but has never been accepted by Italy.

The report lays claim to the control of caravan routes, which would indicate that Italy's aims extend as far inland as Lake Tchad. These claims are thought certain to meet with French resistance.

ASK RELOCATION COST CLAUSE IN PHONE FRANCHISE

Two Aldermen Oppose Form of Draft.

Objections to the proposed telephone franchise ordinance in its present form were raised by two aldermen yesterday when a draft of the measure was submitted to the council committee on gas, oil, and electric light for approval. Public hearings on the franchise will begin next Thursday morning in an attempt to settle the differences between the committee members on provisions of financial importance to the city.

The controversy at yesterday's committee session was waged over the omission of any provision which would obligate the Illinois Bell Telephone company to pay the cost of relocating its cables and conduits when a subway is constructed. The other alleged defect was declared to be the lack of an understanding as to what portion of the tolls from long distance calls shall be considered subject to a 3 per cent payment to the city as compensation for the use of the streets.

It's Up to Committee.

Upon the committee is said to rest the decision of whether the city or the company will have to pay millions of dollars for the removal of the company's conduits. No information was available as to the amount the city might lose if the long distance toll matter is not adjusted.

"A suggestion was made to insert a provision in this franchise fastening the relocation costs on the company," said Ald. A. J. Horan [29th]. "The telephone company certainly is a money making organization at the rates it is charging, and as we have this franchise here we should put in that provision."

Both Ald. B. A. Cronson [4th], chairman of the subcommittee that drafted the measure, and Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th], chairman of the full committee, rose to answer the objection. They pointed out that it is planned by the local transportation committee to later prepare a general ordinance ordering all the public utilities to relocate their underground facilities at their own expense. They also said that the 1929 legislature passed an act which places the costs on the companies.

Should Be in Ordinance.

"Then the Bell company can have no objection to repeating the state provision in this franchise," said Ald. John J. Hoellen [47th]. "I see no harm in placing that provision in this ordinance and as other utility franchises come up for renewal we can insert it in their ordinances.

An examination of the franchise draft disclosed that the subcommittee has ignored the recommendations of the city's attorneys, Benjamin F. Goldstein and George I. Haight, on Oct. 16, 1929, a copy of which is on file with the committee. Apparently the attorneys themselves have been shoved out of the negotiations, as no record exists of their attendance at committee meetings since December.

What Attorneys Asked.

After a technical discussion of the relocation costs, the attorneys wrote:

"From a practical standpoint, investigations disclose that in New York the cost of relocating utility properties to make way for the subway extension is in excess of $1,000,000 per mile, of which one-half is represented by telephone properties. Upon the basis of the construction of twenty-four miles of subways, the burden through this item of relocation will involve many millions of dollars."

And in another place they stated: "If we omit from the franchise any provision giving the city the power to order the removal at the expense of the company the possibility would exist that when the time comes the telephone utility might contest the right of the city to demand removal at its expense, as was in fact successfully done in New York. To avoid this the matter should be settled one way or the other."

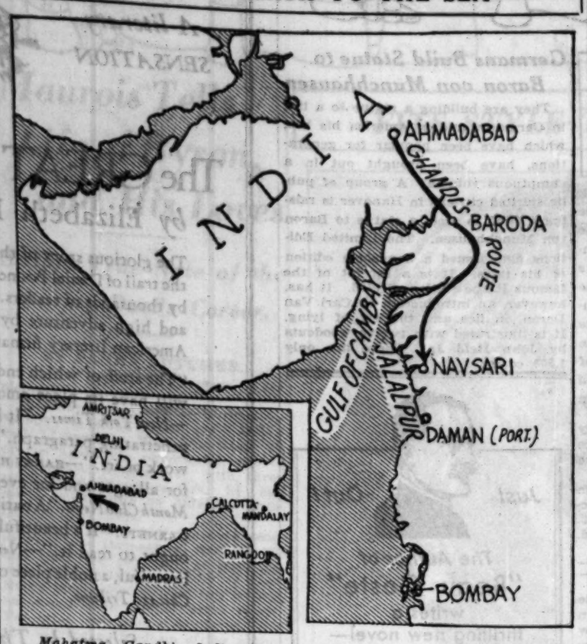
Toll Matter Taken Up.

Another recommendation apparently ignored by the drafters was that submitted by the J. G. Wray company. The company was employed to investigate the division of the long distance tolls between the Bell company and the American Telephone and Telegraph company, the parent organization. Their report, dated Jan. 11, 1930, is also in the files.

After describing the results of the investigation in technical detail the report ends with the following summary, in which the three services mentioned are the local, suburban, and long distance:

"Until the actual use of the property in telephone operation of the three services, calculated upon the basis above described, can be determined there is no conceivable way in which the company or any one else can state what proportion of the revenues of each or any of the services making joint use of property and facilities can be apportioned to the Chicago division. Without such apportionment there is no basis upon which to calculate a franchise tax based upon a portion only of such gross revenues."

GANDHI'S "MARCH TO THE SEA"



Mahatma Gandhi, India Nationalist leader, with 79 followers, yesterday ended his third day's march from Ahmadabad to Jalalpur where he intends to manufacture salt in violation of the British government monopoly. At all the villages on the way he preaches his doctrine of civil disobedience.

GANDHI ADVISES BONFIRES OF ALL FOREIGN CLOTH

AHMADABAD, India, March 14.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi, Nationalist leader, with his band of volunteers, reached Matar this evening, being received with great enthusiasm. They planned to spend the night there.

He urged the people to march to Jalalpur, Borsad, and Taluka, where salt is plentiful, in order to break the government salt monopoly. He also appealed to them to make a bonfire of all foreign cloth in their possession.

Police Chiefs Resign.

NAWAGON, India, March 14.—(AP)—Before leaving here at dawn for his march to Vasna and Matar, Gandi addressed the villagers and congratulated the eight head men who resigned as protest against Vallabhai Patel's imprisonment.

His exhortation for severance of government connections also brought about resignation of police chiefs at Vasna and Mahai.

Gandhi and his associates are journeying from Ahmadabad to Jalalpur on the Bay of Cambay, where they will manufacture salt in violation of the British government monopoly. The action is expected to be the first definitely serious move in a campaign of civil disobedience to bring about complete Indian independence.

100 Follow Gandhi Lead.

GIRL, BELIEVED SLAIN, IS ALIVE, LETTER REVEALS

Lake county authorities were left without a clew to the identity of the woman whose body was found in the ruins of a summer cottage at Deep Lake last Saturday when it was definitely established yesterday that the torso was not that of Miss Edna Pastrig, 25 years old, of Milwaukee. Miss Pastrig is alive and in Chicago, according to a letter received yesterday by her sister, Mrs. Rin Murakami of Milwaukee.

Mrs. Murakami said the letter, which was mailed here on Thursday, was in her sister's handwriting and that there was no doubt that she had written it.

Rudolph Klein, 45 years old, 233 South 29th avenue, Bellwood, who was arrested by the Bellwood police on Thursday night and taken to Milwaukee for questioning about Miss Pastrig's disappearance three weeks ago, was released last night.

MELROSE PARK POLITICIAN IS SEIZED WITH GUN

Peter D. DiFrancesca, 814 North 22d avenue, Melrose Park, a Democratic candidate for nomination for state senator from the Seventh district, was arrested with a loaded revolver yesterday by state's attorney's detectives. Detectives John H. Scherping and Leo Anderson noticed three men jump from an automobile and go into the Grand River inn road-house at Grand avenue and River road. The police, thinking it might be a robbery, followed the men into the resort and arrested them. DiFrancesca and his companions, William Pacelli, 1410 23d avenue, and Charles Ledone, 5019 St. Paul avenue, were held for further investigation.

4 MEN, 2 WOMEN HELD ON CHARGES OF AUTO THEFT

Four men and two women, who the police accuse of being members of an intercity automobile theft ring, were being held last night by the Albany Park police. The women and two of the men will be returned to Springfield, where the automobile in which they were arrested early yesterday was stolen.

The two Springfield couples are Peggy Smith, 19 years old; Mrs. Irene Gilbert, 24, the mother of four children; Robert Ramsay, 21, and Julian Mitchell, 24. They were arrested when the police found them in the stolen automobile in front of the flat of Fred Waldach, 4635 North Kedzie avenue. Waldach was held on a charge of keeping a disorderly house. Ramsay and Mitchell said they had bought the car and had sold another machine to Jesse Gilham, 48 years old, 3120 Devon avenue. At Gilham's home the police found two automobiles and he was arrested on a charge of receiving stolen property.

BUSINESS GAINS, MORE EMPLOYED, HOOVER IS TOLD

Revival Is Developing as Predicted, Says Lamont.

Washington, D. C., March 14.—[Special.]—President Hoover was informed at his cabinet meeting today that business conditions continue to improve and that there is somewhat less unemployment than a week ago.

Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont submitted figures to the President indicating that the business revival predicted at the White House a week ago is developing according to schedule. Reports from the larger cities of the country, with but very few exceptions, are encouraging as to the employment situation, the commerce secretary said.

Among the reports taken to the White House by Mr. Lamont was one from the Illinois chamber of commerce, stating that a big increase in employment throughout all sections of the state was looked for during the next month. An increase in employment of from 25 to 30 per cent was noted in many sections of the state during the last month, the report stated.

No employment statistics for Chicago alone were received during the last week. Figures or reports were sent to the department, however, from most of the other large cities. In almost all cases the reports stated that employment conditions were improving.

Following his Friday conference a week ago, President Hoover stated that all the evidences submitted to him by his business advisors indicated that the worst effects of the crash upon unemployment will have passed during the next sixty days. Mr. Lamont said today that all indications now are that the President's prediction will be borne out by future developments.

Campaign Started to Find Jobs for Chicago Jobless

The Illinois free employment bureau and the Chicago Association of Commerce have started a campaign to aid the unemployed in the city. Charles J. Boyd, the superintendent of the state employment bureau, said last night that there is some seasonal increase in employment but not sufficient to care for men with families who have been unemployed all winter. He said industrial plants will be urged to employ men to clean up and repair them.

YOUNG HUCKINS FEARED PRISON, SAY WITNESSES

"Investors" Tell Jury of Losing All.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., March 14.—[Special.]—George E. Huckins, on trial on charges of swindling local investors out of thousands of dollars, heard witnesses in Judge F. O. Ellison's court today declare that he had said he expected to be sent to prison for deals. He also heard Mrs. Elwood Royster, whose husband lost practically all he owned, relate that he had told her that if his father, Elmer S. Huckins, were sent to prison he still would be on hand to conduct the business. She related that Huckins had told her husband that he would obtain 133 per cent for every dollar he invested.

Elwood Royster, who years ago invested $1,000 in the Atlas Wheel company of Cleveland at the request of Elmer Huckins, he said, and lost all, told the jury that he was called to the Huckins & Negus cigar store by Elmer Huckins in 1923, given a cigar and informed by the elder Huckins that he made $50,000 that year with "those cheap cigars," and invited him to invest his money, assuring him that within a short time he would be "sitting pretty," and that his wife need never work again.

Royster also testified that he and his wife went to the Huckins home on Dec. 8, when it became apparent that their get rich scheme had collapsed, and found George Huckins in pajamas. When the Roysters demanded their money, they said, Huckins became greatly excited and that it was necessary to call a physician.

Another witness against Huckins was William Speas, who managed the Bunny Baseball club, which Huckins owned. Speas related that he had invested all his life's savings in the Huckins scheme and had even induced his mother to mortgage her modest home and lend him money to give Huckins. Speas said he went to Dubuque and borrowed $9,000.

TELEPHONE AIDS BANDIT IN STORE; GIRL IS SLUGGED

Aided by a coincidence or an accomplice—the police are not certain which—a bandit invaded the Dutch Mill candy shop at 1148 North State street last night, slugged the girl attendant with a blackjack and escaped with $35.

The telephone rang at the instant the robber entered. The attendant, Miss Kathleen Norris, 929 Sunnyside avenue, turned to the instrument on the wall. The robber struck her as she said hello.

He dragged her to a rear room, gagged her with a towel, and cleaned out the cash drawer. Miss Norris, who was only stunned by the blow, notified the Chicago avenue police. She was unable to give an accurate description of the robber.

There are two new excellent volumes, one "The New Education in the Soviet Republic," by Albert P. Pinkevitch, and the other "The New Education in the German Republic," by Thomas Alexander and Beryl Parker.

The book on Russian education was designed for use in Russian universities in the training of teachers and, therefore, is by way of being the voice of the soviet.

"The New Education in the German Republic" includes the experiments that have been carried on outside of the public school system, the story of the Youth movement, the theory and practice of the national school system, among other things.

Three British Novels Reveal Daily Tragedies of City Folk

"Joy Is My Name," by Sarah Salt. [Payson and Clark.]
"To the Valiant," by Norah C. James. [Morrow.]

Here are three cross sections of English life as seen by three English writers. Philip Gibbs in his story of the episodes of a London doctor draws a circle around a large area, taking in the fashionable district of Cadogan square and also the mean, squalid side streets of Chelsea, where anything and everything can and does happen. The other two books are more limited in scope, one dealing with a girl of the lower middle class who yearns for a stage career, and the other concerning itself with a family of the working class and the devotion of two brothers.

PHILIP GIBBS.

Mr. Gibbs tells about kindly, sympathetic, philosophical Dr. John Jevons and his assorted types of patients in a manner that is entirely delightful, seasoned as it is by observation, an unfailing sense of proportion and ready wit. Except for the perhaps too frequent digressions—little essays on politics, morals, modern youth, the changing times and many other subjects—which are occasioned by the actions of his characters—Sir Philip has given us a splendid novel.

The hidden city is the secret labyrinth of the mind and the emotions in which each of us hides and which is revealed only by flashes, by the crises in our lives.

The tragic futility of struggle, doomed because of innate weakness to one failure after another, is the underlying theme of "Joy Is My Name," Sarah Salt writes with a simplicity and honesty and an utter lack of sentimentality that lift her above the crowded ranks of the fair to middling authors and place her among the artists.

SARAH SALT.

Joy is the daughter of a humble, devoted mother. Joy feels above her station in life; she wants to be a great actress; she is bitten by ambition, but she is a weakling and at every crucial test of her character she fails by doing the easiest thing. One can understand perfectly why she fails. Joy's emotions are mightier than her intellect; they never let her alone and in the end she gives up struggling with them.

Some scenes burn themselves into the memory: her return to the drab little English town that was her home and the terrible scene with her mother; the days in the convalescent home that is really an insane asylum, where she takes care of one of the inmates until she is nearly driven crazy, herself; the final episode where she sits at a table in a cheap café opposite her lover, about whom she has lost her last illusion.

"To the Valiant," by Norah C. James, is entirely unlike her first, sensational book, "Sleeveless Errand." It does not deal with Bohemia, but with a poverty stricken but courageous English family of the lower class. It is the story of an intense devotion of two brothers, one of them blind, and of what happens when both fall in love with the same girl. The character of the sightless Benny is wonderfully done. He is the most lifelike of the group of seven about whom the tale revolves.

NORAH C. JAMES.

Miss James writes in an earnest, straightforward manner that has a certain appeal, but that would be greatly enhanced by a little humor now and then. She paints a good picture with the colors at hand, but they are all gray, black and murky white.

Ancient Animals Are Drawn to Teach Children Alphabet

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.

"The Jaw-breaker's Alphabet," by Eunice and Janet Tietjens. [Boni.]
"More Heroes of Modern Adventure," by Thomas C. Bridges and H. Hessell Tiltman. [Little Brown.]

A's for Archaeopteryx,
Of whom perhaps you've heard,
The up and coming reptile
Who first became a bird.

Thus begins "The Jaw-breaker's Alphabet," by Eunice and Janet Tietjens, a book for which this reviewer does not hesitate to forecast a place among the distinguished juveniles of 1930.

Eunice Tietjens has contributed several fine books to the modern child's library, and this latest one, in the making of which she has collaborated with her young daughter, is but another example of her ability to select and present to young readers material in which they find interest.

To the small child, the book brings entertainment in the humorous verse and pictures, but to the older one it offers not only diversion and the fun of learning "jawbreakers" (a pronouncing table is given at the end of the book) but also promotes a desire to see and know more of these extinct creatures of the early world.

To the keen, wide awake child it may be the veritable opening of a door into a new world. The illustrations by Hermann Post are a valuable part of the book. Full page, done in soft gray tones, and modernistic in style, they are not only interpretive of the text but strangely fascinating in themselves. They will mean something to children, an assertion that cannot always be made of modernistic drawing for juvenile books. Although in picture book format, this is not a book which will be limited to the littlest ones.

Young people of high school age who feel that they must look for their thrills to impossible tales of impossible feats will find a pleasant surprise awaiting them in "More Heroes of Modern Adventure," by Thomas Bridges and H. Hessell Tiltman. In this new series of real adventure there is much that makes the fictional adventure story pale into insignificance. Stirring stories are these of men of our own day who have blazed their way over land and sea, and through the uncharted skies, to add another page to man's history of the universe. It is exceedingly good reading and one finishes the book feeling that life itself is indeed the greatest adventure of all.

Another book in which boys of this age will be interested is "The Scout Jamboree Book," which tells the story of the international jamboree held last year in England.

Falstaff Now in Fiction as 'Good Sir John'

Both Crafty and Powerful Knight of England.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—One of the best of the new English novels, published as I write, and likely to attract considerable attention, is Miss Helen Ashton's "Doctor Serocold." I should advise readers to keep their eyes on Miss Ashton [who really is Mrs. Jordan], for she will presently be recognized as one of the leading young novelists in this country.

PHOEBE F. GAYE.

"Doctor Serocold" is the tale of a single day in the life of an English country doctor. The town in which he lives—a small one, typically English—is beautifully indicated, and the unique opportunity possessed by a doctor of knowing the truth about the dwellers in the town gives Miss Ashton a splendid chance for a colored and absorbing tale.

The doctor, himself, an old man who has been in the town for forty years, is a fine figure; his thoughts, his perceptions, his memories, all give life to the man himself.

Two novels by young writers whose names are familiar in the United States are announced. One is "The Triumphant Footman," by Edith Olivier, the author of "The Love Child" and "As Far as Jane's Grandmother's." The second is Miss Phoebe Fenwick Gaye's "Good Sir John."

I believe that Miss Gaye's "Vivandiere" was as much liked and admired in America as it was in England, and, of course, her second book will be observed with rather sharp eyes. It can stand it. In the first place, instead of trying to repeat her success with "Vivandiere," Miss Gaye has gone right away from the Napoleonic period.

She has taken a time in English history which is far from the beaten track of historical novelists.

More than that, she has shown the utmost daring in her choice of a hero. For "Good Sir John" is none other than Falstaff, himself! He is shown from his birth to his death. In his early days there is even something Gargantuan about him. He is the boy to Shakespeare's man—as blustering, as large and strong, as unscrupulous as he can be. Miss Gaye tells the story of the way in which he received his knighthood. She does more than this, also, for she sets his history against a background of England.

There is the peasants' war, there is the great plague, there is the battle of Poictiers, there is the coronation of Henry V., there is Bartholomew fair, and there are a dozen other vividly described scenes. Moreover, Miss Gaye has avoided another mistake. She has not tried to make her characters talk in an archaic way. They talk as directly as we do.

Accordingly, when we recover from the shock of reading modern speeches in this ancient period we read with ease and pleasure. I am sure that "Good Sir John" will provide the world with much amusement and great interest when it is published next month.

CLINK OF TANKARDS, WELL ROARED SONGS FILL THESE PAGES

"Drawn from the Wood," by Frank Shay [Macaulay], bears the subtitle "Consolations in Words and Music for Pious Friends and Drunken Companions, Collected from Curious Sources" meaning, we judge, the words and music collected from curious sources, and not the pious friends and drunken companions. Like its predecessors, it is a collection of bibulous songs, words and music, and has priceless illustrations by John Held Jr.

There are seventy-five "Memory Choking and Thirst Provoking Recipes from the Good Old Days That Are Gone Beyond Recall."

One page is devoted to "The Seven Stages of Inebriety" which are, according to the author: 1. Happy. 2. Tight. 3. Drunk. 4. Squiffy. 5. Binged. 6. Stinko. 7. Blotto.

Germans Build Statue to Baron von Munchhausen

They are building a statue to a liar in Germany, and in America his lies, which have been popular for generations, have been brought out in a sumptuous volume. A group of public spirited citizens in Hanover is raising a fund to erect a statue to Baron von Munchhausen. The Limited Editions club issued a handsome edition of his tales. It is a reprint of the famous Raspe edition of 1786. It has, however, an introduction by Carl Van Doren on lies and the art of lying. It is illustrated with twelve woodcuts by John Held Jr. There are only 1,500 copies.

Maurois Tells Life of Byron, and His Loves

Strikes True Note of the Stormy Poet's Career.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Byron," by André Maurois. [Appleton.]

M. Maurois has written a third biography to stand beside his "Ariel" and "Disraeli." With the latest he proves again his remarkable gift of biographical writing, for, with three such different characters, he has made three quite as different histories of their lives.

Some of our popular modern biographers are themselves, first of all, and then the recorders of their heroes. Mr. Ludwig certainly is that. Every biography he ever has written has been done in the same tempo. The same technique is employed. Only the varying enthusiasm of the author and the chronologies of his heroes differentiate one from another. His biographies always are Emil Ludwig's idea of and his reactions to his heroes.

André Maurois tempers his technical and his stylistic methods to his subjects. His "Ariel" caught so completely the spiritual "Arieleness" of Shelley, his readers thought that the style and method expressed Maurois. They were slightly disappointed when "Disraeli" was less ecstatic, less evanescent, less soul stirring. But Maurois fitted his style to his subject matter as a truly great biographer always does.

"Byron" is the record of a tumultuous, gentle, cruel, generous, patriotic, internationally minded, bitter, sweet, eager, disillusioned, egotistic, shy, passionate, woman ridden soul. For Byron's was a cauldron mind of seething emotions, a soul torn by evil and good, a body maimed and starved, but torn by passions.

Shelley was all spirit; Disraeli all intellect. Byron was a mind at war with a body, a body and a mind at war with a soul. He never was alive except under warring emotions. A merely intense emotion which had no conflicts to heighten its zest palled immediately. It is that constant turmoil, self-induced when circumstances did not provide it, that M. Maurois succeeds so skillfully in getting into the record of Byron's life.

The author approaches his subject with scholarly detachment. He never offers excuses. He never explains. He states the facts which researches have brought to light. But he is so skillful in his understanding of his hero that his setting down of Byron's life has the intense quality of that soul-torn human.

No writer ever has had a more melodramatic hero for fiction or fact. The son of two families, both of whom had wildness in them to such an extent that it bordered on insanity, Byron was a child cut off from his kind by lameness, never seeing his father, hating his mother because she was crude and cruel and too devoted to him, living in lowly rooms, fetching beer from the corner pub for the doctor who bandaged his foot so cruelly that tears streamed down his face and dropped off a jaw clenched lest he cry out. At the age of ten he came into his title. He was surprised to find he did not look any different because he was a lord. At fifteen he suffered his first passionate love, for the daughter of the Chaworths, reft apart from the Byrons by a murder, a girl who married another after accepting his adoration for a summer of torture and bliss to him, and giving him only her hand to kiss. That love marked his whole life, his biographer feels; it gave him a beau ideal of woman which years of debauchery never effaced.

A gloomy Scotch Calvinism, on which was superimposed a Voltairean deism, the result of school and college days, formed the battle ground of his religion. His morals were a mêlée of an inherited wildness and the laxness of the period coated by his first contact with love, by a sentimental attachment for purity and inaccessibility, a trait he strove passionately to kill. By starving himself he had lost the puffiness of his childhood and emerged a being of almost unrivaled beauty. Such a boy it was who woke one day to find himself famous. It was inevitable that adoring women would make fools of themselves about him. His affairs of the heart were the talk of every one. He was mentioned with Napoleon, whom he admired extravagantly, as one of the two great men of the day.

Before Byron was twenty-five the world was at his feet. It gave him every reason to believe that he, its king, could do no wrong. His love for his half sister, their liaison, the birth of their child, worried his friends, but in his Olympian fastness he took no heed. When he married a woman who loved him too well, and believed too strongly in the sanctity of marriage to forgive his inner battles, his world fell about him. "Incest" was cried from the housetops of the fashionable world. He was forced to leave England. He embroidered his exile in Italy with debauchery. He added a liaison so faithful that it was more tying than a marriage. He enjoyed a friendship with Shelley. Finally he made the last grand and noble gesture of giving his fortune and his life for the freedom of Greece.

Any one of the phases of that gaudy life would furnish a fiction writer with golden material.

André Maurois is a great novelist [as he is a great biographer] because he has the inestimable skill of understanding his fellow men. "Byron" has all the fascination of an epic novel, because its author has set down enough of his hero's inner being to make that strange, warring soul understandable to men and women of a day and a spirit completely removed from the exotic eighteenth and earlier nineteenth centuries and that strange, torn, bitter soul. M. Maurois does that by a pen which no one can deny is really great.

Rupert Hughes Writes Another on Washington

Finds Public Appetite for Myths Declines.

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—As surprising to Rupert Hughes as the reception accorded the first volume of his "George Washington" is the greeting now accorded volume III., only it's a nicer surprise. He had come to expect from the postman a daily dozen of denunciation, vituperation and "how dare you's."

RUPERT HUGHES.

But the public, shocked by the revelation that the Father of their Country was not a myth but a man, have had their say, or run out of postage stamps. Now the public—steered off George by school book legends—is beginning to discover his real self. These readers are agog about what a grand human being he was—are writing in to demand Volume IV.

Though Mr. Hughes has written many a serial—having about 40 to his credit—he had no idea he was starting another when he commenced the Washington biography. Its immediate cause was that speech of his three years ago which had such unforeseen reverberations round the world—in India the occasion was pictured as a riot. "I had to write the book in self-defense," he has said. But the "remote cause," it became evident in the course of conversation over the tea cups in the roomy east side apartment for which he has deserted Hollywood, was the spending of several years in historical research before he commenced writing fiction.

Then, two of his novels concerned with the colonial period led to further research, and having glimpsed the real Washington, he was fascinated to continue the pursuit of fact through the thousands of documents which can bear true witness.

Warm lively brown eyes . . . a shock of hair the lighter brown of a wintered oak leaf . . . Mr. Hughes is an engaging raconteur, has a readiness with the apt word, a gift of mimicry to abet his sense of humor.

"Lobagola, an African Savage's Own Story," is an important feature of Knopf's spring list. A tea party last week in the spacious library of the Knopf offices introduced the author; Bata Kindai Amgoza Ibn Lobagola is his full name. Chance snatched him out of his jungle life at the age of seven; for four years he was reared as a household pet in the home of a Glasgow merchant. Now, at forty-one, snowy white hair heightening the bronze of his skin and the flashing intensity of his eyes, he wanders from continent to continent, a man without a country.

His returns to his home in the isolated bush have proved that for him primitive life is no longer possible, he is utterly foreign in Harlem—among the white race he is received as an interesting acquaintance, a curiosity. He has many friends, but nothing of real kinship that makes for contentment. "I wouldn't want to live through it again," he says of his amazing life, "but I wouldn't have had it happen otherwise—I wouldn't have missed it."

"Give me liberty to know, to utter and to argue freely according to my conscience, above all other liberties."
—Milton.

UNCLE SAM, MENDICANT.

In order to keep the disarmament conference alive, if only half alive, the American delegates are reported to have made a handsome offer to Japan, and that offer, it is intimated, will be accepted. In 1936, it is agreed, Japan is to have 108,000 tons of cruisers armed with 8 inch guns, while the United States is to have 15 big cruisers with a total tonnage of 150,000. The American right to build three more such ships is conceded, but it is not to be exercised. Theoretical ships have their uses in conferences, perhaps, but they seem to lack some of the more practical aspects for which navies are built.

The latest turn of the negotiations is another reminder of the lack of address displayed by the American representatives in this as in the Washington naval conference. We had all the aces. We had in 1921, in process of construction, the largest navy in the world and we had the money to go through with the building of it. The other naval powers were impoverished and most of them owed us billions of dollars besides. We need not have asked terms; we were in a position to make them, and the other powers must have accepted what we offered if it was at all fair.

Britain did not concede parity to us; we conceded parity to Britain. In 1921 we might have forced Britain to accept reasonable terms not only in regard to battleships but also in regard to every other naval classification. As it was, we gave away superiority in big ships and left the questions of cruiser and submarine ratios to future conferences, blissfully unmindful of the fact that in these classifications we were inferior and would therefore come up to a future conference in a less favorable bargaining position.

Mr. Stimson and his colleagues inherited that situation, but they still might have dominated any naval conference they entered because the United States, among all the powers, is conspicuously solvent. The total cost of our navy last year was about met by the taxes paid on cigarets alone. England is groaning under the burden of taxation, and whereas our income tax rates have been reduced, Britain's appear destined to increase if the Labor government continues its ventures in social legislation.

We could not have lost the conference if we had stood pat, for the reduction of naval expenditures is a matter of vastly more importance to other countries than to us. With reason and sincerity on our side, we might have said that we would consider proposals for limitation, but if they were not acceptable we would continue to build as we chose. Instead our representatives appear to have taken the absurd position that the failure of the conference would constitute a nameless humiliation to the American people. Accordingly, we have already undercut our preconference estimate of our minimum requirements with relation to Great Britain, without compensation; and now, it is intimated, we have conceded to Japan a cruiser strength 72 per cent of our own, although the Washington ratio was 60 and the maximum preconference demand of the Japanese was only 70. We have done this only to keep alive a conference of which the United States, of all nations, had the least need.

ANOTHER STATE WAR.

The Texas legislature by joint resolution has requested the people of the state to boycott all Wisconsin products. This is in retaliation. The Wisconsin real estate brokers' board discharged its secretary, John L. Newman, because he bought a ten acre citrus fruit orchard in the lower Rio Grande valley. Another Texas grievance is that the Wisconsin board will not license dealers to sell Texas land.

It may seem incredible in Wisconsin that any one who could deal in Wisconsin land or buy it there would want to get into the lower valley of the Rio Grande, but states are very touchy on the subject of their real estate offerings and the climate which goes with them. Anything short of unrestrained enthusiasm for the soil, healthfulness, and prospects of, say, the Apache trail, Death valley, the Florida everglades, etc., will be regarded locally as malevolence.

It was probably expecting too much of Texas to submit in silence when the purchaser of a Rio Grande citrus fruit orchard was punished for giving this evidence of confidence in lower Texas realty. The method of retaliation reveals latent errors and faults in the composition of the republic. The fathers no doubt thought they had established free commercial intercourse between the states when they prohibited interstate tariffs, but nevertheless something can be done with the embargo, particularly when one state wants to keep the fruit of another out of its markets, and now the boycott, the favorite Chinese defensive weapon, opens up new possibilities.

Presumably the intervening states can keep Wisconsin and Texas from marching at each other, but nevertheless things are not as they should be in a more perfect Union. There are new disintegrating as well as new integrating forces at work in the country. The latter include good roads and better means of communication, but there also are conflicting interests. California hogs an interstate water development. Lake states try to prevent the successful use of a waterway to the gulf. States are surly toward each other because of national prohibition. Their social habits clash and they are contemptuous of each other's morality or intelligence. They fall out over tariff legislation, and Texas declares that Wisconsin does not exist commercially.

GIVE THE CONSCRIPT FATHERS A TURN.

As the senate lobby committee lengthens its days and extends its record the rationale of its procedure becomes more and more obscure. It is apparent that the Caraway senators are having their fun. They are inquisitors. The position generally gratifies the one who exercises its functions. Nothing protects the victim except his wits. No restraint is placed upon the examination except considerations of good taste and fair play, and consequently there is no restraint at all. The senators first eliminated all moralistic lobbies from their thought and thereby assured themselves that they would keep out of trouble.

They apparently are on a political fishing trip, although virtually all they have accomplished in this is to make Mr. Grundy of Pennsylvania a senator instead of a lobbyist. Instead of being an enemy of society, he is now one of the Conscript Fathers themselves with the privileges of the brotherhood. They have, indeed, made Senator Bingham pallidly mad with a resolution of censure, but that in itself suggests the rational procedure for the senators.

Lobbyists always have been in Washington and probably always will be. They've been much alike and supposedly it is part of the system that interests to be affected by legislation should seek to affect it. But of senators there are many kinds. Nothing disreputable can be done in the senate unless the senators themselves do it. Each one is presumably in full possession of information revealing what he has been doing or intends to do and why.

An irreproachable senate is proof against all the lobbyists in the world. If anything is going wrong it must be because senators are modifying that virtue which must prevail. Therefore, it would seem precisely to the point if the Caraway committee placed each senator on the stand in his turn and dug into his life and works with that can opener technique which Senator Caraway enjoys and with the acid tests for which Mr. Walsh of Montana has a genius. The members of the committee then in their turn could be subjected to the attentions of Senator Grundy and Senator Bingham, and the whole story of lobbying in Washington would be open.

It is not so much what the lobbyists try to do that is important. It is what, perchance, they succeed in doing. It might be good or it might be bad, but only the senators themselves can give the full account of it.

GOLDEN GLOVES.

Twenty-one thousand tickets for the Golden Gloves boxing bouts next Wednesday were printed. Virtually all of them were sold a week in advance. The record is unprecedented in the history of boxing in Chicago, amateur or professional.

A team of amateurs, chosen in an elimination tournament conducted by THE TRIBUNE, is to compete against a team similarly chosen by the New York Daily News. The boys, for the most part, are clever boxers, but no one can pretend that their efforts will compare technically with those of professional pugilists. The eagerness of the public to see the bouts cannot be explained, either, on the ground that prices are lower than is generally charged. Experiments have been made in Chicago with popular priced fights and they have not been notably successful.

The public interest in these bouts can be explained only on the ground that they are conspicuously and notably on the square. The public enjoys pugilism, but it has become skeptical of most of the pugilism which it has been invited to attend. No one doubts that the Chicago boys want to knock the New Yorkers into Lake Michigan if they can, and the corresponding desire and purpose of the New Yorkers. There will be no intentional fouling, no stalling, and no histrionics in these scraps. Hence their popularity.

As DON MAXWELL, THE TRIBUNE'S sporting editor, well says, the success of these bouts proves that there is a corrective for crooked sport. The public sooner or later will desert the crooks and will flock to the honest exhibitions. He might have added that the public, in the long run, is a much better regulator of sporting events than all the athletic commissions of all the states together.

Editorial of the Day

BEAUTY FOR SALE.

[New York Sun.]

"Art has come to the dishpan, to the washstand, to the dust mop," said Dr. Julius Klein of the department of commerce the other day in an address on art as a new force in business. It is not a force so new, however, that the modern world can claim all the credit for its discovery. Pink bathtubs and artistic teakettles are products of a rediscovery of an ancient practice. The Greeks of 2,500 years ago wrought oil and wine vases of eternal beauty. To these and many other common household utensils the Athenians gave perfection of form and fine decoration.

It was left to a later and more crass civilization to set up the specious division of objects into things beautiful and things useful. Thereafter and for a long and very recent period only works created for an ornamental purpose were considered artistic. By such devious reasoning useful things became ugly; they were not made to be looked at—why consider their design? Yet for ages these useful things had always held their own as products of the minor arts, until they thus succumbed to a materialism that strove to divorce beauty from the practical concerns of daily life.

At last, less than a decade ago, came the enterprising business man with his new knowledge of sales psychology and of feminine appeal. He has made all things, even beauty, grist for his mill. So by the same path through materialism by which art left the common things it has returned with redoubled force.

It springs from a sound economic principle, this flight into the realm of art which modern business has taken; for it is a powerful appeal to the instinctive taste of the women shoppers for pretty things, a taste which does not resent a touch of beauty even in dust mops and washstands. But it is more than a profitable sales appeal. It is a cultural force that, if not dissipated in a straining toward extremes, may eventually help to raise the level of popular taste.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. WALT MASON

THAT PLANET WILL ONLY HELP TEMPORARILY—

and then we're liable to slide back in the doldrums again. It was a life saver, of course. The wet-and-dry argument in Washington seems to have lost its kick and the naval parley in London—ho hum, set 'em up in the other alley. But along zooped the new planet and everybody tried to look interested, although the fool thing is billions of miles away.

But it helped, the planet did. You could tell the wife you got home so late because you wanted to take a look at the ninth planet. The farm board grabbed at it because if they can get the farmers to climb up on top of the barn and stick around there looking for the new planet then they won't be planting wheat and overstuffing the market. The docs will get excited over the new star because it's liable to start some new disease that will become fashionable right away and summer resorts will advertise that their nights are so clear you can read a newspaper by the light from the ninth planet.

SONG FOR LYNN.

Of lacquered Chinese red
Beside my bed,
For the pain, you said.
But I used them up fantastically,
Building a bridge
Star-spiked and light,
To carry my dreams upon.
A span with silver, swinging chains
Across the long dark river of the night.
But when I had crossed and won
The pale pink shores, and stepped upon
Those sands of pearl that were the dawn,
The bridge, my dreams, the pain,
And the little pile of pills
Of lacquered Chinese red,
That you had left beside my bed,
Were gone . . .

LYNNETTE.

JOE HARD sneers most contemptuously at all the salvos of artillery and the sounding of trumpets over the finding of the ninth planet. "Seazy," says Joseph; "let them birds with the telescopes and things get busy and discover the fourth player when there's three that want to play bridge. Now there's something to holler about."

REGARDING a name for the new planet (we do hope they don't call it Cuthbert) we refuse to get excited about it. We absolutely will not get excited about something we can't see. And, anyhow, we will wait until the commission is appointed to investigate it fully. By the time the commission gets through investigating we won't care even if they name the planet Suzie, if it is that kind of a planet..

THA DUKE SPEEKS FREELY TO THA LANDLORD.

Dick: When we got hitched tha B. an' C. tole tha lysence clerk her name was Dooley. Evidently she was traveling under a nondy-ploomy 'cause if she aint a gypsy I'm a kangaroo. Every time it comes March she gets tha moving bug. Lass night I was sitting in tha kitchen watchin her open tha soup when she advises me that its time to tell tha lanlord that we aint staying on. I was under tha impression that everthing was Jake an that my next moving wood be about 2 minits after tha undertaker rendered that pleasing little ditty entitled "all those desiring a last look." Ennyway, when I braces her as to what's tha big idea she pulls that stale old pun about me only occupying tha place at sleepin an eatin time. If I had had my way I'd skip those 2 studies an show up once a week juss long enough to shove tha weekly allowance under tha back door. Well, I goes down to tha landlord an tells him tha dirt an gave him tha 9 reasons why we was'n interested in being naybores any longer an whadda ya think, he don't even appear interested. This kinda makes me feel like a goof and I shifts tha atack by telling him there's a slight chance of our staying providin certain cleaning wood be done an still he don't open his bazoo. This calls fer a little diplomacy on my part and I tells him he cood ferget tha leaky faucets as I bought a copy of "Be your own plumber" an maybe I cood do tha fixin myself. This don't get a rise either so I figgers I better get a little snooty an asks him point blank as to how much tha rent was gonna be reduced, still no answer. By this time I'm burning up and I asks him "How tha hell is it you aint deef an' dumb when we're a few weeks late with tha rent?" Finally he opens his trap an I figures we're gonna get somewhere, but instead of talking he just yawns and slams tha door in my puss.

When I gets up stairs I tells tha Mama how I made a bum out of his niba, espeshully when I tole him we woodn' live in his dump if tha rent was free an also how he damn near went down on his knees beggin us to stay. Well, tha Mama listens to tha story but all tha time she's got a heluva funny look on her map an when I gets all through she tells me that either I'm hittin tha dope or else I'm just plain off my nut because while I was gone a woman came in with a decorator an a plummer an instructed them how to fix up tha flat. When tha Mama asks her as to what's tha big idea she displays a lease signed 2 weeks ago. By this time I tried to crawl down tha drain in tha kitchen sink. DUKE BAKRAK.

P. S.—But tha holes was all too big.

ANYHOW, they've discovered the cause of disseminated sclerosis. As all these horrible diseases you can't pronounce are usually caused by some very ordinary and innocent looking little animal, we'll bet disseminated sclerosis is caused by the kick of a canary bird.

THIS WAY to the wailing wall! And make it snappy. No foolin'. This is the 15th of March! What of it, whats you. All right, nothing at all. Go ahead, do as you like, but don't say we didn't tell you to make out your income tax statement toda-ay.

THE IRISH FREE STATE says it's lost money on its bumper potato crop this year because English girls are trying to keep their figgers slim. And wheat is bumping around the dollar mark because you one hundred percenters don't eat enough wheat cakes. Mr. Legge hasn't thought of that yet and he'll have to admit we beat him to it.

CHEER UP! Certainly it's spring and things are green again. Next Monday is St. Patrick's day in the mornin'. R. H. L.

PAINFUL HEEL.

WE have a letter from a man about a pain in his heel. This man is given to long distance driving and has noticed that his pain follows such driving. This one came in the course of a drive of several hundred miles.

The common name for this trouble is motorist's heel or driver's heel. The heel is not fashioned for the work automobile driving throws on it and it shows its resentment by pain. The bottom of the foot is heavily padded with fat and this is covered by very heavy skin. This arrangement is necessary for comfort in walking. The back and sides of the heel are not so covered. The heavy bones and the rigid ligaments and tendons are covered by almost no padding and the skin is thin. The work of the foot on the accelerator in driving throws a strain on the unpadded parts of the heel. If this be continued for several days, or even hours, the heel becomes sore and painful.

As a rule no treatment except rest is needed. The application of radiant heat or heat of any kind may prove helpful, though seldom necessary. If there be a swelling under or by the side of the large tendon, or anywhere back of the ankle bones and above the heel, it is probably caused by an inflamed bursa.

Wherever a tendon or ligament passes over a bone a protective pad or bursa is apt to be found. These bursas or pads are for the purpose of lessening rubbing and friction and thus preventing soreness and pain. Any bursa is liable to become inflamed. A persisting painful motor heel points to an inflamed bursa as a cause. If the inflammation be simple rest may be the only treatment required. However, even after the pain has disappeared, the bursa may continue large enough to be seen and felt. It is then similar to the ganglia found around the wrist joint. An enlarged bursa is a little apt to get in the way and to be hurt or to become painful.

Such an enlarged bursa is a small sac of jellylike material. The common method of treatment is to break the sac by a sharp blow, after which the jelly absorbs and the bursa disappears. Rarely is removal by operation advisable. Occasionally bursas become infected; this is not so trivial a matter.

There are other forms of painful heel besides that due to driving. Among them are those due to spurs on the heel bone, rheumatism, gout, infection with gonococci or other pus cocci.

FEET COLD ALL TIME.

P. S. writes: My feet are cold all the time, even when I am in a warm room or a warm bed. What makes them so cold and can I do anything for it? I am 38 years old.

REPLY:

The common name for this is poor circulation. The symptoms are due to deficient blood in the skin of your feet. Back of it lies poor functioning of your vasomotor system, causing improper distribution of blood. Young people try to overcome it by a process of hardening, so-called. This consists in bathing the feet in cold water, rubbing them with ice or with clean snow. This treatment is followed immediately by rubbing, or by using warm water to get up a good red glow.

Old people overcome the symptom by wearing warm, very loose shoes, warm stockings, and covering the feet well at night.

HAY FEVER SUFFERER.

R. S. writes: I have hay fever. I had it very bad last summer in spite of fifteen injections. This summer will be the third season I have had it. Do you think the beach would help or would you recommend the mountains?

REPLY.

If you know which pollen causes your trouble you can run away from hay fever intelligently by finding out which pollens prevail in different localities and at what season.

Systematic pollen counts have been made in a considerable number of places for the last year or two.

As a rule, mountains less than five thousand feet high have plenty of pollen in the air. Beach resorts differ according to location, climate, and prevailing winds.

TUBERCULAR SPINE.

Mrs. A. W. writes: 1. What are the causes of tubercular spine?

2. If a man who is pronounced cured marries, would this disease be apt to affect his children?

REPLY.

1. Infection with the tubercle bacillus. Among the possible contributing causes are injuries, drinking raw milk, and eating products made from raw milk.

2. No.

WAGE CUT HITS RENTER.

Chicago, March 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can a landlord hold me to a lease if I cannot pay my rent? My wages have been cut so that it is impossible for me to pay it. I would move into a stove heated flat if the landlord could not hold me to my lease. 2. Could he attach my salary or take my furniture? M. L. D.

1. If you cannot pay, that is another way of saying that he cannot collect, but obviously you would remain liable.

2. Yes.

PROPERTY INHERITANCE.

Chicago, March 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. My real estate and bank accounts are held in joint tenancy by my wife and myself. I have some stock in my name, but have assigned it to my wife on the usual stock assignment blank. 2. In the event of my death, would my wife have absolute right to the real estate, bank accounts, and stock? 3. Would there be any inheritance tax? 4. In the event of her death would the same revert to me without litigation (assuming that I destroy the stock assignment)? 5. Would you recommend such an arrangement in preference to a will? O. H. H.

1. If the instrument expressly provides for joint tenancy as distinguished from tenancy in common, the surviving joint tenant will take to the exclusion of the heirs or devisees of the one who dies first.

2. The mere fact that you have indorsed the certificates would not technically make them the property of your wife, but it is conceivable that she might succeed in effecting the transfer after your death.

3. Yes.

4. Depends on the wording of the indorsement, upon the facts as to delivery, etc.

5. No. At any rate we would advise you to consult an attorney in arranging either the will or the substitute for a will.

PROJECTING SIGN.

Chicago, March 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Is a permit required by the city to hang a sign projecting over the sidewalk? L. T. S.

Yes.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 15, 1865.

WASHINGTON.—Dispatches from Gens. Sherman and Schofield were received by the war department. Gen. Sherman's dispatch, dated at Laurel Hill, N. C., March 8, says: "We are all well and have done finely." Details are, for obvious reasons, omitted. Gen. Schofield's dispatch states that on the night of March 10, near Southwest creek, Bragg's rebel force was fairly beaten, that Bragg retreated across the Neuse river at Kinston, N. C., and now holds the banks of the river there.

FORTRESS MONROE.—The base of supplies for Gen. Sherman's army, in view of his rapid movements northward, is to be established at Wilmington, N. C. His chief quartermaster arrived at Wilmington and all transports and other vessels laden with supplies have been ordered from both Charleston, S. C., and Savannah, with orders to report at New Inlet, N. C.

CONCORD, N. H.—The election was a glorious Union victory. Frederick Smyth, Republican, was elected governor over Edward H. Harrington, Democrat, by a majority that will exceed 6,000.

WASHINGTON.—It is pretty well established that another considerable portion of Gen. Lee's army, comprising Mahon's division, has left our front at Petersburg. It is supposed to have gone to arrest the movements of Sheridan. A rebel corporal says it was currently reported in Lee's army that Sheridan has already captured Lynchburg, after a brief battle.

CHICAGO.—The Hibernian Benevolent society elected these officers: President, David Walsh; vice presidents, Patrick Fignegan and Daniel H. O'Brien; treasurer, Patrick Power, and secretary, William Lewis. The committee on arrangements for the St. Patrick day celebration announced that John Eden will be chief marshal of the parade.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 15, 1900.

LONDON.—Bloemfontein, the capital of the Orange Free State, is in the hands of Lord Roberts and the British flag floats over the statehouse. President Steyn fled from his capital before it was occupied. It is believed here that Lord Roberts will use Bloemfontein as his advanced base of supplies. President Steyn went to Kroonstad, which he has made the new capital. It is a town of 2,000, mostly Boers.

CHICAGO.—Rice showered on the daughter of Judge Henry Freeman and her newly wedded husband, Henry Coe Culbertson of Cincinnati, as they left the Freeman residence, 5760 Woodlawn avenue, after the marriage, caused an exciting runaway. The bride, who was Miss Mabel D. Freeman, and the groom had a narrow escape from serious or fatal injury. Police stopped the frightened team at 35th street and Lake avenue.

CHICAGO.—The Rev. Edwin A. Schell sued the Rev. Dr. Charles Parkhurst of Boston and the Rev. Dr. Joseph Berry and the Rev. Dr. H. C. Jennings of Chicago for $25,000 damages for forcing him from the general secretaryship of the Epworth league which he held for seven years.

KALAMAZOO, Mich.—Mrs. Lucinda H. Stone, Ph. D., died at her home in this city at the age of 86. She was one of the early leaders in the woman's club movement and her work in organizing woman's clubs in the west and especially in Michigan gave her the title of "Mother of Woman's Clubs."

NEW YORK.—The Rev. Thomas K. Beecher of Elmira, N. Y., brother of the late Henry Ward Beecher, and his sister, Mrs. Mary Foote Beecher Perkins of Hartford, Conn., both died yesterday, at their respective homes. They were the last but two of the surviving children of Lyman Beecher.

MARCH 15, 1920.

BERLIN.—With the citizens' guard "armed and ready to prevent civil war," Germany awaits tomorrow's developments, fearing that a conflict between the northern and southern sections will break. Berlin is practically tied up, with many of the workers out and the general strike called by the deposed Ebert government spreading all over Germany.

PARIS.—Independent Socialists and communists met at Mannheim and decided to take advantage of the present situation in Germany and proclaim a soviet government, Basel advices say. A dispatch from Copenhagen to L'Intransigeant says that former Prince Eitel Friedrich, second son of the exkaiser, will be placed on the German throne. Marshal Foch will leave at once for Mayence to participate in a conference of allied generals on the German situation.

CHICAGO.—Miss Phillippe Marshall Brown, daughter of Mrs. Frank Townley Brown, 426 Surf street, ran away from Ely Court, a girls' school at Greenwich, Conn., eluded detectives, met George G. Grupe Jr. of Cedar Rapids, Ia., a war aviator, here and they were secretly married at the home of Walter H. Johnson, 1555 Pratt boulevard. Their romance began during the war when they met and fell in love, but the parental dictum then was "too young—wait a while." Mrs. Brown is reconciled.

CHICAGO.—Mr. and Mrs. William R. Dawes of Evanston announce the engagement of their daughter, Eleanor, to Will Hamilton Walter, also of Evanston.

PROHIBITION DEATHS.

Chicago, March 12.—In testifying for the drys on March 6 Patrick H. Callahan of Louisville, Ky., is quoted as saying prohibition has saved 100,000 lives in 11 years, largely, I assume, because he states that deaths from cirrhosis of the liver have decreased 4.7 per 100,000 population and Bright's disease 13.8. Although his figures for the number of lives saved are insignificant compared to statements made by other drys, I wish to challenge his statement.

In the wet era deaths from cirrhosis of the liver decreased from 14.0 per 100,000 population in 1911 to 9.6 in 1918, an average decline of over 0.6 per year. Even if it only decreased 0.3 per year after 1918 it would be 7.5 by 1925, which is the average amount for the 1920-29 decade. Thus it can be seen that it is very doubtful if prohibition was responsible at all for the decreases.

In Great Britain, without prohibition, deaths from cirrhosis of the liver decreased from 10.3 in 1913 to 4.5 in 1927. In Australia in 1927 the rate was 5.2 and in New Zealand 5.0. From 1924 to 1926 our mortality records reported only 6.0 per cent of cirrhosis deaths as alcoholic. Dry Kansas, with a cirrhosis death rate of 7.5 in 1927, had as high a death rate as the entire nation.

Death rates from Bright's disease in the United States decreased from 101.0 per 100,000 population in 1910-'19 decade to 92.0 in 1920-'29 decade, but the average annual deaths were 100,000 in former decade and 104,000 in the latter. Deaths from this disease in Great Britain decreased from 42.2 in 1913 to 35.6 in 1927. In the latter year the figures were 55.0 for Canada and 50.7 for Australia.

Average death rates from alcoholism in the United States for the last four decades are as follows: 1890 to 1900, 7.5 per 100,000 population; 1900-'10, 6.2; 1910-'20, 4.6; 1920-'30, 3.5. Thus it can be seen that death rates from alcoholism were decreasing before prohibition.

The following figures taken from 1925 mortality records show female deaths per 1,000 male deaths in the United States: All causes, 858; Bright's disease, 888; cirrhosis of the liver, 561; alcoholism, 111. Thus it can be seen that there is only a remote connection between alcoholism, cirrhosis of the liver, and Bright's disease.

JOSEPH GALLAGHER.

WHY WE FOUGHT.

Chicago, March 11.—The first prize winner in THE TRIBUNE'S 500 word history contest makes in his last paragraph, when he speaks about the United States' entry into the world war, a statement which will be hard to substantiate. It is a reiteration of the charges so wildly circulated during the height of hysteria before and during America's participation in the great struggle.

Unbiased and honest historians of today agree that the atrocities attributed to the German submarines were mere war propaganda and as such lacking the foundations of truth. Germany no more violated the United States' neutrality than did Great Britain. The reason generally advanced for this country's entry into the war is the sinking of the Lusitania. But is it equally well known that this was an English ship, flying the English flag, and, according to supposedly very reliable information, carrying ammunition on board? Would the British not have done the same if the conditions had been reversed?

The truth in the matter seems to be that leading Wall street interests had advanced so much financial assistance to the cause of the allies that they were greatly interested in their victory. Since the allies alone could not accomplish this end, a reason had to be found for the U. S. entry, which, due to its vast human and material resources, would assure the defeat of Germany.

G. R. PORA.

LOVE, BAH!

Chicago, March 6.—Where does Sidney Smith get his idea that Scooge is a modern Shylock? Why mention 40 per cent in such terms of greedy glee?

Scooge is a philanthropist, a Santa Claus in the rough. Far from taking undue toll of the widow Zander, he is lending her money definitely under the market. His interest rate is 2 per cent under the rate charged by most of the concerns to whom widows in distress must turn for credit. Their 3½ per cent a month is 42 per cent a year, you know.

If Scooge is not strictly ethical his offense is not against poor Henrietta, but rather a case of unfair competition with his brethren. W. B. JONES.

CALENDAR REFORM.

Hinsdale, Ill., March 11.—The widespread agitation in behalf of revision of the present calendar, the favorable consideration being given to such revision by the league of nations and also by many organizations, both secular and religious, provokes me to drop a line of protest, setting forth some of the results involved in such a change. As the Cotsworth calendar is the only one that is receiving any favorable consideration it is the only one of which I will speak.

This Cotsworth calendar would, as we all know, take our present year and divide it into thirteen months of 28 days each, appointing that the first day of each year and each month shall always fall on the first day of the week. These thirteen months would give us a total of 364 days. Now if the year were exactly 364 days long it would be an easy matter, but the year is unchangeably fixed by the earth's circuit around the sun and its length is a little more than 365 days long. So this proposed calendar gets us into a terrible mixup.

It is proposed that this calendar shall go into effect Jan. 1, 1933, which date is on Sunday, the first day of the week. There being exactly four weeks in each of the thirteen months, the last day of each month would come on Saturday, of course. Now when we reach the last day of the thirteenth month we have reached Saturday, the 364th day of the year, but the year it if cannot expire until a full 24 hour day later. The proposal that is made to merely call that 365th day a blank day, and skip it altogether and begin the new week on the day following would disarrange altogether the present weekly cycle, which is a terribly serious matter.

Whence came the weekly cycle to us? The only authority that we have for it is God's appointment of it at creation. It has come down to us in unbroken succession from then until the present time. Changes of the calendar have been made, but these changes have affected the year and month only. The week has remained unchanged through the centuries. It was established by an act and commandment of God.

He has appointed that man shall observe the Sabbath as the mark of their acceptance of His authority in their lives; therefore, any revision of the calendar which will alter the present regular succession of the week will be an act of defiance of the authority of God.

CLEANING THE POSTOFFICE.

Evanston, Ill., March 11.—Your editorial "More Jobs and Better Business" impresses me. It is to the point. There certainly is a jinx attached to the Chicago postoffice. Delays about the new one, and more messes and fuss and strikes and delays about the old one than about any other modern building I know of. Took us seven years to build it!

And now our benign government, in spite of all the hullabaloo about providing work for the unemployed, won't even wash it for our World's Fair, when everything else will be spruced up. It hasn't been cleaned down, washed or anything since the day I finished it twenty-five years ago. Look at it, and it's a mighty nice pearl gray granite at that, and a bright gold dome!

The cost of sand blasting it (water and soap would have no effect now on a quarter century of Chicago's grime) would be $7,500.

I've written Washington about it, had senators and congressmen and Chicago art societies and important citizens urge the government to do it. But nix; Secretary Mellon and all of 'em rather lamely aver that cleaning the outside of the building is not repair or upkeep (what the dickens is it then?), so there's no appropriation for it, and then they need every penny for the hundreds of millions appropriated for the docks, monuments in Washington and new postoffices and, besides, if they washed the Chicago postoffice every other city would clamor for a laundering of its dirty P. O.! The only thing that we might get is a special act of congress and they don't seem particularly enthusiastic about that.

Since the U. S. is so poor, and since it's such a good provider it can't keep up its buildings once they're built, let's start a subscription. Seven thousand loop business men might cough a dollar a head. Let's clean down the old P. O. and then clean out the city hall. Both most worthy purposes!

The Ace of Spades

By WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINE

SYNOPSIS.

Jim Rutledge, accompanied by Sim Hart, is sent out with a herd of cattle to fulfill a contract made by his father, Chandler Rutledge. On the trail they are overtaken by some men from the Moss outfit, enemies of Rutledge. The Moss men start a stampede and drive off some of the Rutledge cattle. Jim recovers them, but in doing so shoots and kills one of the Moss raiders. The men of the Moss outfit swear to be revenged for the killing and pursue him. Jim takes refuge in a ranch house, where he finds Ellen Lawson alone in the house. She hides him when the Moss gang comes to the house inquiring for him and sends them off on another trail, even though she learns that he has murdered her brother. Jim rides on into the town, after saving Ellen from the unwelcome attentions of Pete Moss. Shear, the town marshal, threatens to arrest him for the attack on Steve Lawson, but Harrison Pendleton, an old trail driver, arrives on the scene in time to save him from arrest. Shortly afterwards Shear kills Doc Brown, who, he claimed, had threatened his life. This causes a great deal of excitement in the little cattle town. Jim goes into the local gambling den and is astonished to find Ellen Lawson there. She tells him she has come to speak to her brother, Steve. Jim guides her to where Steve is sitting in a poker game with Shear, Buck Roe, and others. As they reach the table the lights go out, and when the room is again lighted Shear is found crumpled in his chair dead, with Jim's knife in him. Ellen's right hand is covered with blood. She had become separated from Jim in the dark and some one had jostled her. In putting out her hand for support she had touched the crumpled figure. Jim and Ellen are questioned by the sheriff, Manders, and Jim is arrested, but is later released. Jim is determined to find the murderer to clear himself. Ellen arranged a meeting to prove him innocent, Pete. He suggests that she marry him. They are quietly married and Jim goes on with his investigation.

INSTALLMENT XLII.

A SHOWDOWN.

The sheriff did not lift his hard gaze from the insouciant youth. "Go on," he ordered. "Put your cards on the table."

Jim looked down at the heel in his hand. "I reckon this one wouldn't fit the impression we have, but the mate of it would. And did—like a hand into a glove."

"You're slick, young fellow," Manders said. "How do I know you're not lying? How do I know you've got duplicate casts?"

"You don't," Jim came back. "But I reckon you'll take my word for it. I'm not a plumb fool, sheriff. I'll say that I've been noticing the heels of your boots for se-ve-ral days. Do you think it likely we'd put in yore hands evidence like this until we were sure of you?"

"And you claim the mate to this heel fits one of the tracks you've taken?"

"Fits it to a T. Nobody knows that better than you do. When I saw you brand new heels resting on the table here yesterday I decided I'd like to have the old ones for souvenirs. So I went an' got them."

"I knew I ought to keep you locked up," the sheriff said by way of comment. "You're the world's champion busybody. It beats me how you've managed to live so long."

"Well, you didn't keep me locked up. It's too late now."

Manders drew toward him the newspaper lying on the desk. "I'm not so sure about that. Hickman and I don't usually agree, but he may be right this time. 'Sheriff Manders, do your duty,' he says, meaning for me to bear down hard on Mr. James Rutledge. I've a notion to do it."

"It was too dark to recognize the man, I expect," Jim suggested.

"And you've a better notion not to," Jim answered, his boyish grin writing. "You put yore cards on the table, too, sheriff, unless they're marked ones you daren't show. First off, I take it for granted you claim you're innocent of killing Shear."

"I didn't kill him, but as Mart Brown says I'd subscribe to a gold medal for the fellow who did—if I knew who he was."

"And Brown didn't kill him, by yore way of it?"

"No, nor Brown either."

"If that's the case, what are you worrying about? Come clean with what evidence you've got and work with us."

"Get this right, young fellow," Manders corrected hardily. "I'm not worrying."

"If you killed Shear or helped do it my evidence is poison to you. If not, we'll dig in and find out who did. It's up to you, sheriff."

Manders looked steadily at him. "I'll go you. We'll send for Mart and make it a showdown," he said.

The sheriff and Mart Brown had a long whispering conference before they joined Rutledge and Pendleton.

"We've got very little new to tell you," Manders began. "This young sleuth here worked the whole thing out pretty straight. Mart has told you his story. Fact is, he was making for Shear himself in the dark when he bumped up against the fellow who beat him to it."

"I was leaning against him when the fellow drove the knife into Shear's heart," Brown added. "I want to tell you I never was so surprised in my life. It gave me a jolt, and it didn't take me long to see that it was my job to make a quick getaway. I must have followed the fellow right out of the window."

"It was too dark to recognize the man, I expect," Jim suggested.

Brown waved his hand with a debonair flip of the fingers. "Not interested in recognizing him," he said. "Probably he wouldn't care for my thanks anyhow."

"What makes you think he went out of the window?" Jim asked.

"Maybe he stayed right there. Perhaps you can correct me on that point."

Jim smiled. "As it happens, I can't. Was he a big man?"

"I couldn't swear to that," Brown said, answering his smile.

"I savvy. Anything more to tell us?"

"Nothing except that just as I reached the street I saw the sheriff just ahead of me."

"Going the same way as you?"

"Going right out of the alley between the buildings, four or five feet ahead of me."

"Did you speak to him?"

"I said, 'Drift into the Longhorn. Maybe you'll be surprised.'"

"What did he answer?"

"Said he knew some fellows had been shooting up the place. I told him he'd better go in and learn some good news."

"Was that all either of you said?"

"Yes. He went in the front door of the Longhorn, and I lit out for the Green Parrot. I stayed there maybe half an hour, then went home and got out of my Blackbeard costume."

"Did you think then that the sheriff had killed Shear?"

"No. I thought some fellow who had been in the room all the time had done it. But afterward I wan't so sure. Some one from the alley shot out the lamp. After I talked with Al I knew he hadn't done it."

"Why?"

"He told me he hadn't."

"You think he would tell the truth about it if he had?"

"He'd tell me the truth," the gambler amended. "Why not? It would be safe, and he knew it would. When you told me about the footprints of a third man outside the window I knew he was the fellow that shot out the light and might be the one who had knifed Shear."

"But you don't know who he is?"

"Not the least idea. I'd like to know, too, for my own satisfaction."

"Must have been some mighty close connections," Jim said. "How did it happen this third party and the sheriff didn't meet?"

"Did the third party tell you we didn't meet?" Manders asked.

Jim's eyes were shining. "You mean you did meet him?"

"He brushed by me as he was making his getaway."

"You'd know him again?"

"No, I wouldn't. I was coming up between the buildings from the back when he went by me. It was dark."

"You didn't try to stop him?"

"Why should I try to stop him? I knew there had been some shooting, but I didn't know he had anything to do with it."

"When did you find out what it was?"

"As I stood a moment at the window I heard some one inside say some one had shot out the lights. I didn't wait, but passed right on to Front street. Thought I'd better get inside and see what had happened."

Jim flung a sharp question at him. "How did you happen to come up among the rear of the Longhorn, Mr. Manders?"

"Mrs. Rutledge was responsible for my being there."

"My wife," Jim said blankly.

"Not your wife then. She'd met me a few minutes before and told me her brother Steve was losing a lot of money to Shear and Buck Roe at poker. She'd begged me to go in and get the boy out so she could talk to him. I saw she was worried, but I couldn't do a thing. A man has to stand on his own feet in this town. But I was kind of curious, too. I passed down the street and then along the alley back of the Longhorn. At first I thought I'd go in the back door. But I didn't want to seem to be watching the party, so I thought I would pass the card room window and take a look in. I couldn't have got in anyhow by the back door. Folks were crowding out to see what was the matter. Some one from the alley shot out the lamp. After I talked with Al I knew he hadn't done it."

"Why?"

"He told me he hadn't."

"You think he would tell the truth about it if he had?"

Recent Gifts for Children's Museum Prove of Interest

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Recent gifts which have just been put on exhibition in the Children's Museum of the Art Institute should receive mention. The one is a bronze figure by Renee Sintenes, "Running Colt," an eager little creature, the gift of Charles H. Worcester. The second is "A Rabbit" by Maurice Bardin, a fat smooth bunny carved from wood, very tempting to little hands to pat, the gift of Frank G. Logan. Mr. Logan purchased this from the recently held Chicago Arstists' exhibition upstairs in the institute. A case of miniature objects, all delightful to a child's eye, is a third attraction. It is the gift of Miss Macbeth.

The Ackermann galleries have put on display for the month an extremely interesting and picturesque exhibit of early drawings. The drawings are from the Italian, Dutch, French, and English schools from the sixteenth to the nineteenth centuries. Lorenzo Tiepolo is represented by a beautiful "Group of Angels"; Sir Peter Lily by a charming portrait of a young girl and Sir Godfrey Kneller by an admirable head of Joseph Addison. Benjamin West is responsible for "The Tribute Money" and, by way of parenthesis, a water color along similar lines from his hand will be seen in the International Water Color show which opens next week at the Art institute.

Thomas Rowlandson is represented by several fascinating drawings in color. He is one Hogarthian spirit of whom one never tires. To the frankest and most ordinary pursuits he lends a glamor of color and drama that makes his work an everlasting joy.

Among the other names of importance in the exhibit are John Crome, David Cox, Nicholas Poussin, J. L. Forain, A. Van Ostade, Saftleven, Annibale Caracci, Zucarro, Eugene Fromentin, and Claude Melian.

An exhibition of paintings by Pauline Palmer opens this afternoon in the Carson, Pirie, Scott galleries. Etchings by Zorn and Whistler will be on exhibit in the farther room.

A memorial exhibition of etchings and lithographs by Hedley Fitton, R. E., has been put on view in the Marshall Field galleries to continue through March 22.

Tribune Cook Book

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Garlic.

John Evelyn says: "Garlick, Roccombole, and leeks are all of the same affinity." He mentions some other bulbs of strong scent and says that they "would be very nauseous to us, especially our ladies, unless they were as generally eaten by that nice sex, as they are among those of Spain."

In describing garlic, when he always spells with a k, he characterizes it first as "dry," which the great physicians of his day, who wrote highly valuable books on the medicinal value of foods, used a great deal. He mentions that both the Spaniards and Italians and other southern people eat garlic "familiarly" with almost everything, and esteem it of singular virtue as a seasoning. He says that they also believe it a charm against all infections and poison, for which reason it has obtained the name of "Countryman's Theriacle," which is a nice way of saying it is the rustic's medicine.

Evelyn said that it was proper for our northern rustics, especially those who lived in moist places, or near the sea, and then adds: "Whilst we absolutely forbid it Entrance into our Salleting, by reason of its intolerable Rankness; and which made it so detested of old, that the eating of it was as we read Part of a Punishment for such as had committed the horridest Crimes. To be sure, 'tis not fit for Ladies' Palettes, nor those who court them, further than to permit a light touch on the Dish with clove thereof, much better supplied by the gentler Roccombole."

It seems entertaining, indeed, that we can go back 250 years to find people preparing their bowl, in which to mix the salad, by rubbing it with a clove of garlic, and perhaps that was the way Virgil's rustic prepared his collection of greens, which he dressed with oil. Evelyn adds a note to his statement about garlic, and says that in Spain they sometimes eat garlic boiled, thus taming its fierceness and turning it into nourishment, or rather medicine.

Just two or three years ago experiment was made on a thousand patients suffering with tuberculosis in a hospital on Blackwell's island, and garlic as a remedy for it was demonstrated to be superior over 52 other medicines. One of the doctors performing the experiment stated that the juice of garlic had been used for centuries in lung infections. And the great cooks of the world have remedied their flavors by rubbing not only the salad bowl but the platter on which was to be served a boiling hot steak, or chicken à la Creole, or spaghetti Italienne.

Irish Potato Trade Hit by Craze for Slim Figures

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, March 14.—(AP)—The desire of English women to retain a slim figure was given as a reason for a slump in the potato demand by Sir Edward Archdale, Ulster minister of agriculture, in parliament yesterday. He declared the young ladies of England would not eat potatoes, especially at holiday resorts.

Mrs. L. Goodrich, Dr. G. H. Laing Are to Marry

BY THALIA

There are two interesting engagement announcements to divulge this morning. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Henry Emerson are announcing the engagement of Mrs. Emerson's sister, Mrs. Latimer Goodrich of 2618 Lake View avenue to Dr. Grant Harrison Laing. The engagement of Miss Mary B. Kennedy to Frederick Spruance Bailey, son of Mrs. Edward P. Bailey is announced by Mrs. John H. Kennedy of Montgomery, Ala.

Mrs. Goodrich was chairman of the National Junior league children's theater conference held in Chicago last December, and was executive secretary of the Junior league for several years. Dr. Laing, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Havelock Laing of Iron Mountain, Mich., is a member of the staff of St. Luke's hospital and an assistant professor of Rush Medical college. He attended the University of Michigan and Rush Medical college.

The date for the wedding, which is to be a small family affair, has not been definitely set, but it will be this spring, sometime after Easter.

Miss Kennedy has been living on the near north side for sometime. Mr. Bailey and his mother are residing at 16 East Elm street. He is a Yale graduate, class of 1915. His father was one of the early leaders in Chicago's development. His sister is the former Harmon Bailey, now Mrs. Harold L. Challenger, whose husband is a naval officer. The wedding is to take place in late April.

Her Engagement Announced

MRS. LATIMER GOODRICH.
[Moffett Photo.]

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., the pleasant stopping-off place from Florida en route to Chicago, will shortly be in the midst of its gay early spring season. Chicagoans who have made reservations to stay at the Greenbrier hotel include Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Farnum and their son and daughter, Francis R. Dickinson, Mr. and Mrs. Slason Thompson, the Hubert Burnham family, Mr. and Mrs. John V. Farwell III., and Col. and Mrs. A. A. Sprague.

Mr. and Mrs. William Burry Jr. of Lake Forest and the Charles Y. Freemans of 1450 Dearborn parkway were to sail last night on the S. S. Majestic for Europe. The Burrys, whose new house in Lake Forest is about completed, are going for a combined business and pleasure trip. Mrs. Burry will visit her mother, Mrs. Arnold Klebs, and Dr. Klebs in Switzerland, and Mr. Burry will join her later.

Mrs. A. Harris Whiting, Mrs. Oscar W. Johnson, and Mrs. Huntington Henry, who arrived in New York on Tuesday on the S. S. Bremen, tarried only a day or two in New York City before coming west.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd A. Laflin (Beatrice Clow), whose wedding took place in early January, are motoring to Chicago from San Francisco, where they landed recently after a honeymoon trip to Honolulu. They are expected to arrive the end of this week. They will move into Mr. Laflin's residence on Mayflower avenue, in Lake Forest.

Mr. Laflin's brother, Ellsworth Laflin, who has been motoring with his mother, Mrs. Louis E. Laflin, in Florida, has returned to Lake Forest, and Mrs. Laflin has left the Mountain Lake club, where they stayed for several weeks, to motor with her cousin, Mrs. Howard Rhoads of Philadelphia, Penn.

Mrs. Walter S. Brewster leaves today for New York on Garden club business. She will attend the international garden show at the Grand Central palace next week, and is to speak on the radio Monday evening on "The Value of Beautiful Gardens to Social and Cultural Progress in America." Her talk is to be broadcast over the chain program from station WJZ. Mrs. Brewster has been busy in the last few weeks, being chairman of the advisory board for the central states garden and flower show, to open at the Chicago Stadium on April 5, and directing the installation of the Lake Forest Garden club's large formal garden, to be centered with a fountain by Carl Milles, the Swedish sculptor, who visited in Chicago this winter.

NEW YORK SOCIETY.

New York, March 14.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Swift and their debutante daughter, Miss Mary L. Swift, sailed for Bermuda this afternoon on the American Legion.

Mrs. Philip Sawyer gave a tea today for the Actors' Fund Matinee club.

Mrs. George W. Shaw has returned from Nassau.

Mrs. William Seward Webb Sr. returned from Palm Beach today.

Dutch Reformed Sect in South Africa Split by Verdict of Heresy

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, March 14.—That signs of a split in the Dutch Reformed church following the verdict in the case of Prof. Duplessis, found guilty of heresy by the synod, are materializing was shown today. Ninety-three supporters of the Duplessis doctrines asked whether they, too, would be regarded as heretics. Several publicly announced that if the opposition wants to attack they will be prepared to fight and leave the church.

Prof. Duplessis and his wife received messages of sympathy from all parts of South Africa, also many floral tributes.

Dr. D. F. Malan, minister of the interior, in a message to Prof. Duplessis today associated himself with yesterday's spontaneous demonstration of sympathy and admiration on the part of young South Africa at Stellenbosch, when thousands of university students publicly protested against the verdict. Dr. Malan concluded:

"I assure you of my heartiest support in your faithful, courageous struggle for conscience and liberty within the bounds of our faith and confession."

Outside Influence Is Often Too Strong to Offset at Home

By Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans

A list of toys and playthings for children from babyhood up will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Three letters from different parts of the country, about children of different ages, are apparently quite different, but in reality show similar problems.

One says in part, "My boy [7] has to be forced to eat; learns rude things from other children on the street—then practices cheap words on my little girl. I have tried teaching him nice ways, and when that did no good I tried punishing him. I have done so many things, but he is not the child I want him to be."

Another says: "My little girl of 5 plays with the little girl next door, who is 7. My daughter worships her and will sometimes obey her quicker than she will obey me. This other child is sneaky, mean and up to all kinds of devilment. Her parents uphold her and think she can do no wrong. When my little girl is away from her she is lovable and sweet, but as soon as she plays with this older girl she is completely changed."

And the third letter is about a 14 year old daughter who "thinks she is always being abused. She travels with a tough class of girls and even last night she was playing with tough boys. Every time I talk to her she has a fresh answer for me. She never wants to help with the housework."

Well, of course, with each of these children there are different mistakes in management, but one condition is the same in all three. That is, that each of these children has a strong and unfavorable outside environment that is neutralizing the mother's efforts to accomplish something. Just as long as the little boy plays in the street with other children of a different background and objectionable language, just as long as the little girl is with an older and stronger child with undesirable ways, just as long as the 14 year old girl has these "tough" associations—just so long will the home struggle be almost in vain.

Children cannot conquer their outside environment when it represents such strong influences. In some way that I at long distance cannot discern with any accuracy, this outside part of these children's environment must be removed or in some way changed. Such unfavorable influences are too strong to be counteracted by home training.

True Story Proves Pick Up Friends Highly Dangerous

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Single or married, if adventurous, here's a story to read. It may help curb that impulse to take a chance on the man of easy acquaintance-making. Whether his racket is worked with an inviting looking motor car, or with blandishments from an adjoining movie house seat—the trite, old fashioned but trouble-saving advice to bid him be on his way had better be recognized as first rate counsel.

"My experience will read like an unbelievable dime-thriller, but it is the gospel and horrible truth. My friend and I, both of us married, she the mother of two small children and a good mother, no matter what you may think, went to a movie house one afternoon. Picking up my friend's fur which dropped to the floor, the man in the next seat to her started a conversation. He impressed us both as being gentlemanly and well educated.

"My friend's husband was away at the time. She was lonesome. She was foolish, true, but young and the man seemed unusually nice. She gave him her telephone number, on request. They went out several times together, he permitting her to come home directly after the show.

"Then a foursome was planned with me as the second woman. We went to a show and directly home, as I had to be in early. Another date followed. We went to a picture but this time were not driven home directly. The cab kept on going toward the city limits.

"Out of a clear sky both men made known their intentions with horrible preliminary manifestations. We protested, begged, pleaded. They argued that we weren't such good girls or we wouldn't have let them spend money on us. I got an awful slap in the face.

"A minute later the car had to stop for traffic. I jumped out and ran for a cab. The man attempted to chase me but a policeman was standing near a cab, which I grabbed and so I got home.

"All night I lay awake thinking of my friend's plight. The next day she was found unconscious on a road, beaten terribly. She is in an insane asylum today. She does not know her husband or her children. Her husband is broken hearted.

"I dare not tell what I know on account of my husband. It's a horrible nightmare from which I shall never recover, either—AN EX-PICK UP."

Two Woolens Fashion Smartest Ensembles

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Paris is pairing off smart materials this spring and uniting them so happily that there can be no thought of divorce. At the southern resorts, where spring fashions have gotten a good start, some of the smartest sports ensembles are made of two woolens. Usually they set each other off beautifully because one is plain and the other fancy, as in the suit from London Trades shown in our sketch.

The jacket and part of the skirt of suit are made of beige and red tweed. The rest is made of plain red tricot-tweed. By "the rest" is meant the underskirt, the blouse, the scarf, the hat and the bag. An ensemble means an ensemble this spring, and even the smallest detail takes part in it.

The straight collarless jacket of beige and red tweed has deep cuffs of bright red leather, and the same leather is used to make the belt at the normal waistline. The surpliced blouse is all red, and knitted into diagonal stripes. The long scarf is of the same stuff and bordered around the edges with beige and red tweed. The brimmed hat is made of tricot-tweed to match the blouse and scarf. It gets style importance from its irregular brim, which is long on the left side but hardly covers the ear on the right side.

The skirt is split from the hipline into six floating, square edged panels, that reveal the plain red tricot-tweed skirt beneath whenever the wearer takes even the smallest step. It can be unbuckled with the belt, leaving a one piece plain red dress beneath, at will.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Get Parents' Consent.

"Dear Miss Blake: Is it all right for a girl of 16 to go to a club dance with a fellow whom her parents know?

"BUBBLES."

It is all right to go to the dance if you have your parents' consent.

Change of Heart.

"Dear Miss Blake: A boy said he wanted me for his girl friend and that he loved me. He took me out, but now he treats me coldly. SUGAR."

He felt different when he told you all those nice things, so his coldness indicates a change of heart.

Frat to Dine-Dance.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $5 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

Emily, 3, was the youngest of the family and every one gave up to her until she was the home tyrant.

Viola, 5, lost her patience one day and cried angrily: "O, you just wait till there's another baby in this house! Then you'll see what I've had to put up with!" E. L. M.

New Illinois Church Council Represents 12 Protestant Sects

The administrative committee of the newly organized Illinois council of churches met for the first time yesterday at the Hotel La Salle. It included representatives from 12 Protestant churches.

The council recently was organized in Springfield on lines suggested by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Closer coöperation in state wide Protestantism is the goal.

Bishop Francis J. McConnell, New York, president of the federal council, told the newly formed committee that church unity must be effected by way of coöperation among the Protestant sects. He stated the federal council was prevented from taking steps toward organic unity because certain denominations coöperating with the council do not believe in such unity.

Provision was made yesterday for raising a preliminary fund to carry on the work of the Illinois council. It was voted that headquarters be in Springfield, and that the next meeting of the administrative council be held there in June. Dr. Hugh T. Morrison, Springfield, president of the council, presided at the meeting. Dean Shailer Mathews of the divinity school of Chicago university congratulated the council on its organization.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life." Address Embarrassing Moments, Chicago Tribune. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned.

Overheard.

One morning at the office, I was called to answer the phone. I found it to be an irritable customer who had been pestering us daily with his petty complaints. I spoke to Mr. —— and told him that I would transfer his call to the complaint department. Before hanging up my receiver I remarked to my desk partner, "Well, I got rid of that pest this time."

Later that day Mr. —— phoned and told me that an adjustment had been made on his complaint and that the pest would not bother me any more. I was greatly embarrassed and was certainly glad that I was not face to face with the customer. H. J.

Let Caution Go Hand in Hand with Wish for New Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If in the spring, when the young lady's fancy turns to thoughts of how to get the young man's fancy turning her way, maybe she decides a permanent will help. Permanents probably have effected a second look from a boy who couldn't see much about the straggly haired girl at first look. A good permanent does beauty up a head as much as that. Indeed it do.

Then, too, if she is not so young and spring attacks her in its characteristic way, she may decide that along with the permanent she'll have her hair touched up so that the jonquils won't be the only bright attractions around.

Having made the double decision, she may find when she arrives at the hairdressing place that the proprietor there does not approve of giving the two-in-one treatment. If she decides on the hair dye treatment first, he will argue her out of that and insist upon the permanent first. He will even want a few days to elapse before he does the color tinting. That's the way the experienced and informed operators work, anyway.

The question of giving permanents where bleaching and dyed hair is met has been a ticklish one always. And the strongest kind of warning must be given to women against economizing by patronizing cheap and inefficient workships when the combination of wave and dyed hair has to be considered. It requires experience, skill, and the conscience that goes into building up a fine permanent business to treat properly the head we speak of.

The permanent is recommended first because it is difficult to keep the dyed hair a perfect color when giving a permanent over it.

Bleached hair that has become lifeless and dry should be treated to three or four good hot oil treatments prior to the permanent. These at intervals of four or five days.

When you go to have a permanent be strictly honest about the kind of dye you have been using, if any. It is important for the operator to know whether it is a restorer, a henna, or a liquid dye that was used, and whether the work was done at home or at a shop. Test curls of the dyed hair should be insisted upon first. The conscientious worker will insist upon this himself. Under certain dye circumstances heat may discolor the hair.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

Most failures with azaleas, laurels and rhododendrons come from trying to grow them on alkaline soils and in exposed places, according to J. ... La France of Cornell university. Before transplanting any plant from the field or woods similar conditions should be prepared.

A neutral soil is 7 pH. The soil for these plants should test between ... and 6 pH. The test may be made at home by several simple methods. The materials, obtained at local dealers or drug stores, cost from a dollar to a dollar and fifty cents.

Acidity may be produced by introducing peat, half-rotted oak leaves or pine needles into the soil. After the soil is in an acid condition it must be kept so by the use of aluminum sulphate.

The roots of the plants must be moist at all times, and they should be protected from drying winds, he advises. If seed pods are removed before July, more strength will go into new flower buds for the next season's flowers.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

H. R. W.: POWDER PUFFS should be washed frequently. They are bound to pick up the grease of your skin and the oil of creams used. Bits of cotton that can be thrown away after use make the most hygienic puffs. Have several puffs and after two or three days' use take a fresh one.

A. M. S.: AS THERE IS BUT A slight trace of hair on the lip I would advise bleaching it with peroxide and ammonia. A couple of drops of household ammonia may be added to a tablespoonful of peroxide. Apply several times a day until the hair is unnoticeable. My leaflet on superfluous hair may be had for a stamped addressed envelope.

PLAN $300,000 CHURCH FOR FAR UPTOWN DISTRICT

BY AL CHASE.

The excavation has been completed and construction will start at once on a $300,000 church unit for St. Gertrude's Roman Catholic church at the northwest corner of Granville and Glenwood avenues. James Burns & Co. are the architects. The edifice will have a seating capacity of 1,100 and will be of Indiana limestone. The design will be English Gothic. It will front on Glenwood avenue and it is hoped to have it ready for services on Easter Sunday, 1931.

This church unit will mark the completion of a $500,000 building program. Last year a convent and rectory were erected at a cost of $200,000. The Rev. Bernard C. Heeney is pastor of St. Gertrude's parish.

Wabash Avenue Lease.

The United Millinery Stores company, operating a chain of thirty millinery shops in Chicago, has leased space at 15 South Wabash avenue for a term of years at an undisclosed rental. S. and A. Cooper are the lessors. Cerf & Ehrenhalt were the brokers.

B. Fain has leased the store at 20 North Clark street for nine years at a reported term rental of $50,000. According to A. Z. Ohlzen of Hooker & Slosson, who negotiated the deal, the lessee will sell candies and amusement tickets. Harry E. Littler Jr. is lessor.

The Lerner Stores corporation, a chain organization, has leased the store and basement, at 3254 Lincoln avenue from the Foreman State Trust and Savings bank, trustee, for twenty years from April 1, 1930, at an undisclosed rental.

Buys 15 Flat Building.

The fifteen flats at the southwest corner of Rockwell street and Glenlake avenue, lot 54x124 feet, have been sold by Lewis H. Hulbert to Anna C. Rosenberger for an undisclosed consideration. R. J. Nordhold was attorney.

Louise M. and Herman C. Schmitz have transferred title to the six flat building at 7441-43 Chappel avenue, lot 60x158 feet, to Sidney R. Sankstone in a transaction whereby they received the fifteen flats at 7720-24 Marquette road.

FUNERAL TO BE HELD TODAY FOR MISS GRACE DIXON

Speakers Hold the Interest of Dial Spinners

Axel Christenson Provokes Mirth Over W-G-N.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

The droll and never know what he is going to do or how he's going to do it Axel Christensen again played his Friday announcing and entertaining part from W-G-N, 8 to 8:30, and thus the evening's entertainment began properly. His yarn about the moveable wooden fire plug certainly produced a ripple of laughter from motorists.

It is quite certain that stories of travel always will have a nook for themselves in radio. The chances are that a travelogue every night by an able speaker would be none too many. In Alfred Flude, from W-G-N, 8:30 to 9, these last few Friday nights, we find an able speaker, one with out of the ordinary subject matter as well as a unique procedure. Last evening's "Journey to Lapland" was full of interest.

Pat Barnes' character delineation, W-G-N, 9 to 9:30, was appropriately Saint Patrick.

John B. Watling, Scale Manufacturer, Is Dead

John B. Watling, 68 years old, 2348 Cleveland avenue, formerly proprietor of the Watling Scale Manufacturing company, died yesterday at the Illinois Masonic hospital after an illness of five months. Mr. Watling had been a resident of Chicago since 1901, coming here from Cincinnati. He is survived by his widow, a son, Frank; a daughter, Mrs. Ray Gessner of California, and a brother, Thomas. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at the chapel at 929 Belmont avenue, with burial in Oakwoods cemetery.

MARY FREEMAN, NOTED NOVELIST, IS DEAD AT 68

Metuchen, N. J., March 14.—(AP)—Mary Wilkins Freeman, 68, noted author, died at her home here today.

Her first novel was published in 1887 and since that time she had written some twenty-five books, exclusive of her numberless short stories and magazine articles.

Dr. Freeman died in 1923, leaving his entire estate, valued at $213,000, except for a few dollars, to Harry Mohring, his chauffeur, in whose home above the family garage Dr. Freeman resided after an estrangement from his wife and sister. His will gave Mrs. Freeman $1, and each of four sisters $200.

After Dr. Freeman's death the widow contested the will, alleging Dr. Freeman mentally incapable of making a will at the time of his death.

The trial ended with a verdict favoring the widow. Mohring appealed and carried the case to the highest state tribunal, but it finally was settled out of court, after three years' litigation.

Why Are We Nervous?

By A. Griffiths, M. D.

The principal causes of nervousness can be explained in simple language. They are two: First, Nerve Weakness; Secondly, Derangement of the nerves.

Nerve Derangement can be explained crudely as follows: Our nervous system is somewhat like a great telephone system, in that it transmits messages from one part of the body to the other; the brain being that central office. It is character of the messages sent through the nerves that cause nervousness; messages that flash from the mind to the vital organs and muscles, and back again to the mind. Therefore, anything that disturbs or irritates the mind causes irritating messages to be sent through the nerves to the entire body, especially to the vital organs. This explains why worry, anxiety, fear, anger, grief, jealousy and kindred mental turmoil cause nervous indigestion, heart palpitation, high or low blood pressure, constipation, etc. Worst of all, this cycle of mental and physical upheaval may lead to insanity or suicide. Our insane asylums are crowded to the doors because of conditions that owe their origin to nothing more than simple nervousness. Thousands of sufferers commit suicide every year, and millions of people are unhappy because of their nerves, that is, because of irritating messages that are transmitted through the nerves. Nerve weakness is entirely different from nerve derangement. It is a condition known as "Neurasthenia," meaning, Nerve Exhaustion. As the noted scientist, Wm. Osler, described it, our nervous system stores a mysterious something, which for the want of a better term, we must call "Nerve Force." This stored force represents our nerve capital. If we squander this force through excesses and undue strains, we naturally become Nerve Bankrupts, that is, the nerves become exhausted, and we have what is known as neurasthenia. Or, as another great scientist very vividly expresses it, "Think of a cut in your arm from which your life's blood is trickling away. Yet millions of people live on from day to day, permitting a loss of vitality which is even far more precious than their blood; namely, they ruthlessly waste their Nerve Force."

Nervousness, then, is due to two major causes; (a) Crazy Messages transmitted through the nerves, which disturb the mind and vital organs; (b) Nerve Exhaustion, due to abuse of the nerves and ruthless waste of Nerve Force. Paul von Boeckmann, who during the last thirty years has carefully studied the mental and physical characteristics in over 400,000 people with high-strung nerves, has proved by actual statistics that at least 90% of these people are nervous or suffer in some way through their nerves, because of the two nerve abuses mentioned. We see evidence of nervousness about us everywhere, among our friends, in trains, street cars, yes, right in our own homes, and it requires no expert in nerves to see plainly the misery and unhappiness that come from nervousness. He says, further, "It is difficult to imagine anything but perfect health if the nerves are in order." That is, with calm nerves, and abundant Nerve Force, the stomach can digest any kind of food, for digestion depends directly upon the "stomach nerves." And so, too, would the body be free from colds, for a cold can only be contracted during low nerve pressure, i. e., lowered disease resistance. The same is true with constipation, and scores of other complaints with which the average person is afflicted. Beard, the great authority on the Nerves, who originated the term "Neurasthenia," agrees with him in this statement almost word for word. Nervousness, and the train of evils that result therefrom, may be said to develop in three stages, which may vary greatly, according to individual characteristics; namely,

First Stage: Nervousness, restlessness, sleeplessness, lack of energy, poor circulation, and other minor symptoms of low vitality.

Second Stage: Nervous indigestion, belching, sour stomach, gas in the bowels, constipation, shallow breathing, decline in power of reproductive functions, high or low blood pressure, hot or cold flashes, heart palpitation, mental uneasiness, irritability, undue worry, despondency, self-consciousness, etc.

Third Stage: As nerve weakness advances the symptoms mentioned before become more severe. It is then the more severe mental symptoms appear; namely, fears, melancholia, dizziness, loss of memory, hallucinations, suicidal thoughts, and, in many cases, INSANITY.

If only a few of the symptoms mentioned here apply to you, especially those indicating mental uneasiness, you may be certain that your nerves are weak and deranged. Fight this weakness as you would fight for your life. Conquer it, or it will conquer you. To correct nervousness demands, first of all, that the sufferer understand his own condition—the "Why and How" his nerves act as they do. The cause of the trouble must be understood to be corrected. No medicine ever concocted can correct nervousness. There are drugs that deaden the nerves and make them calm. These are very dangerous. There are other drugs that stimulate exhausted nerves. These act similarly to dragging a tired horse behind an automobile to give him "pep." All "nerve drugs" are dangerous and unnatural.

Many books have been written, intended as a guide for keeping up the nervous forces and calming the nerves. In nearly every public library one or more practical treatises on this subject are on file. The most concise and practical of all these books the writer has so far come across is one by Paul von Boeckmann, entitled "Strengthening Your Nerves," which may be found in many public libraries and at the National Medical Library at Washington, D. C. I advise earnestly that the sensible advice given in this practical little book be given careful consideration by any one whose nerves show signs of irritability, instability and exhaustion. The concise, understandable and non-technical information contained in this book is by far the most useful of any I have read. In these days of High Pressure my advice is: Guard Your Nerves.

NOTE—von Boeckmann is a high authority on the subject of nerve culture, and with the advice given in his book, any one can in a short time improve his control of the nerves 100 per cent. Heart Attack Playing Golf Fatal to Ex-Governor

Pinehurst, N. C., March 14.—(AP)—Former Gov. Martin G. His body will be sent to his home at Huntingdon, Pa., tonight.

Finds Why Food Sours the Stomach

Mrs. Joan Hannum of 2655 N. Melvina Ave., in Chicago, is one of the happiest women in the country now. It is not hard to understand why, either. She is able to eat again without suffering afterward from indigestion which was caused by a stomach which could not digest rich and starchy food she liked so well. "For the last ten years, rich or heavy food and my stomach didn't get along at all," she says. "I guess I would be that way yet if my sister hadn't told me about Acidine. It relieves me quicker than anything I ever heard of. I can take a dose of it now, and in a few minutes my stomach is settled, the gassy belching is gone, and so is that burning sensation in my throat."

Stories like this have caused the fame of ACIDINE to spread until more than two million people are already using Acidine when there's too much acid in the stomach, and appetite is gone—you'll like the taste of ACIDINE, and it costs so little. Get it at any drug store.

REGULAR MINERS ACT FOR OUSTER OF INSURGENTS

But Lewis Faces Battle on Other Issues.

BY THOMAS WREN.

Disciplinary action that may lead to the expulsion of the coal miners attending the Springfield insurgent convention was unanimously recommended last evening by the regular meeting of the United Mine Workers of America at Indianapolis.

The vote of the 1,000 coal diggers brought to a close discussion of the Illinois situation, which has held the limelight in the convention since it opened last Monday.

The action of the miners is based on acceptance of the committee's report on officers, which states:

"If the United Mine Workers retain the confidence of its membership, if public respect of the aims and hopes and aspirations of our union is to be maintained, it is necessary for our convention to take some action to purge the organization of graft and corruption."

Expulsion Is Demanded.

Ellis Searles, editor of the United Mine Workers' Journal, stated there is no other action possible than to expel the rebel miners of the union.

Earlier in the day resolutions urging sweeping changes were introduced by delegates to the Indianapolis convention. One demanded the resignation of President John L. Lewis and the other international officers, so there could be a new deal all around. Other resolutions would cut the annual salary of the president from $12,000 to $8,000 and advocated the adoption of a six hour day.

A lengthy debate accompanied the introduction of the resolutions which will be voted on next week and which apparently are framed to attract neutrals as well as the foes of President Lewis.

Insurgent Election Today.

Election of officers for the insurgent miners' union will be held today at Springfield. Those elected will serve until April 1, 1933.

President Harry Fishwick of the Illinois Miners' union made a dramatic plea for faith in his sincerity but the insurgent coal diggers remained aloof from complete acceptance of his defense.

"Miners in the pits don't know anything about these meetings," said Delegate Owen Neal of Belleville, Ill., "but they do know results. Under Fiskwick their wages were cut more than 50 per cent. I don't know whether this was the result of the $75,000 given Farrington, but I know the coal operators never give anything away for nothing."

E. L. BYFIELD'S FORMER WIFE IS MARRIED IN N. Y.

Mrs. Gladys Rosenthal Byfield, divorced wife of Ernest L. Byfield, president of the Hotel Sherman company, was married in New York yesterday to Raymond F. Tartiere, a Parisian who spends most of his time in London. The ceremony was performed by Justice William J. A. Caffrey in a Municipal court room.

Mrs. Tartiere is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin J. Rosenthal of the Ambassador hotel. Mrs. Rosenthal announced her daughter's engagement Nov. 29, 1929, after receiving a telephone message from her daughter in Paris informing her of the approaching marriage.

Tartiere said he had been twice married and divorced in Paris.

Mrs. Tartiere was divorced by Byfield Dec. 10, 1928. He charged desertion and testified that she preferred Europe to Chicago.

Dry Cases Clog Indiana Court; U. S. Sends Aid

John Coldiron, special assistant attorney general, arrived in Hammond yesterday from Washington, D. C., to assist in prosecuting more than 125 criminal cases pending in the Hammond division of the United States District court. Oliver M. Loomis, United States district attorney, asked that an assistant be sent to the district to aid in clearing the docket, which Mr. Loomis said has become clogged by prohibition cases.

DRYS IN INDIANA KEEP BLACKLIST ON CANDIDATES

No Party Lineup, Though, New League Head Says.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 14.—[Special.]—No alliance with any particular political party or clique, continuation of the listing of candidates for elective public office as to wet and dry sentiments, and more stress on a temperaance educational campaign were outlined today as high policies by the Rev. C. H. Winders, newly elected superintendent of the Indiana Anti-Saloon league.

Winders intends to continue the Shumaker blacklisting of candidates he regards as wet, but he says he must be convinced that those posing as drys really are drys.

Won't Back Willoughby.

Asked whether he will favor or oppose the renomination by the Republican state convention this spring of Judge Benjamin Willoughby, Winders said the league had taken no stand on Willoughby, but added, "Certainly we will not be expected to advocate him." Willoughby is one of the three-to-two majority in the state Supreme court who insist on the letter of the law and constitution in ruling on dry cases, and he was bitterly fought by Shumaker for requiring proof before swearing a warrant for search of a private dwelling.

In the municipal election here last fall Winders, then acting head of the Anti-Saloon league, refused to permit the league to line up as usual in favor of the Republican nominee regardless of who he was. There was "no choice," he ruled.

Alienates Some Drys.

Incidentally, a Democrat won for the first time since 1918. By taking this stand, Winders alienated a lot of professional drys and for a long time checkmated his chances to get Shumaker's post.

"We shall continue to furnish information to voters as to the wet-dry record and attitude of candidates. Especially members of the legislature, judges, prosecuting attorneys, and sheriffs," Winders said today. "We shall not favor any faction or clique or political party."

Winders is active in Indianapolis social welfare work and for six years was executive secretary of the Indianapolis church federation. Born on a farm near Quincy, Ill., Winders specialized in theology, sociology, and philosophy at Culver-Stockton college and the University of Chicago. He was for twelve years pastor of a Disciples of Christ church at Columbia, Mo., and also was a pastor here.

SUICIDE VERDICT RETURNED.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide while despondent over ill health yesterday in the case of Roy D. Carlson, 22, who killed himself with a pistol at his home, 1816 South 50th avenue, Cicero.

Studebaker Heir, Former Dry, Now Indiana Wet Candidate

South Bend, Ind., March 14.—[Special.]—Woodson Studebaker Carlisle, who voted for the Wright "bone dry" law in the Indiana legislature in 1925, is again a candidate for the Republican nomination for state senator from this district. This time he is running on a dripping wet platform.

Mr. Carlisle, who is a grandson of Clement Studebaker, says that in running as a wet he is merely being honest. He says when he voted for the Wright law he believed in prohibition, but he has since changed his mind. His mother, the former Anne Studebaker, daughter of the family which founded the great Studebaker vehicle fortune, appears to share her son's beliefs.

It is stated that Mrs. Carlisle, who now is in Europe, will return soon to take the state chairmanship of a woman's organization which will work for the modification of the prohibition laws.

Mr. Carlisle is 37 years old. His father is Charles Carlisle of South Bend. The young man attended Yale and was graduated from the Harvard law school.

"I've changed my mind about prohibition since I voted for the 'bone dry' law in 1925," Mr. Carlisle says. "I refuse now to be a hypocrite."

In his published platform Mr. Carlisle says:

"I believe that prohibition should be left to the citizens of each state for their own determination. I would favor a referendum of the citizens of this state to ascertain their true views. I believe that the present prohibition system, both national and state, failed. I favor modification."

There is talk of urging I. G. Bradford, also a former state senator and a decided dry, to run against the young attorney. Another mentioned as a possible candidate for the nomination is John B. Campbell, manufacturer, state Y. M. C. A. director, and a First Methodist church leader.

Should Mr. Carlisle beat these candidates, if they file, this section is bound to be represented in the legislature by a wet, for the Democratic candidate will be Chester A. Perkins, who in the 1929 legislature offered a resolution for modification.

ATTACK INSECTS IN PRESIDENT'S ROOM IN CAPITOL

Bugs were found yesterday on the couches in the room which is just off the senate chamber. The furniture, most of which is historic and dates back to the first days of the government, was shipped today to the department of agriculture for special treatment.

The room itself was closed as bug chasers went to work.

It was the opinion of experts that the little insects in the room were a form of moth known as the buffalo moth.

DOHENY SCORES AS COURT BARS LETTER BY FALL

Testimony of Oil Man Is Read, However.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 14.—[Special.] — Justice William Hitz today dealt the prosecution in the Doheny $100,000 bribery case a severe blow when he refused to admit as evidence a letter to the senate oil scandal investigating committee in which A. B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, denied having accepted money from either E. L. Doheny or Harry F. Sinclair.

The fact, it was argued by Chief Prosecutor Owen J. Roberts, that Fall falsely told the senators the money came from E. B. McLean, Washington publisher, and that Doheny awaited "developments" before coming forward to tell the real story made the letter admissible to show both Fall and Doheny considered the $100,000 a bribe in return for leases on the navy's Elk Hills oil reserves.

Judge Rules It Out.

Frank J. Hogan, counsel for Doheny, insisted that the latter knew nothing of the letter or Fall's deception of the senators until the letter was made public and Justice William Hitz decided it could not be introduced as any evidence of what was in Doheny's mind when he advanced the money.

With the court's permission, however, Roberts read to the jury virtually the entire senate committee record of the testimony of Doheny, admitting, among other things, that his bid for the Elk Hills reserve, finally accepted by Fall, was not in accordance with the advertisements for bids, and also the testimony of the late Secretary of the Navy Edwin Denby, that he knew little of the lease which he approved.

Finney Is Witness.

E. C. Finney, first assistant secretary of the interior during Fall's régime in the department and now the department solicitor, took the stand and verified the fact that the lease finally awarded to Doheny's company included a clause, not mentioned in the invitation for bids, giving the company a preferential right to leases in other sections of the reserves when and if they were opened for development.

Finney, who will be cross-examined tomorrow, declared that Fall left most of the responsibility for negotiation of the Doheny lease to him and that Secretary Denby, Rear Admiral J. K. Robison, retired, and other navy department officials were active in the discussions leading up to the lease.

Ordered to Sign, He Says.

Fall, Finney testified in response to Roberts' questions, urged that no publicity be given to the negotiations, but when an agreement was reached he wired Finney from his New Mexico ranch to sign the lease and contracts and give both the "fullest possible publicity."

GOTHAM COURTS GRAFT-INFESTED, JURORS REPORT

New York, March 14.—[Special.]—The grand jury which has been investigating abuses in the city magistrates' courts—the so-called "magistrates' racket"—since early in January, submitted a lengthy presentment today to Judge Morris Koenig in the Court of General Sessions.

It established the charges of graft in police courts.

It established illegal connections between professional bondsmen and court attendants and attorneys practicing in police courts.

It also was found that magistrates have been too close to politicians and political organizations; that court proceedings have been lacking in dignity and fairness; that persons having business in the courts have not been treated with consideration; that magistrates have disposed of too many cases in their private chambers.

The grand jury found that splitting of exorbitant fees for bonds between professional bondsmen and attorneys has been a common practice here in New York, and that court clerks, assistant clerks, and attendants have collected illegal fees.

The grand jury mentioned no names. A number of recommendations were made, the most important of which were that magistrates be forbidden to hold active or honorary offices in political clubs or take active part in political campaigns, and that a central bonding bureau be established.

No indictments were found.

ILLINI RELAYS TODAY TO TEST 900 ATHLETES

Berlinger Favored in All Around.

Champaign, Ill., March 14.—[Special.]—Colors of 85 universities, colleges, and high schools will be carried by a field of more than 900 athletes in the annual Illinois indoor relay carnival tomorrow afternoon and night.

The main program, including all university relays and finals in the special events, will be run off tomorrow night, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. Afternoon proceedings will consist of the college and high school relays, the all around competition, and preliminaries in the special events.

Norman Shelby, star Oklahoma high jumper, was one of the arrivals today. Shelby is primed to give Bert Nelson of Butler, who has exceeded the world's indoor record, the stiffest kind of competition.

Gill Will Be Missing.

For the first time in thirteen years Harry Gill, Illinois track coach, the founder, will not be present. Gill is on a year's leave. Illini track affairs are end will be in charge of his pupil, Chick Werner, former track captain and star hurdler.

The sprint has attracted a field which seldom, if ever, has been surpassed, as quality goes, in indoor competition. George Simpson of Ohio State, last year's winner, will defend his title against Eddie Tolan of Michigan, Wilkey of Texas, Root of Chicago, Useman of Illinois, Ford of Northwestern, and Boyles of Pennsylvania.

A new world record is in prospect in the 75 yards high hurdles, what with Dick Rockaway of Ohio State, the defending champion, topping a classy field. His competition will come from Sentman and Rodgers of Illinois, Black and Petersilge of Ohio State, Lamson of Nebraska, Hager of Iowa State, Hayden of Chicago, Hatfield of Indiana, Saling of Iowa, and Sharf of Drake, and others.

Sentman, joint holder of the world record, has cleared the high sticks in 69.3 in practice, a second under his record breaking feat.

Pole Vault Stars Entered.

The pole vault, as expected, will provide one of the keenest struggles in years. Henry Canby of Iowa, Verne McDermont of Illinois, and Tommy Warne of Northwestern are entered.

The all around has attracted a field of ten, including Barney Berlinger, University of Pennsylvania star, winner of the event last year with a new record of 6,070 points. Utterback of Pittsburgh, Todd of Indiana, Francisco of Loyola, Rogers of Lincoln, and McDermont of Illinois are among others entered.

Avery Brundage of Chicago, former Illinois track athlete and all around national champion, will referee. Dr. W. J. Monilaw, also of Chicago, will be starter.

SCOTT-SHARKEY FILM AROUSES ENGLISH SPLEEN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 14.—The Scott-Sharkey controversy burst out again with renewed vigor here today with a private showing of the "official" movie of the Florida fiasco.

Although the audience was made up entirely of sportsmen and fight experts, the details of the extraordinary affair were just as uncertain after the projection of the film as before, and opinion ranged from a belief that the fight was perfectly fair to an assertion that Sharkey fouled the Englishman five times.

Everybody was united in the opinion that the film was unsatisfactory, however, because Scott's back was turned to the camera every time a questionable blow was struck.

One expert contended the film showed Sharkey landing five low punches, while J. W. Douglas, British referee, declared he was unable to decide whether the blows were fair or foul.

TONY CANZONERI BEATS LOAYZA IN TEN ROUND BOUT

Illinois and Michigan Lead Big Ten Wrestling

Champaign, Ill., March 14.—(AP)—Preliminary competition for Big Ten individual wrestling championships tonight cut the contenders from 55 to 16 men, Illinois and Michigan topping the list with four qualifiers each. Wisconsin and Ohio State ranked next with two each, and Iowa, Indiana, Northwestern, and Chicago qualified one man each. Finals will be held tomorrow night.

Rain, Arctic Breeze Make Cubs Growl

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 14.—Difficulties surrounded Boss Joe McCarthy today while he tried to give his Cub regulars a few last minute pointers on how they should conduct themselves in the two weke-end engagements at Los Angeles.

HANK GRAMPP.

The leader of the champions had figured on another balmy day for the dress rehearsal, but what he got was something else. The wind blew like a breath out of the arctic regions and rain came down intermittently. Under the conditions a beneficial drill was impossible, so for about an hour the fellows did just enough work to keep warm and then called it a day.

It seems that whenever the athletes have their day's drill curtailed over here they are more pleased than disappointed. They have all the conveniences that money can provide and ordinarily the weather is satisfactory, but there is a feeling among them that it is difficult to get into condition here.

Some of the fellows complain that the daily breeze hampers the conditioning of throwing arms. Some don't want to do much running because of a claim that their legs get sore. Just why this should be is something for scientific investigation, but men who seldom complain about anything raise this point, so there must be some basis for it.

All the employés agree they are merely marking time until they can open their three weeks of exhibitions on Wrigley field at Los Angeles. The veteran pitchers all like to workout over there. Around here you can't get any of them to cut loose except with an occasional curve. They insist opening up with their complete line over here brings on sore arms.

That the athletes grow weary over here and are inclined not to work any harder than necessary was recognized by McCarthy the first year he came out as Cub manager. That is why each spring has seen a stretching of the period spent in Los Angeles. The three weeks stay there will open next Thursday and the team will begin to take on its real complexion almost immediately. Probably this training by stages is the best.

McCarthy today was in doubt about the identity of the pitchers he will work against the Angels tomorrow and Sunday. All he knew for a certainty was that in one game he would start Lefty Moss, and in the other Hank Grampp, the noted batting practice hurler.

Each will labor four or five innings, if the enemy doesn't become unruly, and the rest of the pitching will be taken care of by the veterans. The choice of these probably will depend on which are willing to work and which present a sore arm alibi.

McCarthy went over to the mainland this afternoon so as to fill a radio speaking date. He loves those things like a cat loves a strange dog. The program called for him to answer questions previously submitted by baseball fans.

Rochester Beats Paterson; Wins 2d Half Cage Title

Mohawk, N. Y., March 14.—(AP)—The Rochester Centrals clinched the second half championship of the American Pro Basketball league tonight by defeating Paterson, 26 to 18. Rochester now will meet Cleveland, first half champions, in a play-off series to determine the league title-holder.

SOX AND GIANTS RESUME SERIES AT SAN ANTONIO

Lyons Seeks Second Win Over New Yorkers.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., March 14.—Our White Sox today were unable to prance about, despite the frenzied efforts of the chamber of commerce tourist bureau to turn off the rain. It was just as well for all save the unimaginative authors. It is we who pay and pay and pay on days like this.

The rest was expected to put the athletes in fine fettle for a resumption of the Sox and Giants series tomorrow afternoon. The boys will be out to keep their slate clean, even at the risk of throwing John Joseph McGraw into hysteria, a state he is near as a result of the inconsiderate treatment Donie Bush's charges have shown his athletes to date.

Giants Due Soon.

It is suspected, on general principles, that Mr. McGraw has a good ball club and is due to pop soon. But they won't if Ted Lyons dazzles them tomorrow as he did the other day in Houston. The New York batsmen literally seemed in a stupor as they sought to follow the throws of Mr. Lyons. Ted, incidentally, is the only member of Bush's Big Four that the Giants have seen during the three Chicago victories and one tie, whereas the Sox have had the pleasure of pounding three of Mr. McGraw's premier quartet—Mr. Fitzsimmons in two games, Mr. Hubbel in two, and Mr. Walker in one.

In the game tomorrow, Mr. McGraw will be enabled to present his full strength, for Bill Terry's sore feet are well and Freddie Lindstrom hasn't been here long enough to get down.

Bush to Use Regulars.

Mr. Bush will have his eventual regulars at work here and there, although no great weakening of the force can be attributed to the presence of the fill-in workers. Jeffries will continue at third for a day or so. Jolly isn't here yet and Moore, destined to be the regular right fielder, won't be in uniform for two weeks. Harris will play left and Watwood right.

Next week presents a solid schedule of games, two of which are abroad. The Sox will play the University of Texas nine at Austin Monday and on Thursday the Sox and Giants go to Kerrville, Tex., for a contest under the auspices of the American Legion.

STUDENTS SEEK SUNDAY SPORTS AT ILLINOIS

Urbana, Ill., March 14.—(AP)—Three faculty men were named by the council of administration today to consider a petition filed by students of the University of Illinois who seek permission to participate in Sunday sports. Director of Athletics George Huff and Deans Charles M. Thompson and A. J. Harno were selected.

Students have been denied privileges of sports on Sunday and the petition suggests the ban be lifted after 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Harvard, Yale Ice Teams Will Not Play Off Tie

Cambridge, Mass., March 14.—(AP)—William F. Bingham, director of Harvard athletics, today announced that the Crimson hockey team would not play a fourth game with Yale. As a result, the series has ended in a deadlock for the first time, each having won a game and tied in the third.

Mrs. Stetson Wins Final; Beats Miss Wall 2 Up

PROUD OF HER BOY

Helping mother with the work around the house is one way Edwin Steeve trains. He's the middleweight champion of the Chicago Golden Gloves team, and you'll see him fight at the Stadium Wednesday night.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Ed. Steeve Mild, Courteous Youth, but Not in the Ring

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Edwin Steeve lives in a yellow frame house down toward the end of Sangamon street. In case you've never met Edwin, we'd like to tell you that he's the boy who won the middleweight championship in THE TRIBUNE's Golden Gloves boxing tournament. If you'd like to see him, drop into Chicago Stadium Wednesday and watch him do his best to beat up a young fellow from New York in the intercity bouts.

To really understand Edwin, the best thing to do is walk through his neighborhood before going up and ringing the doorbell. You see, he's lived there all his life, and in twenty-two years a neighborhood is bound to get under a boy's skin somehow.

You walk down a street that seems to be just resting under long rows of poplars. It's lined with little frame houses which give you the impression that people really live in them instead of merely stopping in to pick up their mail.

Attended Wentworth School.

Pretty soon you come to the Wentworth school, where Edwin went when he was just a little kid. Then you pass one of those old fashioned wooden stores that they used to set down right in the middle of a residential block. The one little window isn't artistically decorated in any new fangled style. It's just piled high with oranges, and somehow you feel that the storekeeper is the kind of a fellow that would give one to a kid when he came in for a peck of potatoes and a pound of round steak. That's the kind of a neighborhood it seems to be.

When you come to 7248 Sangamon street walk up and ring the bell. If a stout, pleasant faced woman opens the door and looks at you in a friendly way through a pair of spectacles, that's Edwin's mother. But if a tall, solidly built young fellow answers the bell and waits in a quiet, courteous way for you to speak first, that's Edwin.

Edwin always is waiting for somebody else to speak first when it comes to telling about his exploits. And if somebody else didn't do the speaking Edwin never would do it himself.

Mother, Dad Learn Something.

Why, one time his mother and dad went down for homecoming week at the University of Illinois, where Edwin is a senior. They were sitting in the parlor of the fraternity house, talking to three or four of the fellows, when Mrs. Steeve noticed a row of silver cups along the mantle.

"You boys must be pretty good to win all those cups," she said.

"No," one of the boys replied, "we don't have to be any good so long as Edwin's here. He won all four of them. Three are for boxing, and that

N. Y. COMISH HAS RULED 10 YEARS, BUT WHAT OF IT?

All Its Bylaws Broken and Forgotten.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 14.—The New York prize fight commission has now been in existence for about ten years, and the boys of the commission, past and present, may look back over the administration of their body without fear that they have been any more comic, in proportion to the opportunities, than most governmental bodies are. It is true that they have enacted a great many hilarious laws with all the solemn ponderosity of a state legislature establishing the indecency of the female knee in moving pictures by a small plurality, on strict party lines.

But then, if prize fight commissioners had any sense of the absurd, they would not become prize fight commissioners in the first place. For the most part they have well maintained the naive pretense that the racket which they administer has for its prime object the inculcation of chivalry and kindred worthy traits in the youth of the land. And, as their greatest achievement, they may point to the fact, that, after ten years, the house flag of the Garden corporation still waves, notwithstanding sporadic attempts of the Rev. Cannon Chase to tear that gaudy ensign down.

Proof of Success.

That, I believe, is the proof of the prize fight commission's success. For, remembering the fate of the racket under all past administrations, it was logical to suppose at the beginning of this one, that within three, or at most, five years, the legislature would lose its temper and rescind the boxing law, reducing the business again to legal parity with the safe blowing industry with which it has always had certain traits in common.

Refinement has laid its clammy hand on the racket and the racket has shuddered at the touch, but it has a surprising vitality and, if the Tunney memorial stands, virtuous and forgotten in the Garden lobby, the boys are still the same old boys as they rally round it.

Million Offered for Bout Between Dempsey, Carnera

St. Louis, Mo., March 14.—(AP)—Mique Malloy, Chicago fight promoter, announced here this afternoon that he would offer a purse of $1,000,000 for a fight between Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, and Primo Carnera, giant Italian contender if Carnera wins his fight with Chuck Wiggins, Indianapolis, here next Monday night.

The promoter said he had discussed the bout recently with Dempsey in Cleveland.

DEMPSEY READY TO TRAIN.

Detroit, Mich., March 14.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey said here tonight that he intends to go into training as soon as he completes the theatrical tour in which he is engaged at present.

"If I find that I can get into proper condition," said the former heavyweight champion, "I will be ready to meet the outstanding claimant of the title."

CHICAGO TO GET BOUT?

Reports were heard yesterday in the loop that Dempsey plans a comeback. The reports further intimated that Dempsey's comeback fight will take place in Chicago.

Dempsey has made so many statements regarding a possible comeback the fistic followers have lately refused to believe any of them.

Several months ago Dempsey told friends: "The comeback ballyhoo doesn't hurt me any, so why stop it?"

Espinosa Out of Intercity Meet; Emmerick to Sub

Joe Espinosa, clever little Mexican flyweight, who won the decision in the finals of the Golden Gloves tournament, will not represent Chicago in the intercity bout with New York.

JOHNNY EMMERICK

Young Mr. Espinosa bobbed up several days ago with a manager and the manager bobbed up with all sorts of ideas. For one thing, he refused to permit Espinosa to train with the other Golden Gloves champions at the C. A. A. For another the manager declined to let Espinosa receive instruction from the team coaches. Yesterday Espinosa did not appear for training.

Last night Johnny Emmerick, East St. Louis flyweight, who lost a close four round decision to Espinosa, was moved up into the first division of the flyweight class and Sammy Levine was moved up into the second division. Espinosa and his manager were removed from the team.

De Vos Rally Beats Chastain in 10 Rounds

Rene De Vos, Belgian middleweight sponsored by an eastern millionaire, won a decision over Clyde Chastain of Dallas, Tex., in the windup of the boxing show at the Chicago Stadium last night. The decision was unanimous with the two judges and referee.

RENE DE VOS.

It was a close fight and some of the 5,000 fans who spent $13,000 to see it greeted the verdict with boos. The Belgian was entitled to the verdict by reason of his last two rounds. For eight rounds honors were even, but in the ninth and tenth rounds De Vos forced the milling, landed telling punches, and so was entitled to the decision.

Pantaleo, Schaaf Draw.

As early as the sixth round the crowd yelled for action. Referee Dave Barry warned the fighters repeatedly to loose their punches, but they clinched instead. Neither was on the verge of a knockout or knockdown. In the eighth round De Vos connected with two straight lefts to Clyde's left eye. The blows opened an old wound, brinzing blood. De Vos weighed 159 pounds and Chastain 157½ pounds.

In the ten round bout which followed the main event Paul Pantaleo of Chicago and Ernie Schaaf of Boston fought ten rounds to a draw. It was a slugging match all the way.

One of the best fights on the program involved Harry Fierro of Chicago and Vidal Gregorio of Spain. They went eight rounds and at the finish both were standing face to face exchanging punches. The decision went to the Spaniard, whose finish outclassed the Chicago fighter.

Harry Dublinsky Wins.

In the other fights Harry Dublinsky, local lightweight, won an eight round decision over Emery Cabana of Philadelphia and Frankie Hayes of Philadelphia was accorded the eight round verdict over Jimmy Lundy of California. They met at 142 pounds.

Fessenden Beats Appleby in National 18.2 Tourney

St. Louis, Mo., March 14.—(AP)—Ray V. Fessenden, Madison, Wis., contractor, scrambled up in the running in the national amateur balk line billiard tournament this afternoon by handing Edgar T. Appleby, New York, his first defeat in the competition, 300 to 235, in 34 innings.

'BEAT CHICAGO,' NEW YORK PLEA AS BOYS LEAVE

Local Boxers Near Best Condition.

New York, March 14.—[Special.]—The last lap of the New York Golden Gloves tournament began at 2:45 this afternoon when the Twentieth Century for Chicago crawled north under Park avenue. Cameras were directed at the rear platform of the last car on which the 27 members of the team were huddled, waving and shouting farewells to the friends who had come to see them off.

The boxers' last morning in New York was a busy one. Awakened early, they breakfasted at the Alamac hotel and did their last road work in Central park. After their showers, they visited the Daily News office for final photographs, and then, shortly after noon, crossed 42d street to the Commodore hotel for a banquet lunch, attended among others, by Jim Farley of the boxing commission.

When the informal banquet had been completed, Commissioner Farley wished the New York team bon voyage. He paid individual compliments to Howard Williamson, William Siclari, the team's captain, heavy eating heavyweight, and wished the team the best of luck in the fights against Chicago.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Benny Goldblatt and Chauncey Crain demonstrated it yesterday, when a three round training clash between them featured the drill of the Chicago battlers at the C. A. A.

Goldblatt is the 126 pound champion and Crain won the title in the 135 pound class. They stood toe to toe and slugged throughout their three round skirmish. Neither was willing to pull a punch. They seemed to be putting everything they had into the struggle. Both boys went at their work in serious fashion.

Both Deliver Punches.

Crain, a hard right hand puncher, nailed Benny several times with right crosses. Goldblatt stood up after being hit several times and came back with straight lefts to the face and hard rights to the body.

Ralph Carnegie of Benton Harbor, Mich., second place winner in the 147 pound class, arrived yesterday in good shape. He boxed three fast rounds with Carl Ogren, champion in the division. Ralph is a colored boy who showed a lot of ability in the trials. In yesterday's bout with Ogren the Benton Harbor boy flashed a clever left hand, and honors were about even at the end of the three rounds.

Grant Fortney, heavyweight champion, and Buck Everett, holder of the title in the 175 pound class, went two three minute rounds. It was a punch for punch battle all the way. Both fighters are in splendid condition. Following this bout, Everett boxed one round with Arne Anderson, who will be the alternate in the heavyweight class.

Attend Stadium Show.

The Chicago boxers were guests of THE TRIBUNE at the bout between De Vos and Chastain at Chicago Stadium last night. Benny Yanger, one of the coaches of the team, and S. H. Darwent of the C. A. A. accompanied the boys.

Johnny Behr, physical director of the I. A. C., another coach of the team, returned yesterday from New York with first hand information regarding the eastern team. Behr said the New Yorkers present a strong battle front and that the Chicago team must be at its best to win. Behr assisted Yanger and Young in coaching the Chicago team yesterday.

MISS NORELIUS WILL ABANDON SWIM CAREER

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., March 14.—(AP)—Martha Norelius, 21 year old Olympic swimming champion, who will be married here tomorrow to Joe Wright Jr., famous Canadian oarsman, has decided to abandon her swimming career because she feels she has "gotten all there is out of the sport."

"I see nothing to be gained by further competition," she said today. "The real fun of the game was lost when I had won my first and only professional race and realized that the thrill of victory was gone."

YOUNG JOHNSON STRUCK BY AUTO; LOST TO PREP NINE

Washington, D. C., March 14.—(AP)—While his famous dad is down south whipping the Washington Senators into shape for the American league campaign, Walter Johnson Jr. lies on a hospital bed with both legs in casts and his pitching hand bandaged.

The Bethesda, Md., High school nine will miss him this spring. The 14 year old pitcher was injured by an automobile while roller skating last night. For some time he will have to get around on crutches.

BIG TEN MERMEN BREAK 4 MARKS IN TITLE PRELIMS

N. U. Qualifies Seven for Finals.

Swimmers of the Big Ten went on a record breaking rampage in the preliminaries of the annual championships at Northwestern university last night. Four marks went by the board as the boys battled for qualifying positions in the finals, which are to be held tonight.

Northwestern's splashers provided the major portion of the record shattering and loomed as probable conquerors of Michigan by qualifying seven men in ten events. The Wolverines were right on the heels of the Purple, however, with six men qualified in nine events.

Relay Team Fails.

Michigan's outstanding hope to win its fourth title in a row was handed a big blow when its 300 yard medley relay team failed to qualify for the finals. Minnesota nosed the Wolverines out of this event, while Northwestern qualified both its medley team and its 160 yard sprint relay team.

Capt. Al Schwartz, Northwestern's free style ace, provided most of the evening's fireworks by winning first place in three events and cracking records in two of them. He negotiated the 40 yard dash in :18, thus shading the former mark of :18.4, held jointly by Walker of Michigan and Breyer of Northwestern. He swam the 100 yard dash in :52.8, breaking the old record of :53.1, held by Darnell of Michigan. His other first place was in the 220 yard dash.

Michigan Sets Record.

Michigan's 160 yard relay team, composed of Walker, Walaitis, Smith and Hosmer, stroked the distance in 1:14.8, which broke its own former mark of 1:15.2. The other record smashing was accomplished in the 200 breast stroke, in which Howlett of Northwestern clipped a full second off the former mark of 2:37.4, held by Petersen of Northwestern.

Qualifiers:

160 YARD RELAY—Michigan, Wisconsin, Northwestern, and Illinois. Best time by Michigan, 1:14.8 [new conference record. Old mark of 1:15.2 held by Michigan].

200 YARD BREAST STROKE—Howlett, Northwestern; Petersen, Northwestern; Goldsmith, Michigan; Meyer, Wisconsin. Best time by Howlett, 2:36.4. [New conference record. Old mark held by Petersen, Northwestern, 2:37.4.]

40 YARD FREE STYLE—Schwartz, Northwestern; Walker, Michigan; Walaitis, Michigan; Block, Illinois. Best time by Schwartz, :18. [New conference record. Old mark of :18.4 held jointly by Walker of Michigan and Breyer of Northwestern.]

FANCY DIVING—Lobdell, Iowa; Walaitis, Michigan; Raike, Michigan; Nappa, Minnesota; Browning, Northwestern; O'Keefe, Northwestern.

150 YARD BACK STROKE—Hinch, Northwestern; Marsh, Minnesota; Stephanson, Chicago; Mohl, Iowa. Best time by Hinch, 1:42.6.

100 YARD FREE STYLE—Schwartz, Northwestern; Walker, Michigan; Smith, Michigan; Block, Illinois. Best time by Schwartz, :52.4. [New conference record. Old mark of :53.2 held by Yarnel, Michigan.]

3 WORLD MARKS FALL

Miami Beach, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—Three world's records fell in the second day's program of the National A. A. U.'s women's swimming championships here today, with 16 year old Helene Madison of the Crystal Swimming Club of Seattle showing the way in the 100 meter swim.

Miss Madison sprinted the distance in a try against time in 1 minute 8 seconds. The former record of 1:09 2-5 was held by Albina Osipowich, Worcester, Mass.

Josephine McKim, Los Angeles Athletic club, established a new mark of 3 minutes 49 seconds in the 300 yard swim. Officials ruled she had missed by four seconds a former record set up by Gertrude Ederle of New York in Miami Beach in 1925, but after a conference changed their decision.

They ruled Miss McKim's time was 9 4-5 seconds better than a record established by Miss Ederle at Brighton Beach, N. Y., in 1922, which was recognized as official.

Judges of the championships said the record made by Miss Ederle here in 1925 was filed too late after the swim to be recognized and that her former mark stood until Miss McKim's time today.

Jane Fauntz Wins.

Eleanor Holm of the Women's Swimming association of New York clipped 1 1-5 seconds from the 50 meter backstroke mark over the long course. Her time was 37 4-5 seconds. The former record of 39 seconds was held by Sybil Bauer of the Illinois Women's Athletic club of Chicago.

Officials said the record stood as a world mark, but would be listed under "noteworthy performances" in official listings, since the long course is not recognized in A. A. U. performances.

Jane Fauntz of the Illinois Women's Athletic club of Chicago took first place in the low board diving event. She had a total of 122.33 points in unofficial additions of the five judges' decisions. A running full twist, perfectly executed, placed the Illinois girl in the lead.

Georgia Coleman of the Los Angeles Athletic club placed second in the diving and Evelyn Kennedy of the Illinois Women's Athletic club was third.

Bill Tilden Enters Finals in Nice Tennis Tourney

NICE, France, March 14.—(AP)—Bill Tilden entered the finals of the Nice singles tennis championship today, defeating Giorgio de Stafani, third ranking Italian, 6-0, 6-4, 6-2.

A semi-final woman's singles match between Helen Jacobs and Mme. Nathieu, the French champion, was postponed, Miss Jacobs having been taken ill last night. Her physician did not say when she will be able to play.

SMITTY—THE NICKEL NURSE

Steeve Is Mild and Courteous Out of Ring

big one is there because the school baseball championship was won by our fraternity team, of which Edwin is captain, manager and catcher."

It was all news to the folks.

We were trying to get Edwin to tell us something, but things weren't going so well. He would talk pleasantly about everything under the sun until the conversation switched to himself. Then he'd just smile through his spectacles in a quiet, studious way and become evasive.

Ushers His Mother Out.

His mother looked through a desk drawer for a few minutes and presently turned around with a paper in her hand. Edwin turned red and jumped up.

"For crying out loud, mother! Don't bring that out. Put it away. Go in the kitchen—please!"

He took her by the arm, led her out of the room, and closed the door. Two minutes later Mrs. Steeve was in again—paper and all.

"He'll never tell anything he's done," she said.

But this high school paper did. It contained a little sketch all about Edwin, with his picture and everything. It told how he was vice president of Tilden Tech's class of 1925, to say nothing of being a track athlete, quarter back, catcher and fire marshal.

He's an Artist, Too.

"And you should see how Edwin can draw pictures," his mother went on. "Why he could sit down and make a sketch of you sitting right there. When he was in kindergarten and got the measles his teacher came over and stood on the porch talking to me through the window because we were quarantined. 'That boy's an artist,' she said. 'And you'll find out when he grows up.' Here are a few of his sketches right here in the drawer. This one of the man with the red nose he——"

"Mother, for crying out loud go in the——"

"—made when he was in about seventh grade. And this one of the cowboy on horseback he made a little later. He always liked to read books about the wild west. And he used to write the funniest little letters. Why, when he was only in second grade, he wrote this one that starts, 'Dear Teacher, I don't have to ask you how—'"

Source of Information Goes.

Here Edwin took the situation in hand and cut off the best source of information, but we found out a little bit more before we left. One of his most prized possessions was an old Ford car he owned the summer before he went to college. Of course, the paint wasn't so good, and there wasn't any hood over the engine. It didn't have any top and when Edwin would crank it he'd have to jump aside and flip on before it got away, but it was a swell car anyhow.

We forgot all about asking how many fights he's won or lost and all the rest of those statistics, because when you're talking to Edwin you just think of him as a quiet, courteous student and forget all about the terrible wallop he carries in those two fists.

JUNIOR BOXING TITLES DECIDED IN FOUR CLASSES

The championship of the 112 pound class was won by Joe Kushner, Cleveland, who defeated Tony Marino, Pittsburgh, in three rounds.

Joe Speigle, Pittsburgh, took the 135 pound championship by scoring a technical knockout over Dudley Curtis of Breckenridge, Mich., in the second round.

HESTON BEATEN BY RICHARDS FOR PRO TITLE

Palm Beach, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—Vincent Richards, former national doubles and singles champion, defeated Paul L. Heston of Washington, D. C., to win the southern professional championship on the Royal Poinciana courts of the Palm Beach Tennis club this afternoon. The score was 6-0, 7-5, 6-3.

Heston, who has been runner-up in the southern championship tourney three times and won the first national professional title four years ago, was outclassed by the former amateur ace today.

Martin's Home Must Be Clean; Prepare It Now

BY BOB BECKER.

Bird fans who have one or more martin houses to which they wish to attract these handsome members of the swallow family have about a fortnight to complete two important tasks in connection with the comfortable housing of a martin colony. The first job ahead is housecleaning. A martin nesting box must be thoroughly cleaned each spring. Inasmuch as the purple migrants may visit us the first week in April, the latter part of March is an appropriate time to start getting nesting boxes into shape.

After the house has been put in ship shape with all the old nests of last year removed, the next job involves the English sparrow. This bird will appropriate a martin house if given the slightest chance, so after your clean-up-paint-up job, see that the martin residence has all the entrances closed.

Even better than a mere closed door policy toward the sparrows is a two weeks extermination campaign against these pests, which annoy many of our most useful and desirable song birds.

Though all entrances to your martin house may be closed, the sparows will hang around and just as soon as the box is opened, in anticipation of the first martin arrivals, the sparrows will do all they can to drive out the martins.

Therefore, it's a good idea to give the sparrows a few lessons in behavior. These lessons may be given with a high powered air gun, a 410 gauge shotgun, or wire traps. We know some bird fans who inaugurate a regular campaign [involving these weapons] every March.

The point is to harass every English sparrow that visits the martin house and kill a few that perch upon it. In the open area around the houses a wire trap or two will decimate the sparrow population. Using these measures one can soon teach the English sparrows where their place is.

New York Comish in Power for 10 Years, but What of It?

are now mere memories to be graven on the tomb of old Tex Rickard, but this needn't be so because of any decline of interest. One of these days two heavyweight fighters with picturesque managers will be upheaved from mediocrity and the customers will form lines to the right of the ticket windows as of old if they have the money.

Mr. Rickard did business in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago in a time of crazy recklessness, when money was so free that men who worked with their hands bought tickets at $50 each, but there has been a change in conditions since he died. But given a dramatic heavyweight match, given two such rabelaisian managers as Uncle Will Gibson and Leo P. Flynn to stir the imagination of the prize fight reporters with their social goings on, day and night, and given a money drunk public such as Mr. Rickard played to, I believe the Garden concern or the Chicago Stadium would ring the big number on the cash register more than once again.

Failed from the Start.

The New York prize fight commissioners at the outset were charged with a solemn duty to keep the game clean and I suppose it must be said that they have tried to do so, but fortunately for the racket itself they have failed from the start. A little cleanliness goes a long way in the prize fight business and refinement is but an awkward affectation, the nature of the racket being low and rough, and sordidness its principal charm. It does no harm to plant millionaires in the ringside rows, for they brighten the comedy, like slummers in the saloons along the Bowery in the days when thieves and thugs wore sweaters instead of evening clothes.

Now and again, it is true, some rich man without the dash to play polo, fancying himself for a sporting duke steps down from his place in the social scheme to patronize the prize fight racket, but there is no danger of permanent refinement from that kind, either. The financial return, large as it is by the standards of common people, is no incentive to them and they are ill-at-ease with the boys of the racket and vice-versa. So they don't last, and prize fighting, despite a few superficial airs and manners, remains what it always must be if it is to be prize fighting at all.

I recollect some of the rules enacted by the New York commissioners, all passed and spread upon their records as gravely as some great government might pass acts to pension widows or educate orphans or suppress disorder in the land. There was one forbidding white tights; another requiring champions to defend their titles within ninety days after winning them; another forbidding seconds to wear sweaters with pockets in them lest they carry concealed segments of Ford axles to be inserted in their fighters' gloves, as though they couldn't carry the same materials in their pants pockets.

All Were Violated.

They all were violated, of course, and presently forgotten in the fury of such hilarious problems of state as the Dempsey-Wills predicament, in which, for the Negro vote, Dempsey was once ordered to fight Wills and, a few days later, for the good of the racket and the sake of public peace, forbidden to do so.

Gene Tunney was virtually outlawed in his own town when Rickard matched him with Dempsey, but after he had won the championship he returned to New York and sat at the right hand of Muldoon.

It has been a great administration for ten years. There have been fakes enough to reassure any one who might have thought the racket was becoming clean and fine in accordance with the original threat. It has been much un and the true customer, who knows the ripe odor of the racket as the epicure knows the fragrance of the camembert, has nothing to complain of. Muldoon's in his office. All is right with the world.

Ranger Defeat to Give Hawks Second Place

Though the Chicago Blackhawks have nothing to do until next Tuesday, when they play the Toronto Maple Leafs at the Stadium in the last game of the regular season, they have a slender chance to clinch second place in the American division of the National Hockey league tonight. The answer depends on the result of the game between the New York Rangers and the Pirates at Pittsburgh, one of the four games tonight.

The Hawks stand a game and a half ahead of the Rangers, with one game remaining, while the Rangers have two. The "slender" chance for the Hawks clinching second place comes if Pittsburgh, the weakest team in the league, beats the Rangers, which team has two stars out, making the possibility of a Pittsburgh victory a little better than remote.

Two of the teams in the Canadian division of the league end their season tonight, Ottawa, which plays the New York Americans and the Montreal Maroons, who play the Toronto Maple Leafs. Tonight's games will leave eight of the ten teams in the league with one game to play.

Boston's Bruins play the Detroit Cougars at Boston tonight, but it will have little effect on the standings. The Bruins have clinched first place in the American division, while Detroit can't get into the playoffs.

San Francisco and Wichita Cagers Enter A. A. U. Final

Kansas City, Mo., March 14.—(AP)—The San Francisco Olympic club team tonight defeated Bethany college, Kansas conference champion, 23 to 21, after two overtime periods, to enter the final of the National A. A. U. basketball tournament here.

The Henrys of Wichita, Kas., champions of the Missouri Valley A. A. U. Basketball league, conquered East Central Teachers college from Ada, Okla., 27 to 22, and meets the Olympic club tomorrow night for the championship.

BRUINS, FT. WAYNE PLAY TOMORROW IN FINALE HERE

The Chicago Bruins will make their final home stand tomorrow night at the Stadium, with Fort Wayne as opponents in a National Pro Basketball league game.

Branch McCracken, who just set a new Big Ten scoring record, will appear at center for Fort Wayne, supported by Whitey Wickhorst and Davey Banks, one the original New York Celtic stars.

McCracken will be opposed by Tilly Voss at center for the Bruins. Rusty Saunders will be at guard for Fort Wayne, paired with Ralph Miller. Hank Kowalczyk, who starred with Wisconsin last season, and Chang Chadwick, once a star at Wabash, also are with Fort Wayne.

NAGURSKI SIGNS TO PLAY WITH CHICAGO BEARS

Minneapolis, Minn., March 14.—(AP)—Bronko Nagurski, all-American star on last fall's University of Minnesota football team, will play professional football next season with the Chicago Bears of the National league. Nagurski announced today that he had signed a contract.

CHICAGO TEAMS TO LEAD ATTACK ON A. B. C. MARKS

Niles Center, Des Plaines Bowlers Fall Short.

Cleveland, O., March 14.—[Special]—Chicago will send 26 teams into action, including the Quaker Oats, Green River and Polacki Recreation fives, this week-end in an attempt to shake A. B. C. leaders. The Quaker Oats team won the A. B. C. title at Kansas City two years ago as the Oh Henrys, scoring 3,057. Included in the lineup in Marvin Eric[illegible], Herbie Lang, Leo Faetz, Cy Lock and Ernie Schanz. The Green River five boasts Jimmy Smith, generally rated the greatest bowler of all times. Smith shares honors with Barney Spinella of New York for being the only man ever to annex two A. B. C. all events titles. Smith won the honors in 1911 at Buffalo with 1,912 and again at Peoria in 1920 with 1,915.

The Polacki team boasts Bill Wenicke, Fobey Rankin, Eddie Zaye, George Rudy, and Walter Polacki.

Teams from Racine, Kenosha, Wilkerville, Ont., Detroit, St. Paul, Milwaukee, Cincinnati, and Louisville also are scheduled to bowl.

Bowlers from Niles Center and Des Plaines failed to place among the leaders today, although scores were chalked up which will qualify for slices of the $100,800 prize melon. Joe Rosencrans, after opening with 181, followed with 237 and 214 for a total of 633, while C. Behrens had games of 193, 295 and 212. F. Baranski and C. DE LA SALLE FIVE DEFEATS LOYOLA FOR TITLE, 17 TO 10

A record of twenty-one straight victories is a respectable one in any basketball players' league, but apparently it wasn't enough for the De La Salle institute basketball team, national Catholic champions. Last night they made it 22 in a row and tucked away the Chicago Catholic league heavyweight title by defeating Loyola academy, 17 to 10, at De La Salle gym before a crowd of more than 2,000. Both De La Salle and Loyola will represent Chicago in the national tournament opening Wednesday at Loyola university.

The championship game was a close battle for three quarters, and then De La Salle went ahead. The victors' attack wasn't confined to the brother act of Ed and Phil Krause, for all of the five who played joined in the scoring. Ray Boland, who led the team to its national victory, was the pivot of last night's attack. Angsten stood out for Loyola with three field goals and a free throw.

Lineup:

WALKER, GAMBER WIN FOUR BALL MIAMI TOURNEY

Miami, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—Cyril Walker of Saddle River, N. J., and Clarence Gamber, young Boca Raton, Fla., professional, won the annual international four ball golf matches today from Harry Hampton, Chicago, and Neil McIntyre of Indianapolis. The match ended one up on the 18th green.

Walker and Gamber collected $1,500 first team money by their victory in the 18 hole playoff, made necessary when the teams ended their 36 hole final match yesterday all square. Hampton and McIntyre received $1,000 second place team money.

It was an uphill fight all the way for Walker and Gamber, who went down early in the match and fought back a hole at a time, to square the match on the 15th, go one up on the 16th, and then halve the 18th to win.

REVIEWS FIND TRADE IS SLOWLY FORGING AHEAD

Collapse of Wheat Is Severe Test.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Despite much backing and filling, business is overcoming numerous handicaps and is slowly picking up. Its current progress is nothing to be excited about and probably is less pronounced than usual at the advent of spring. But it does show recuperation from the doldrums and thus inspires hope for the future. This is about the vein of the weekly and mid-month reviews.

"Collapse of the wheat market during February was a severe test of the strength of the current recovery phase of business," the CHICAGO TRIBUNE survey says. "But it caused little disturbance except for a slight flutter in the security markets. Stepping up of manufacturing production continued, although at a slower rate than in January.

"Steel mills are active, especially in the Chicago district, where they are running close to capacity. Automobile manufacturers doubled their production in January, but are still maintaining a strictly conservative policy with regard to output. Building construction lags, although the volume of engineering projects in process and contemplated for early development is large."

See Improvement.

The last week also has brought a slight but definite improvement, according to the mercantile reviews, and it is predicted the first quarter of this year will show that distinct betterment has taken place.

"With adjustments to new conditions continuing, revival of business activity, while plainly in the making, remains a slow and fluctuating process," Dun's Review says. "The measured pace of the recovery and its uneven course reflect the presence of numerous retarding factors, yet the foundation for subsequent advance is being gradually strengthened. That is a significant aspect of the situation which becomes clearer with each passing week, but the immediate phase of impeded and irregular betterment is disappointing to many interests.

"Results for the first quarter of the year, now nearing its ending, will not fail to disclose tangible improvement in different instances, although commercial recuperation has not thus far attained the breadth that had been hoped for. Companions with the movements of a year ago should be made only with allowance for the fact that 1929 was a period of unusual progress in many respects and it is not surprising, in view of existing economic changes, that current statistics continue to show general decreases."

Employment Looking Up.

"There is a slight but still quite perceptible livening up of wholesale and jobbing trade at many points, apparently due to the more springlike weather ruling wide areas," Bradstreet's Review says. "In some sections weather conditions also have affected retail trade favorably and the expansion of outdoor activities is expected to enlarge the volume of buying. There are evidences, too, that employment conditions, which are conceded to have been at their lowest ebb in February, have tended to improve."

While our foreign trade last month was considerably smaller than for February, 1929, exports and imports preserved about the same relation. Our favorable trade balance was around $70,000,000, compared with $73,300,000 a year ago. February exports totaled $351,000,000, compared with $441,751,000 a year ago. The decline was attributed chiefly to smaller European takings of American grain and cotton.

Exports at Low Ebb.

Exports made the lowest total for any February since 1922. Last month's imports totaled $281,000,000, compared with $369,400,000 a year ago. The gold movement last month was more favorable to this country. Imports totaled $60,198,000 and exports were only $207,000, whereas a year ago imports were $26,913,000 and exports were $1,425,000.

A mild recovery of the stock market last month is shown in data compiled by the New York Trust company. Average prices of 103 stocks representing 12 industrial groups increased 1.10 points. Ten public utilities recorded the greatest gain of any group, advancing 11.34 points. Shares of 25 railroads increased 2.40 points, while nine motor and five rubber stocks each rose by approximately 1.35 points.

Pennsy Stockholders Now Number 205,263

The number of Pennsylvania railroad stockholders has passed the 200,000 mark for the first time. This is shown by a report just completed and issued today by H. E. Newcomet, vice president of the western region, at Chicago, placing the number of shareholders registered at 205,263. The previous high record was reached at the opening of the present year, when 196,119 shareholders were recorded. The average holding of all stockholders is 82.75 shares, a decrease of 10.43 shares, as compared with a year ago.

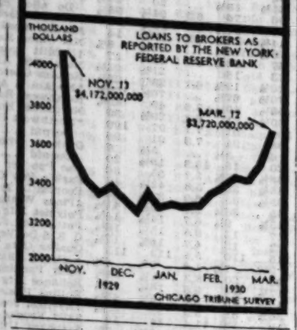
BROKERS' LOANS ARE THE HIGHEST SINCE NOVEMBER



CHICAGO STOCK MARKET PRICES WEAKER AT CLOSE

Trading Is Spirited in Middle West.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Trading on the Chicago exchange yesterday was a humdrum affair at the best. Prices opened irregularly, firmed up around midday and sold off toward the close. At no time during the session did the market show any resolution. Easing in money rates instead of proving an effective stimulant was taken as an indication that demand for money has fallen off.

Brave attempts by a few isolated issues to forge ahead were only partially successful. Noblitt Sparks showed the most uniform strength. Opening 3 points above its previous close, the issue managed to edge a fraction higher, only to sell off to 57 before the end of the session. The bullish trend in the oil stocks gave Lion Oil an advantage which it utilized in advancing 3 points to 25, and finishing a point under that figure.

Gas Issues Decline.

Natural gas issues were nearly all lower at the close. Missouri Kansas Pipe Line, North American Gas and Electric, and United Gas made small gains which were short lived. The latter was down more than a point at the close. Other utilities were mixed. Spirited trading in Middle West closed the issue at 35½, up a minor fraction for the day. Sales in the stock exceeded 67,000 shares.

Among the specialties, E. L. Bruce on light sales advanced 2 points to 42½, while Field eased a fraction. Winton lost nearly 2 points from the new year's high established on the previous day.

Borg Warner was actively traded in, and 1¾ lower selling ex dividend. Other motor shares which lost a point or more were Auburn and Houdaille B. Cord was steady at 14½.

Approve Stock Increase.

Stockholders of Quaker Oats yesterday authorized an increase in the common stock from 600,000 to 800,000 shares to provide for a 20 per cent stock dividend proposed by directors. James C. Murray was elected a director to succeed Robert Gordon, deceased. Distribution of the stock dividend will not require all of the new stock, it was stated, and the remainder will be kept in the treasury.

J. D. Bobb, president of the Limousine Body company, subsidiary of Auburn Automobile, states that production schedules are being increased about 400 per cent to meet orders. Spring business should exceed any period last year, Mr. Bobb said.

Transactions in Bonds Record for Year to Date

New York, March 14.—[Special.]—Bond prices were again lifted on the stock exchange. Today's transactions reached a record volume for the year to date with a total of $20,065,800, and was the greatest since Nov. 13, 1929, with dealings aggregating $21,326,000. The averages on both foreign and domestic issues touched new highs for the year.

SAY VAN SWERINGENS WILL NOT SEEK TO MERGE MO. PACIFIC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 14.—The Van Sweringen interests of Cleveland have no intention of trying to merge the Missouri Pacific with their eastern lines, it was stated here today. Those interests have in mind the failure which similar attempts met in the past.

For one thing, it was pointed out in railroad circles that there is not sufficient transcontinental traffic for such a system. In the second place, every previous attempt to extend an eastern railroad west of the Mississippi has encountered serious opposition from the western roads.

The situation between the Missouri Pacific and the Van Sweringen lines was compared to the mutual holdings of the New York Central and the Union Pacific in one another. This interchange of stock has existed for years, but the suggestion that these two roads should be made into a transcontinental has never been made. However, the interchange of stock interests has made for friendly relations between the roads, although the Union Pacific has not attempted unduly to divert traffic to the New York Central by comparison with other eastern roads.

The Alleghany corporation, through which the Missouri Pacific purchases were made, is on record as owning 100,000 shares of Missouri Pacific common stock, 60,000 shares of the preferred, and a substantial amount of convertible debentures. It is considered that this represents only a part of the Alleghany corporation's holdings. One estimate has gone as high as 275,000 shares. This would be about 15 per cent.

Shifting of Labor Seen Big Problem

BY SCRUTATOR.

One of our outstanding problems is to find the easiest way to shift large parts of the working population from one occupation to another.

The process is constantly going on. In the last ten years the pace has been accelerated. For long periods in the world's history improvements in technical methods were so slow that the necessity for rapid change of work was not apparent. It required a large percentage of all the people to produce foodstuffs. It required another large percentage to make clothing.

In 1800 a man with a sickle could cut a half acre of wheat a day. It was possible by 1831 for a man with a cradle to cut two and a half acres. With the self binder of 1880 he could cut twenty acres, and with a combine today it is said to be practicable for one machine to go through all the processes, including the sacking of the grain, from forty acres.

Manufacturing Changes.

Changes in manufacturing have been no less sensational. There is a statement that a single machine exists capable of making all the 5 gallon glass carboys that are used in the United States. In the blast furnaces of the country one man's direct labor is estimated to produce forty-five times as much pig iron as the average man produced in 1850.

Every new mechanical device that has been developed and adopted has resulted in the displacement of some labor needed to do the same work. It is true that it is not all a gain in labor saving, because it needs men first of all to produce the machines, to service them and to transport them. Yet it remains undoubtedly true that the sum total of human labor to produce consumption goods of any kind has been lessened as mechanization proceeds.

If it had not lessened there would have been no necessity for and no wisdom in mechanization. In some forms of endeavor the percentages of total population employed has increased as output per man went up. Expansion of demand occurred as the cost of these certain articles, relative to others, went down.

Need Expanding Demand.

A requisite for this situation was an expansible demand. Automobiles furnish an example. It was different in agriculture. It was different in coal mining. There was no comparable increase in demand as productive ease was increased in their products.

Farmers, in fact, may have decreased their markets as they mechanized their farms. The Horse association of America asserts that if we had even the same number of horses and mules we had in this country in 1920 there would be more than eighteen million acres in cultivation to feed those which have been destroyed.

The actual basis for relief in agriculture, as in mining and some other industries, lies in cutting down the labor employed and directing it into other channels. The trend in that direction already is present; possibly all that government should do is try to relieve the migrant from some of the distress and uncertainty that often accompany his move.

New York, March 14.—(AP)—The net operating income of the class I railroads of the country in January amounted to $55,454,416, which for that month was at the annual rate of return of 3.98 per cent on their property investment, according to reports received from the roads by the Bureau of Railway Economics. Consumption in January is estimated at 36,663 tons, while the amount consumed in February, 1929, was 41,594 tons.

GOV'T TURNOVER WILL SHOW 400 MILLIONS DROP

Income Taxes May Yield $500,000,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 14.—The usual extraordinary turnover of funds will take place tomorrow, but the amount handled will be about $400,000,000 short of last year's turnover, it is estimated. This year's total will be about $1,600,000,000 compared with $2,000,000,000 a year ago.

Smaller maturities and lighter tax collections than usual are responsible for the decreased amount of money and credit to be handled.

The United States treasury will pay out altogther tomorrow and Monday about $551,000,000 and will collect an estimated amount of $500,000,000. It also will issue $540,000,00 new certificates.

Will Make Overdraft.

As usual, the treasury will make an overdarft on the federal reserve bank to enable it to make prompt settlements. It is estimated that the amount of the overdraft will be only about $300,000,000, although the government altogether will disburse about $551,000,000 at this time. One reason for the comparatively small overdraft is the fact that its maturities do not fall exactly on the same day.

The securities falling due tomorrow consist of treasury certificates aggregating $404,000,000. The additional obligation of $100,000 to be paid off at this time is an issue of non-interest bearing treasury bills which are not payable until next Monday by which time the treasury should be in tax funds with which to meet its obligations.

Income taxes are payable tomorrow, but as usual tax payers will hold up checks until the last minute, with the result that receipts will not begin to accumulate until Monday.

It is estimated that tax receipts this March will show a pronounced decline compared with those for the March quarter of 1929. The total is estimated in Washington at about $500,000,000 whereas last March actual collections amounted to $601,363,000.

The prediction of a drop this year is based partly on the lower tax rate in effect for corporations and for normal incomes and partly to the stock market break and business reaction last fall. The amount of business and stock market losses is difficult to estimate but may prove substantial.

In addition to redeeming altogether obligations aggregating more than $500,000,000 the treasury tomorrow will disburse about $47,000,000 in interest on government securities.

Credit Rates Ease.

There was further evidence of plentiful credit and easy money rates today. The Cleveland federal reserve bank reduced its rediscount rate from 4½ to 4 per cent, following the action of the New York reserve bank in cutting its rate from 4 to 3½ per cent. The Chicago federal reserve bank made no change in its 4 per cent rate, although a reduction within the next week or two is not unexpected.

New York dealers in bankers' acceptances again lowered their rates, which now are 3⅛ to 3⅜ per cent. This marks the fifth reduction in the last two weeks, each cut having been one-eighth of 1 per cent.

New York, March 14.—(AP)—The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company today reported net income of $22,296,268 for 1929, equivalent, after the payment of preferred dividends and guarantees on separately operated companies, to $11.72 a share on the common stock. This contrasts with net income of $16,887,909, equivalent to $8.00 a share on the common, in 1928.

Total assets of $600,786,454, a decrease of $2,263,336 within the year, are shown in the pamphlet report for the year ended Dec. 31, 1929. Total corporate surplus was $24,974,200, an increase of $9,410,100 over the total of a year earlier. Current assets totaled $28,019,287 and current liabilities $15,722,242. This was a decrease of $2,326,990 in current assets and of $757,479 in current liabilities.

Insull Group Pays Cash for Kentucky Co.

The International Utilities corporation has sold its 96 per cent interest in the Kentucky Securities corporation to the Insull interests of Chicago for cash, it was learned last night. P. M. Chandler, president of the International company, confirmed the report that the company had been sold, but did not reveal the purchase price.

Martin J. Insull, president of Middle West Utilities company, last night refused to confirm or deny the acquisition.

Kentucky Securities corporation controls the Lexington Utilities company, which, in turn, owns the Kentucky Traction and Terminal company and the Kentucky Coach corporation, the Georgetown Water, Gas, Electric and Power company; the Stamping Ground Light and Power company, and Lexington Ice company are also controlled by the group, which has assets approximating $20,000,000.

The group sells wholesale light and power to a number of utility companies operating in Kentucky, including the Kentucky Utilities company, a $50,000,000 Insull subsidiary, and provides electric service in the city of Lexington, Ky. It is tied in with an extensive network of transmission lines in central Kentucky, in the heart of the Blue Grass district.

Gas, ice and interurban transportation service are also supplied by Kentucky Utilities company, subsidiary of the Middle West Utilities company, the principal Insull holding company. The transmission lines of the Insull system run north from Kentucky to Indiana and west to Illinois, forming part of a chain of properties serving large portions of the middle west.

CHEAPER MONEY BOOSTS BRITISH GOVT. SECURITIES

LONDON, Mach 14.—(AP)—The advent of cheaper money, which is helping a world-wide reduction in bank rates, has also caused a smart rise in British government securities on the stock exchange during the past few days.

Today such securities rose a quarter to one per cent under big buying orders and since last Friday—the day after the bank rate reduction—they have risen one to two per cent.

Poor trade had induced commercial, insurance, and financial concerns to put their surplus funds into bank deposits, but now that the rate of interest on those has shrunk to two per cent as a result of lower bank rates, there is apparent a general transference of funds into good yielding securities.

TEXAS CORP. NET EARNINGS EXCEED FORTY MILLIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 14.—Gross earnings of the Texas corporation in 1929 amounted to $213,262,170, an increase of $17,027,934 over the $196,234,235 reported for 1928.

Earnings in 1929 available for dividends and surplus, after federal income taxes and all reserves, were $40,318,072, equivalent to $5.12 a share on the average of 9,433,164 shares outstanding during the year. These figures are the same as shown in the preliminary report and compare with $45,073,879, or $5.56 a share on 8,107,763 shares in 1928.

Orpheum Circuit Has Net Loss of $2,362 for 1929

New York, March 14.—(AP)—Operations of the Keith-Albee-Orpheum corporation for 1929 resulted in a net loss of $2,362 after charges, depreciation and dividends on the stock of subsidiary companies now owned, as compared with net income of $356,908 in 1928, which included $1,134,827 profit from the sale of investments, and which was equal to $5.41 a share on the 7 per cent preferred stock.

Year's Earnings of Oscar Mayer & Co. Decrease

Oscar Mayer & Co. in the year ended Nov. 30 had net income of $145,647 after all charges and federal tax, equal after preferred dividends to 68c a share on 120,000 shares of $10 par common stock. This compares with $290,737, or $1.36 a share on the same basis in the year ended Dec. 1, 1928.

EATON ASSERTS STEEL MERGER WILL BE FAILURE

Kahn Resigns from Proxy Committee.

Youngstown, O., March 14.—(AP)—Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier and commander in chief of the opposition toward the purchase of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company by the Bethlehem Steel corporation, declared here tonight that "the deal will not go through."

This is the first time he has broken his silence since the merger fight. He arrived here this afternoon to take personal charge of the fight to prevent the merger.

Seeks to Repair Breach.

His first attention was toward repairing the breach opened on the opposition's proxy committee by the resignation from the committee of Julius Kahn, president of the Truscom Steel company of Youngstown. The purpose of the committee is to control the proxies at a meeting of Sheet and Tube stockholders April 8 to vote on the merger, which was approved by the Sheet and Tube directors this week.

"This sale will not go through," Easton said. "A good deal more than enough stock has been pledged against it and always has been. The terms are unsatisfactory and public sentiment is opposed to it."

During the opposition's battle for proxies today, James A. Campbell, chairman of the Sheet and Tube board, and Frank Purnell, president of the company, were preparing a statement setting forth their views on why the sale should be made.

Explains Resignation.

Kahn, who is president of the Truscon Steel company, largest steel fabricator in the United States, said he had resigned for the committee because he was being put in the light of lining up with the Eaton interests of Cleveland against the officials and majority directors of Sheet and Tube. The industrialist said he had accepted membership on the committee only because he had been assured that it would not mark him as "taking sides."

The opposition proxy committee will send out proxy forms to stockholders authorizing the committee to vote against ratification of the sale when the proposal is submitted to the special stockholders' meeting.

Bank Clearings Recede from Previous Week

These figures show a decrease of 9.8 per cent from last week and a decline of 16.3 per cent from the like week of last year.

Farm Board Stops Buying Wheat at Minneapolis

Buying of wheat fy the Farmers' National Coöperative association, a farm board subsidiary, was stopped yesterday on order from W. G. Kellogg, company manager. Late in the day Mr. Kellogg explained the move, saying:

"Withdrawal of the corporation from the cash market at Minneapolis is only temporary. All storage space now available to the corporation has been utilized. Until it has time to acquire more storage facility the corporation will stay out of the cash market. When more space is available the corporation intends to resume its buying of cash wheat."

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 14.—There was a lot of smoke and hullabaloo to today's stock market, but when that is said the tale is pretty well told. Neither side was able to boast of any substantial progress when the whistle blew. It was about a draw.

Influences of moment were in operation on both sides of the market, but the opposing developments neutralized each other pretty thoroughly. For the bull cause there was the easiest money in years, 3 per cent call money for the first time since April, 1926; the newly fixed 3½ per cent rediscount rate fixed by the federal reserve bank, pool activities here and there, and some eye-filling 1929 earnings reports by General Refractories, International Cement, Checker Cab, and other companies.

Sobering Influence.

On the bear side traders had to reckon with the sobering influence of a $137,000,000 jump in brokers' loans; the inevitable wave of selling in connection with March 15 income tax settlements; revived rumors of an impending cut in the prices of copper metal, which affected these and allied shares, and concerted bearish efforts to have the reduced money rates construed as additional evidence of the slack in business and the need of efforts at reinspiration.

International Telephone was a conspicuously weak spot all day, yielding sharply before persistent selling, a large part of it for short account, influenced by the announcement overnight of new financing through the issue of additional stock to shareholders.

Based on yesterday's closing price, the "rights" had a value of slightly over $2, but for the present at least new financing, even though it creates such "rights," is not construed as bullishly as happened to be the case this time a year ago. The stock was off nearly 5 points at the close.

Steel Gets Refund.

Steel common was favored on the buying side on the news that the corporation had secured a tax refund of $33,000,000 from the government, and up to the very late trading the stock

Estimated receipts at Chicago today, 200 cattle, 6,000 hogs and 7,000 sheep.

Hogs on the cash trade were pounded down 25@50c yesterday, closing sales showing mostly 40@50c loss, with heaviest weakest, while prices on the futures market ruled weak to only 15c lower.

Prices on the cash trade were lowest since Feb. 1, the extreme top going down to $11.10 and the general average to $10.20, showing the widest "spread" since early last October. All interests bought more freely after the 40@50c lower price basis had been established, and only 4,000 remained in the pens at the close.

Numerous sales of heavy hogs were made below the $10.00 line, the bulk of hogs exceeding 275 lbs selling at $10.00 and under. Armour, Swift, and Wilson were good buyers of 225@240 lb averages at $10.00@10.10 late in the day, but bid sharply lower on extreme weights.

Many Offer to Sell.

Offers to sell were plentiful on the futures market yesterday, but bids in most instances were too low for trading. March light hogs were offered freely at $10.90@11.10 and were bid $10.60. About 10 carloads of April and May light were for sale at $11.00@11.25, with the best bid at $10.85, which obtained a few of the finish, against $11.00 for May light at the opening.

September light were offered as low as $11.00 near the finish and carried bids of $10.75. Heavy grades for March, April, and May were bid $9.60@9.70 and offered at $10.00@10.20. Activity on the "to arrive" market was lacking, due to the unsatisfactory condition of the cash trade. Some medium grades for next Monday's delivery sold at $10.25.

Yesterday's meager supply of 1,500 cattle had to be peddled on a "catch as catch can" trade, with prices 50c @$1.00 under the high time of last week. Hardly enough arrived to test quotations, and topnotchers were absent, which is usually the case late in the week. The best available averaged 982 lbs and sold at $14.00, with only occasional sales above $12.00.

Lambs Hold Firm.

Lamb prices held firm yesterday, several loads of the best selections reaching $11.25, with bulk of 85@95 lb averages at $10.50@11.00 and 100 lb lambs at $10.25. Lambs without fleece showed little change at $9.75, although some odd lots of heavy were reported sold downwards to $8.50. Aged sheep and yearlings were scarce and generally steady, light ewes reaching $6 late in the day. Feeding lambs were scarce and steady. Prevailing quotations on fat lambs are largely in line with the close of last week.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 200 cattle, 6,000 hogs, and 7,000 sheep, against 434 cattle, 4,024 hogs, and 4,900 sheep the previous Saturday and 377 cattle, 2,000 hogs, and 6,470 sheep a year ago.

Next Monday's hog receipts are estimated from 35,000 to 65,000. W. T. Reneker marked 65,000; G. M. Chandler, A. G. Welhener, and O. Dwight, 60,000; J. M. Waters and W. Brown, 59,000; R. W. Trotter, 58,000; W. C. White and R. Greensley, 57,000; F. M. Sherwood, H. Pattison, and J. T. Brown, 55,000; H. C. Carlson, S. Lund, and F. Gehrmann, 50,000; R. W. Thorne, 46,000; R. B. Ellis, 45,000, and M. J. Berkery, 35,000.

BATTLE TO DRAW BEHIND WALL ST. SMOKE SCREEN

Neither Bulls Nor Bears Make Headway.

had a good looking gain to its credit. Profit taking got it in the end, however, and the closing sale reflected a fractional decline on the day.

And so it went throughout the list—up and tuck, up and down. Oil stocks moved ahead bravely for a while, but they, too, caved in as a group before the finish. Standard of New Jersey made a new top for the year and then reacted some 2 points. Losses of from a fraction to more than 3 points were suffered by most of the issues lately active on the up-side.

Drops Two Points.

Standard Brands was heavily sold on its 1929 earnings report and the close found it some 2 points in the rack.

Some of the utilities and a few individual stocks harboring large short interests or affected by special developments were able to maintain their upward course fairly well throughout. But their gains were overbalanced by losses of less fortunate group fellows.

Anaconda Copper dipped more than 3 points in the late selling, ending with a net loss of 2¼. Kennecott dropped almost as much for a net decline of 1½ points.

Simmons company, which harbors a considerable short interest, built up during the recent severe decline in the stock, rallied sharply on covering inspired by a letter to stockholders from the management denying recent reports regarding the concern's financial position. The management assured those interested that the financial status of the corporation was thoroughly sound. Profit taking cut down the showing of the stock in the late trading, but it managed to keep within a fraction of the surface.

'WRITTEN-UP' VALUES LOWER NET RETURN ON AMER. GAS STOCK

Washington, D. C., March 14.—(AP)—As the federal trade commission today concluded its investigation of the American Gas and Electric company testimony went into the record that a net return of 7.84 per cent was made by that company in 1928 on an investment including $85,992,000 of "written-up" values.

Commissioner Chairman McCulloch recessed the investigation, authorized by the senate, for two or three weeks, until accountants have prepared for consideration of another utilities group.

As a late exhibit American Gas introduced a statement showing its 1928 return on a capital of $399,948,309 was 7.94 per cent. Commission Counsel Healy then asked what the percentage return would have been deducting "the arbitrary write-ups." Harold D. Anderson, American Gas assistant secretary, who was on the witness stand at the time, said the return on that basis would have been 9.39 per cent.

The increased valuations in each instance were made after companies were merged into American Gas subsidiaries. The Appalachian Electric Power company before a merger valued its property on its books at $73,361,000. After the merger that property was valued at $139,039,000, an increase of $67,000,000.

COTTON CLOSED NEAR TOP

Cotton had better support a good part of yesterday and prices averaged higher. From the recent low level there has been an advance of $3.50 a bale based on spots in New York, yet prices are around $6.00 a bale lower than last year.

Consumption of cotton in the United States in February, as given by the census bureau, was 495,204 bales, against 534,720 bales last year.

At the close futures in Chicago were 1 to 18 points higher and other markets up 16 to 35 points. Spots in New York were 20 points higher at 14.75c. New Orleans was 14.50c, Galveston, 14.96c, and Houston, 14.90c. Prices follow:

MAY WHEAT IS LOWER AS NEW CROP ADVANCES

Market Shows Resistance to Bear Pressure.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The wheat market is commencing to show unmistakable signs of resistance to bearish influences. While the old crop deliveries yesterday were heavy and closed 1¼c lower despite persistent buying of May by the government, the new crop months rallied 2⅜@2⅝c after an early break and closed ½@1c higher, with evidence of a broader speculative interest. May finished at $1.06⅞@1.07 and July at $1.04⅞@1.04⅝.

A good part of the selling of May wheat was regarded as by scattered longs who are impressed with the weak world's statistical position and the fact that foreign markets are selling at the lowest figures of the crop year, with Liverpool off 1⅞@2¼d for the day, March finishing at $1.00⅝ and May $1.4⅛, probably the lowest prices that have been witnessed there in over 15 years, and materially below a shipping basis as compared with North America. Buenos Aires closed 1⅛c lower, with May 95⅛c.

Trade reports indicated that the government bought May wheat at Kansas City as well as at Chicago, but the May-July difference narrowed to 2⅛c at the last, against 3⅝c on Thursday, and hedgers are now in a better position to change over into the July than for sometime past.

Sentiment More Bullish.

There was a somewhat more friendly feeling toward the buying side of the deferred deliveries noted during the day, with some buying of July credited to a leading eastern operator.

Some winter wheat is being plowed up in parts of Missouri, southwest Ohio, northeastern Kansas and southwestern Nebraska as the result of damage by Hessian fly. A new factor in the wheat situation is found in the lightest snowfall in over 40 years in some parts of the Rockies, suggesting a lack of water for irrigation systems later in the season.

The largest export business in sometime was put through in Manitobas with sales of around 1,000,000 bu in all positions, and Winnipeg closed unchanged to ⅛c higher.

Corn at New Low.

Scattered liquidation developed in corn at the start with all deliveries selling at a new low on the crop, but the break brought in good buying headed by local professionals, and a rally of 2@2¾c from the inside figures followed with the close ⅝@1c higher, May being 79¾c, and July 80⅝@80¾c. A good shipping demand with sales of 178,000 bu combined with decreasing receipts and advancing spot basis were the bullish influences.

Weather conditions throughout the west were generally favorable for field work. Charters have been made for around 500,000 bu corn for shipment at the opening of navigation, and probably 1,000,000 bu will clear early in the season, according to estimates or around 20 per cent of the total stock.

The northwest and Winnipeg sold oats early, while cash interests bought, and the finish was ⅝c lower to ⅛c higher, May being 40⅞c, and July 41¼c.

Liquidation was on again in rye with March selling at a new low on the crop, and the finish was ⅛@1⅞c lower with May 58⅝c, and July 61⅝c.

EGG FUTURES ADVANCE

March egg futures advanced ¾c, or $45 a car on the Chicago Mercantile exchange, influenced, apparently, by recent lower temperatures. November was up ¾c. Sales were 20 cars and receipts 25,730 cases. Vigorous storage withdrawals and a firmer spot market made for an early advance in March butter futures, but liquidation turned the gains into a net loss at the finish of ¼c or $24.00 a car. Sales were 80 cars and receipts 11,604 tubs. Prices follow:
